Canal treaty selling job tough order for Carter

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter will have to do some vigorous digging for Senate votes f he hopes to win ratification of the proposed new Panama Canal treatym But even if he succeeds, chances appearemote that the issue will be settled this year.

An Associated Press poll of the Senate shows 17 members who say they will support the treaty drafted by negotiators for the U.S. and Panamanian governments, 17 opposed to it and 62 who said they were undecided or unwilling to commit themselves. Four senators were not available.

Most senatos who were undecided said they didn't want to take a position until they have had a chance to read the terms of the treaty and heaings are held. Among these, however, 14 indicated they were leaning in favor of ratification and seven were tilting against it. n

The treaty must be retified by a two-thirds of senators present and voting. If all 10 senators were pesent and voting, ratification would require the approval of 67 senators. ,

As tentatively worked out by U.S. and Panamanian negotiators, the treaty will povide for the United bstates to turn over control of the 50-mile waterway to Panama in the year 2h00. A separate treaty provides for the two countries to share continued responsibility for the canal's security and neutrality after that date.

Carter has urged the lawmakers not to oppose the treaty without seeing the actual terms. Carter emidentty has decided to push for ratification this year rather than wait until 1978 when the treaty would almost surly become an election issue.

But Sen. John Sparkmen, DAla, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, which must first approve the treaty, said there was "no reasonable chance" that it could come to a floor vote before Congress' scheduled adjournment in Octobe.

Sparkman, descriting himself as "open minded" on the treaty, said the need for extensive committee hearings end stuy of the document means no action can be expected before early 1978.

Carter, he said, "is aware that thee is little we can do until we get the finished version." The President also knozs that meil to lawmakes "shows clearly there is a great deal of opposition to the proposal for transferring control of the Hanama CXANAL TO Panama by the year 2000," Sparkman said.

Some senators report a large volume of anti-treaty mail, some of it apparently the result of orgenized letter-writing campaigns.

A spokesman for Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D+Ill., one of the 17 acknowledged backers of the new treaty, said that since the first of the year h s office had received more than 5,600 lettes opposing the treety and only five favoring it. s

By contrast, mail to Sen. Harrison Williamsn D+N.J., has been split about evenly on the issue, a spokesman said.

Sen. Harrison Schmitt, RN.M., said he hadn't spoken to a single person who favored a new treaty. Sen. Orrin G. Hatch, R+Utah, said he "hesn't talked ,to anyone who isn't violently opposed."

Sen. Bob Packwood, R+Ore., one of five Republicans favoring the treaty, eported a large volume of mail opposing it, but said he didn't think the senders were representative of Oregon voters.

An example of the dilemma for some senators was provided by Sen. Wendell Ford, D+Ky., who says he hasn't decided whether to vote for or against the treaty but that he doesn't think he'll be able to vote for it.

Ford said he had made an auto tour of western Kentucky and found the "overwhelmino sentiment" was negative. "But I am not setting my feet in concrete," Ford said.

Senate leaders of both parties placed themselves in the undecided column.

Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D.-W. Va., whose role in mustering Democratic support could prove crucial to Carter's chances of winning ratification, said he would remain neutral until given a chance to "thoroughly digest" the Foreign Relations Committee hearings.

Sen. Howard Baker, R+Tenn., the GOP leader, said he was polling Tennesseans to find out how they felt about the treaty. As of Friday, a Baker spokesman said, b"we haven't had a one who's for it."

Resistance to the treaty came mostly from senators from Southern, Western and Midwestern states, and their objections focused mainly on concern about whether the Panama Canal could be adequately protected under the proposed treaty. Some expressed fears that the pact would allow the waterway to fall under control of a Communist-leaning military dictatorship.

Sen. Strom Thurmond, RS.C., a leading foe of the treaty who recently made a quick "fact-finding" visit to Panama, said he did not think Panama could handle the economic burdens of mananging the canal. This, he said, would lead to "political turmoil" and possibly a Communist takeover.

The floor battle against ratification likely will be led by Sen. Jesse Helms, R+N.C., who contends that Carter is "proposing the immediate surrender of U.S. soveeignty and territory" in Panama.

Worm threat boosts crop dusting

A thriving business in the area the past week has been crop dusting. Several rain showers during the week improved the moisture conditions for area farmers but also spawned some unpleasant company in the form of worms in the soybean crop. Many farmers have been spraying their fields in hope of ridding them of such pests as the cotton boll, corn ear and cabbage looper worms.

Discrimination probe under way at SeMo U.

CAPE GIRARDEAU— An investigation into alleged discrimination on the basis of sex by Southeast Missouri State University is being conducted by a federal agency.

The Civil Rights Office of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare will investigate the complaint filed by a female faculty member.

Dr. Robert E. Leestamper, the university president, said Friday he had very little knowledge about the facts related to the discrimination charge.

He said the university had been informed by HEW of the investigation. He was told that an investigator would be here Tuesday.

According to Leestamper, information provided by the agency states, "The complaint alleges- discrimination on the basis of sex with respect to a faculty assignment." He said he did not know who filed the complaint.

Jesse Milan of HEW's civil rights office in Kansas City said by telephone it was the policy of his division not to disclose any details of an investigation.

Milan would acknowledge that an investigation was under way, that a complaint had been filed and that an investigator would be here Tuesday.

Leestamper said that during his tenure here this was the first investigation of this nature by the federal agency. The state Human Rights Commission in 1975 investigated one complaint and dismissed it as unfounded.

Voyager survives early malfunction

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The Voyager 2 spacecraft sped from Earth toward the outer planets of the solar system Saturday, apparently in good shape despite early signs that something serious had gone wrong.

"Voyager looks much, much healthier than we originally thought," said John Casani, director of the Voyager program.

The possibility of trouble had not been ruled out, however, because a boom crucial to the success of the voyage apparently had not locked into position, although it had extended from the spacecraft as planned. Earlier, a data taped played back from the craft seemed to show it had not fully extended.

Scientists were considering a test to see how well the equipment on the boom worked.

That equipment is essential to the heart of the mission — to send back pictures of Jupiter and Saturn and to measure the atmosphere, magnetic field, cosmic rays and density of the planets.

The spacecraft is the first of two sorties into space in a $500-million program to find out more about the origins of the solar system.

The spacecraft's twin, Voyager 1, is scheduled for launch Sept. 1.

The 1,800-pound Voyager 2 was launched smoothly at 10:30 a.m. EDT. But an hour after it cut loose from its Atlas+Centaur rocket to proceed on its own power, launch officials said there seemed to be trouble with the boom and with a stabilizing gyro.

But both problems appeared less serious by evening.

The six-foot boom holds two television cameras and three science experiment packages. Had it malfunctioned, the mission would have suffered "definite degradation," Casani said.

Launch officials considered activating one experiment as a way to test the position of the boom. The experiment is designed to measure clouds of ionized gases streaming from the sun and other stars, and the test would involve directing its highly accurate pointing apparatus toward the sun.

Scientists had counted on the Voyager program to provide new knowledge about the creation of the universe. They believe that by studying the outer planets, they can find out more about how Earth was formed. On Earth, such study is impeded by the continuing effect of the sun, while the cold outer planets are more like the way they were when the solar system was formed.

Despite a speed of over 30,000 miles per hour, Voyager 2 is not scheduled to make its closest approach to Jupiter, 450 million miles from Earth, until July 10, 1979. Voyager 1 will travel faster and reach the planets somewhat sooner.

If all goes well, the closest Voyager contact to Jupiter will come on March 5, 1979, when Voyager 1 swings by at a distance of 170,000 miles.

Cooking school to return

The Daily Standard today announces that Progressive Farmer's Southern Kitchens Cooking School will return to the Sikeston High School Field House at 7:30 p.m. Sept. 8 for the third annual event co-sponsored by the Standard.

Last year some 1,200 women and even some interested male cooks attended the popular event.

Watch for free tickets to be given away by local merchants displaying cooking school posters or a product display. The free tickets will be available on a limited basis.

"The program this year is entirely new and even more exciting than every," says Susan McBride, director of the schools for Progressive Farmer magazine, based in Birmingham, Ala. There are many new ideas and lots of new twists on our old format. All new menus, party ideas, kitchen short cuts and ideas to help the food budget. There also are sophisticated dishes for the gourmet cook and innovations for some old standby Southern favorites. French exchange student among 6 traffic victims

A French exchange student was critically injured and five persons received lesser injuries in three accidents Saturday on area roads, according to the highway patrol.

A two-car accident injured three persons at 3:15 p.m. Saturday on Interstate 55 in Cape Girardeau County, 100 feet from the Perry County line.

Francois Leinen, 16, an exchange student from Lalncon, France, was critically injured; a Jackson youth, Vernon Louis Kasten, 17, received moderate injuries and Joseph Richard Crawford, 72, of W ingo, Ky, was seriously injured.

Leinen was a passenger in a car driven north in the passing lane by Kasten whcih was struck head on by a car Crawford was driving south in the northbound lane, and swerved into the passing lane.

All of the injury victims were taken to St. Francis Medical Center at Cape Girardeau.

Crawford was arrested for driving while intoxicated and driving the wrong way on an interstate highway.

Two Campbell residents received minor injuries in a two-truck accident at 1:30 a.m. Saturday on Interstate 55 at the Interstate 57 interchange near Sikeston.

A tractor unit driven north by Edgar Miles, 32, of St. Clair came over the overpass and struck the rear of a northbound truck driven by John Hopkins, 60 of Campbell.

Hopkins and a passenger, Elva Hopkins, 46, were taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital.

A one-car accident at 3 a.m. Saturday on Highway 61, two miles north of Route P junction near Kewanee, caused minor injuries to the driver, Danny Glass, 18, of Henderson, Ky.

The patrol said Glass was traveling north at a high rate of speed when a tire apparently blew out on his car, which ran off the road, struck a telephone pole then became mire in mud. While attempting to free the car, the engine caught fire and the vehicle was destroyed.

Glass was cited for driving while license is revoked and driving while under the influence of drugs.

Stolen truck recovered

PORTAGEVILLE -- A pickup truck, reported stolen Thursday night in a burglary at Rone Chevrolet & Olds Inc., has been recovered and a rural Portageville man is in New Madrid County jail at New Madrid suspected of burglary and stealing.

The truck was recovered in Trenton, Tenn., Friday morning after it was involved in a wreck, and Bennie Baker of Portageville Route Three was arrested by Gibson County, Tenn., authorities.

Baker waived extraditon and was returned to New Madrid County Friday.

An estimated $8,000 worth of mechanic tools also stolen in the burglary has not been recovered.

Miss Oran winner

A 15-year-old sophomore at Oran High School, Nina King, was crowned Miss Oran Friday during the annual Oran Fall Festival activities. Miss King, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Homer King of Oran, was chosen from a field of more than 20 candidates in the contest. First runner-up was Tammy Henson and second runner-up was Rhonda Hamm. Todays News In Brief

Alabama girl is Miss Teenage

ATLANTA (AP) — Sixteenyear-old Lavelda Fann of Gadsden, Ala., has been named the winner of the Miss National Teen-ager Pageant.

Miss Fann, a high school senior, won the crown Friday night over girls from 49 other states and the District of Columbia.

She was awarded a $3,500 cash scholarship, an automobile and a personal appearance contract.

First runnerup was Lorraine Dixon, 17, of Tice, Fla.

Terry Williams, 18, of Caldwell, Ark., took the second runnerup spot; Debby Warner, 17, of Decatur, Ga., was third runnerup and Missy Brothers, 17, of Greenbrier, Tenn., was fourth runnerup.

Krista Stephens, 16, of Anchorage, Alaska, was awarded the title of Miss Congeniality, and Kathleen Gray, 17, of Fonda, N.Y., was named Miss Photogenic.

Music awards presentation set

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Waylon Jennings is a finalist in four categories and his hit "Luckenbach, Texas" is a contender for top single in the nominations for the 11th annual Country Music Association awards announced Saturday.

The nationally televised awards show will be at the Grand Ole Opry House Monday night, Oct. 10. The awards are regarded as country music's equivalent to the Academy Awards for motion pictures.

Jennings, who has said he does not like competing against other singers for such awards, was nominated for entertainer of the year, album of the year for "Ol' Waylon," male vocalist of the year and teamed with Willie Nelson as a finalist for vocal duo of the year.

Other finalists for entertainer of the year — the top award — are Merle Haggard, Ronnie Milsap, Dolly Parton and Kenny Rogers.

Nominated with Jennings for top male vocalist are Larry Gatlin, Milsap, Rogers and Don Williams.

Finalists for top female vocalist are Miss Parton, Crystal Gayle, Emmylou Harris, Loretta Lynn and Barbara Mandrell. Superstar Tammy Wynette was not nominated.

'Inferno' brought into libraries

PARIS (AP) — After almost two centuries of trying to keep the Marquis de Sade and other authors from tainting public morality, the French National Library has extinguished its "Inferno" section and is allowing anyone with a library card to taste its once-forbidden fruits.

But there has been no rush to peruse the 2,000 largely erotic books. No new entries have been made since 1960 and most of the old ones are so tame by today's standards they would deserve no more than a "Purgatory" rating. Many have been sold for years in bookstores or have been made into films.

The change took place quietly at the beginning of the summer after a committee of readers convinced the library's general administrator, Georges le Rider, that the Inferno section, dating from the beginning of the 19th century, was outmoded.

Big libraries all over France have sections labeled "L'Enfer," which is French for inferno or hell and derives from the Biblical concept of the netherworld as a place where the damned are banished.

Until this summer, any of the 15,000 regular card-holders wanting access to the "books of hell" had to get special authorization from the library or prove that their literary or scientific research could be pursued only by going to the shelves of the Inferno.

Hua Kuofeng to head China

TOKYO (AP) — The Chinese Communist national congress has formally chosen Hua Kuofeng as party chairman and political heir to Mao Tse-tung, and Hua has proclaimed that a "new leap forward" is at hand for China and its people, Hsinhua said Saturday.

Peking's official news agency said Hua told the Chinese people that under his leadership they must seek inspiration "at home and abroad" and "unite with all forces that can be united," a clear signal that he is charting a more open and pragmatic course for China in the future.

The Hsinhua report, monitored here, said the 11th party congress — the first since 1973 — ended Thursday after seven days of meetings and that Hua was elected party chairman by secret ballot.

Announcement of that action was hailed Saturday by some 100,000 flag-waving Chinese who beat gongs and drums in Peking's central Tien An Men square, according to Japanese and Italian reports from the Chinese capital.

Vance headed to Peking

WASHINGTON (AP) — Five and a half years after the United States and China first broke the ice, President Carter is sending Cyrus R. Vance to Peking to see if conditions are right for establishing full diplomatic relations with the Communist mainland.

The secretary of state departed Saturday for a four-day visit to China beginning Monday.

Administration officials, possibly mindful of frustrations in the Middle East and other foreign policy fronts, are minimizing Vance's expectations.

They told reporters the visit would be "basically exploratory" and without any prospect of "great results or pronouncements."

One top State Department official said flatly: "We are not going to China for a breakthrough in normalization."

Even so, Carter's goals are clearly pointed in that direction.

"We hope to find a formula which can bridge some of the difficulties that still separate us," the President said in a speech in May at Notre Dame.

Hot money discovered in slaying

MIAMI (AP) — A brown paper bag containing $47,000 has been recovered by detectives investigating the slaying of sports heir Robert Reid Topping.

Topping, 20, had brought the money here from Atlanta on the last of 10 cocaine-buying trips, police said.

"Everybody knew it was hot money," homicide Sgt. Gerald Green said.

Police said the money had been through several hands before detectives recovered it after negotiations with an attorney for Barry Adler, one of the two wealthy young men charged in the case.

Topping's late father, Dan Topping Sr., once owned the New York Yankees. His stepfather, Rankin Smith, owns the Atlanta Falcons.

Adler, 18, whose father owns an insurance company, was charged with first-degree murder, kidnaping, robbery and using a weapon in a felony. He was being held without bond.

Andrew Schell, 18, was charged with being an accessory to the murder. He was released on $5,000 bond.

Police say Adler attacked Toppirg from behind in a moving car, stabbing him 33 times in the head, face, chest and back. Police say Schell, whose father owns a construction firm, was driving the car when the killing took place.

Advance party to leave K.C. air base Monday

KANSAS CITY (AP) — An advance party is scheduled to leave Richards-Gebaur Air Force Base Monday in what is expected to signal the beginning of the end for the 20-year-old military installation.

The party, numbering about 20, will establish the framework for movement of the Air Force Communications Service headquarters from the Kansas City base to Scott AFB, near Belleville, Ill.

City, county and state officials have been waging a battle for nearly three years to keep the base in Kansas City, but a federal judge on Wednesday all but killed any last hopes of the base remaining.

Nearly 2,300 military personnel at Richards-Gebaur will receive their new assignments Monday, and will have seven days to decide whether to transfer to Scott or retire.

An Air Force spokesman said each deputy chief of staff at the base will determine how fast to shift their people to Scott, but the military transfer is scheduled to be completed by Oct. 1. That is the date the Air Force has set for the change of command.

Civilian employes at the base, who come under Civil Service regulations, will be given additional time to determine whether they will make the move. The civilian transfers are expected to be completed by November or December.

U.S. District Court Judge William R. Collinson on Wednesday denied a request by Jackson County for a temporary injunction to stop the transfer. He rejected the county's contention that an environmental impact statement prepared by the Air Force was inadequate and filled with errors.

Thursday, attorneys for the county filed a motion in federal court seeking an immediate hearing on the merits of their request for a permanent injunction to bar the base closing.

Some 3,700 military and civilian employes will be affected by the move.

Elvis fans plan party tonight

An outdoor Elvis Presley tribute party, in honor of the recording star who died Tuesday, will be held tonight from 6 o'clock midnight at 102 County Line Road, the trailer home of Joy Simmons and Opal Holman, who are sponsoring the event for all Elvis fans in the Sikeston area. The site is just north of Highway 60 a mile and a half east of the Highway 61 intersection.

There will be a live band, dancing and other social entertainment. Any entertainer may volunteer to perform, the sponsors said.

There will be no admission charge. Some tables and seating will be provided, but those who can are encouraged to bring their own chairs.

Report on minorities' role in television cost $321,419

WASHINGTON (AP) — According to the TV critics over at the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights, television's typical situation comedy is built around this formula: "Any problem can be solved, by luck or by someone else."

But that's make believe. In the real world of government, it takes a study, a report and — if the commission has its way — a new set of rules to solve a problem.

That is the formula evident in the Civil Rights Commission's 181-page report on women and minorities in television. It cost $321,419 and it concludes that the government should do something about television.

"...Despite advances made in portrayal as well as in employment opportunity, minorities and women — particularly minority women — continue to be underrepresented in dramatic programs and on the news and their portrayals continue to be stereotyped," the commission held. It's solution:

"Television should accurately reflect the ethnic and gender diversity of the nation.

"Minorities and women should participate fully in bringing this about.

"The federal government should ensure that this is done."

Whatever the sins and shortcomings of the evening's fare of TV shows these days, the government probably could make matters worse.

The Civil Rights Commission solemnly complains that the population of the TV shows doesn't accurately reflect that of the nation — too many men, too many young women, not enough elderly people. It reports that the women in situation comedies tend to be subordinate to the men.

In the police and private eye shows, the commission says, women are far more likely than men to be the victims, rather than the perpetrators, of violence. This observation is followed by a footnote:

"While this commission does not advocate that women should be portrayed as the perpetrators of violence, nevertheless it should be noted that woman are portrayed as more vulnerable than men since they are more frequently victimized."

And that's not all.

"A comparison of the population of the television world with that of the real world reveals that there were many more males on the screen than there are in reality," the report notes. "Male characters constituted 73.9 per cent of the television population, while males actually constitute 48.6 per cent of the U.S. population."

The complaints about TV programming are one phase of a civil rights commission report that also advocates new standards and quotas for the employment of minorities and women in the broadcasting industry.

The commission wants the Federal Communications Commission to come up with rules on the portrayal of women and minorities in TV programs.

The FCC says that would create a regulatory nightmare, and it is indeed hard to see how the government could enforce such program rules without a corps of censors to examine TV scripts and reject those that present stereotyped characters.

In any such system, somebody would have to decide what was an acceptable presentation of a female or minority character, and what was not.

But the Civil Rights Commission insists that it doesn't want censorship, or government previewing of TV scripts.

The commission doesn't say how its ends could be attained without government intervention, before or after a broadcast, to supervise the content of TV shows.

Nor, in all its 181 pages, does its report mention the simplest solution a viewer has to deal with objectionable TV programming — the knob that turns off the set.

Chaffee starts removal of buildings

CHAFFEE — Building Inspector Tom Arnold met with the city council Monday night and reported on the progress made in the condemnation proceedings of sub-standard buildings in Chaffee.

The meeting was called to order by Councilman Bob Delezene in the absence of Mayor Capshaw.

Arnold reported that the list of sub-standard homes as reported by the Chaffee Police Department was being inspected and in the near future owners of the buildings will be notified by registered mail what repairs would be necessary to remove the buildings from the sub-standard list.

A dangerous building sign will be placed upon the building and the owner will be allowed 30 days to comply with Chaffee City Ordinance 73. The ordinance provides that the owner will repair, or demolish the building or to appear before the city council and show cause why they feel their properties do not violate the city ordinance.

If at the end of 30 days no positive action has been taken by the owner of the property, the Building inspector will turn over his reports to the building commissioner, Alvin Enderle. At that time the commissioner will hold a hearing at which testimony will be solicited from the Building Inspector, the owner, occupant, mortgageee or lessee of the building as shown by the land records of the Recorder of Deeds of Scott County. If at that time the property is still found to be sub-standard, the owner will have 10 days to vacate or demolish said building. After which the Building Commissioner will advise the City Attorney to take legal action to correct the situation.

Owners who disregard notices or orders and who shall fail to comply with the notices or orders to repair, vacate or demolish buildings declared to be sub-standard will be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction may be fined $200 for each offense and a further sum of $10 for each and every day such failure to comply continues beyond the date fixed for compliance.

The ordinance also provides for a fine not exceeding $200 for any person removing the dangerous notice placed upon the property by the Building Inspector.

Owners of several buildings placed on the substandard list have started to dismantle buildings which are not worthy to repair. Marvin Graham is dismanteling the property at 116 Dame and Mable Laucks is having an old house at 205 Helen torn down. Work has been started to raise the old Frisco general office building.

The Chaffee City Hall is being repaired to prevent the falling of additional bricks from around the eaves of the building while the council ponders the construction of a new city hall.

At Monday night's council meeting, Alderman Whistler said the Thorngate Company may be possibly interested in trading the land occupied by the Frisco office building for the land now occupied by the Chaffee City Hall. If such a swap is possible the city hall complex including fire department, street department, water department, police department plus court rooms and offices could be built on the Yoakum Avenue location.

Senate tradition may bar Mrs. Slavin from PSC

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Gov. Joseph Teasdale said today outspoken consumer advocate Alberta Slavin will not be confirmed as a member of the Missouri Public Service Commission unless Senate tradition is abandoned.

Teasdale made the comments after meeting with Sen. Ralph Uthlaut, R-New Florence, for about 15 minutes whether he would sponsor Mrs. Slavin before the Senate Gubernatorial Appointments Committee.

The governor quoted Uthlaut as saying he would not sponsor her because Sen. A. Clifford Jones, R-Ladue, will not support her and Jones represents the area where Mrs. Slavin lived before she was appointed.

"Her chances of even being considered are being stifled" by the tradition that senators must give approval to an appointee from their districts before that appointee is considered, the governor said. He also quoted Jones as saying, "I will do nothing to promulgate her confirmation."

"It's all over unless 12 senators take the appointment away from the committee and present it to the full Senate," Teasdale told newsmen. He said would meet with Senate leaders later to see if such a move, also against tradition, can be made.

Mrs. Slavin, the founder of the Utility Consumers Council of Missouri, has been criticized as being biased against utilities. Both Teasdale and Senate President Pro Tem Norman Merrell, D-Monticello, contend that if her appointment is brought before the full Senate, however, she would receive the 18 votes needed to continue serving on the PSC.

Two other controversial appointees of the governor's, however, cleared the panel today and were recommended for confirmation by the full Senate.

By a 5-2 vote, the committee recommended Senate confirmation of W. Robert Aylward of Kansas City to the state Conservation Commission, then voted 6-1 to support J. E. Dunn Jr., also of Kansas City, for the other commission post.

Action on those appointments and others considered by the committee will be taken up later by the full Senate.

Both Aylward and Dunn told the committee earlier that they would not oppose use of revenues from the one-eighth cent conservation sales tax for state parks.

Several committee members expressed concern over Aylward's and Dunn's ideas about handling the revenues from the new sales tax, which will more than double the commission's current operating budget.

"The philosophy would be to preserve our parks and streams," Aylward, a top behind-the scenes advisor to Teasdale, told the committee.

"It wouldn't bother me at all if parks merged with conservation," he added. Dunn also said that because of the similarity of activities between the state parks system and the Conservation Commission, consolidation of the two should be considered in the future.

Consolidation of the parks system, now controlled by the Department of Natural Resources with the constitutionally independent Conservation Commission, has been considered since the new tax was approved, but it would require changes in the state Constitution.

The two men also said they believed the legislature's proposal to charge a 2 per cent fee for collection of the one-eighth cent sales tax appears to be reasonable and they favor the commission paying part of the collection cost.

The commission has gone to court, however, to have the fee imposed by lawmakers earlier this year declared unconstitutional on the grounds that all revenues from the tax are earmarked solely for conservation purposes.

Report on minorities' role in television cost $321,419

WASHINGTON (AP) — According to the TV critics over at the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights, television's typical situation comedy is built around this formula: "Any problem can be solved, by luck or by someone else."

But that's make believe. In the real world of government, it takes a study, a report and — if the commission has its way — a new set of rules to solve a problem.

That is the formula evident in the Civil Rights Commission's 181-page report on women and minorities in television. It cost $321,419 and it concludes that the government should do something about television.

"...Despite advances made in portrayal as well as in employment opportunity, minorities and women — particularly minority women — continue to be underrepresented in dramatic programs and on the news and their portrayals continue to be stereotyped," the commission held. It's solution:

"Television should accurately reflect the ethnic and gender diversity of the nation.

"Minorities and women should participate fully in bringing this about.

"The federal government should ensure that this is done."

Whatever the sins and shortcomings of the evening's fare of TV shows these days, the government probably could make matters worse.

The Civil Rights Commission solemnly complains that the population of the TV shows doesn't accurately reflect that of the nation — too many men, too many young women, not enough elderly people. It reports that the women in situation comedies tend to be subordinate to the men.

In the police and private eye shows, the commission says, women are far more likely than men to be the victims, rather than the perpetrators, of violence. This observation is followed by a footnote:

"While this commission does not advocate that women should be portrayed as the perpetrators of violence, nevertheless it should be noted that woman are portrayed as more vulnerable than men since they are more frequently victimized."

And that's not all.

"A comparison of the population of the television world with that of the real world reveals that there were many more males on the screen than there are in reality," the report notes. "Male characters constituted 73.9 per cent of the television population, while males actually constitute 48.6 per cent of the U.S. population."

The complaints about TV programming are one phase of a civil rights commission report that also advocates new standards and quotas for the employment of minorities and women in the broadcasting industry.

The commission wants the Federal Communications Commission to come up with rules on the portrayal of women and minorities in TV programs.

The FCC says that would create a regulatory nightmare, and it is indeed hard to see how the government could enforce such program rules without a corps of censors to examine TV scripts and reject those that present stereotyped characters.

In any such system, somebody would have to decide what was an acceptable presentation of a female or minority character, and what was not.

But the Civil Rights Commission insists that it doesn't want censorship, or government previewing of TV scripts.

The commission doesn't say how its ends could be attained without government intervention, before or after a broadcast, to supervise the content of TV shows.

Nor, in all its 181 pages, does its report mention the simplest solution a viewer has to deal with objectionable TV programming — the knob that turns off the set.

Chaffee starts removal of buildings

CHAFFEE — Building Inspector Tom Arnold met with the city council Monday night and reported on the progress made in the condemnation proceedings of sub-standard buildings in Chaffee.

The meeting was called to order by Councilman Bob Delezene in the absence of Mayor Capshaw.

Arnold reported that the list of sub-standard homes as reported by the Chaffee Police Department was being inspected and in the near future owners of the buildings will be notified by registered mail what repairs would be necessary to remove the buildings from the sub-standard list.

A dangerous building sign will be placed upon the building and the owner will be allowed 30 days to comply with Chaffee City Ordinance 73. The ordinance provides that the owner will repair, or demolish the building or to appear before the city council and show cause why they feel their properties do not violate the city ordinance.

If at the end of 30 days no positive action has been taken by the owner of the property, the Building inspector will turn over his reports to the building commissioner, Alvin Enderle. At that time the commissioner will hold a hearing at which testimony will be solicited from the Building Inspector, the owner, occupant, mortgageee or lessee of the building as shown by the land records of the Recorder of Deeds of Scott County. If at that time the property is still found to be substandard, the owner will have 10 days to vacate or demolish said building. After which the Building Commissioner will advise the City Attorney to take legal action to correct the situation.

Owners who disregard notices or orders and who shall fail to comply with the notices or orders to repair, vacate or demolish buildings declared to be sub-standard will be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction may be fined $200 for each offense and a further sum of $10 for each and every day such failure to comply continues beyond the date fixed for compliance.

The ordinance also provides for a fine not exceeding $200 for any person removing the dangerous notice placed upon the property by the Building Inspector.

Owners of several buildings placed on the substandard list have started to dismantle buildings which are not worthy to repair. Marvin Graham is dismanteling the property at 116 Dame and Mable Laucks is having an old house at 205 Helen torn down. Work has been started to raise the old Frisco general office building.

The Chaffee City Hall is being repaired to prevent the falling of additional bricks from around the eaves of the building while the council ponders the construction of a new city hall.

At Monday night's council meeting, Alderman Whistler said the Thorngate Company may be possibly interested in trading the land occupied by the Frisco office building for the land now occupied by the Chaffee City Hall. If such a swap is possible the city hall complex including fire department, street department, water department, police department plus court rooms and offices could be built on the Yoakum Avenue location.

Senate tradition may bar Mrs. Slavin from PSC

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Gov. Joseph Teasdale said today outspoken consumer advocate Alberta Slavin will not be confirmed as a member of the Missouri Public Service Commission unless Senate tradition is abandoned.

Teasdale made the comments after meeting with Sen. Ralph Uthlaut, R-New Florence, for about 15 minutes whether he would sponsor Mrs. Slavin before the Senate Gubernatorial Appointments Committee.

The governor quoted Uthlaut as saying he would not sponsor her because Sen. A. Clifford Jones, R-Ladue, will not support her and Jones represents the area where Mrs. Slavin lived before she was appointed.

"Her chances of even being considered are being stifled" by the tradition that senators must give approval to an appointee from their districts before that appointee is considered, the governor said. He also quoted Jones as saying, "I will do nothing to promulgate her confirmation."

"It's all over unless 12 senators take the appointment away from the committee and present it to the full Senate," Teasdale told newsmen. He said would meet with Senate leaders later to see if such a move, also against tradition, can be made.

Mrs. Slavin, the founder of the Utility Consumers Council of Missouri, has been criticized as being biased against utilities. Both Teasdale and Senate President Pro Tem Norman Merrell, D-Monticello, contend that if her appointment is brought before the full Senate, however, she would receive the 18 votes needed to continue serving on the PSC.

Two other controversial appointees of the governor's, however, cleared the panel today and were recommended for confirmation by the full Senate.

By a 5-2 vote, the committee recommended Senate confirmation of W. Robert Aylward of Kansas City to the state Conservation Commission, then voted 6-1 to support J. E. Dunn Jr., also of Kansas City, for the other commission post.

Action on those appointments and others considered by the committee will be taken up later by the full Senate.

Both Aylward and Dunn told the committee earlier that they would not oppose use of revenues from the one-eighth cent conservation sales tax for state parks.

Several committee members expressed concern over Aylward's and Dunn's ideas about handling the revenues from the new sales tax, which will more than double the commission's current operating budget.

"The philosophy would be to preserve our parks and streams," Aylward, a top behind-the scenes advisor to Teasdale, told the committee.

"It wouldn't bother me at all if parks merged with conservation," he added. Dunn also said that because of the similarity of activities between the state parks system and the Conservation Commission, consolidation of the two should be considered in the future.

Consolidation of the parks system, now controlled by the Department of Natural Resources with the constitutionally independent Conservation Commission, has been considered since the new tax was approved, but it would require changes in the state Constitution.

The two men also said they believed the legislature's proposal to charge a 2 per cent fee for collection of the one-eighth cent sales tax appears to be reasonable and they favor the commission paying part of the collection cost.

The commission has gone to court, however, to have the fee imposed by lawmakers earlier this year declared unconstitutional on the grounds that all revenues from the tax are earmarked solely for conservation purposes.

Bulldogs complete first week of practice

Hi there!

Football practice started last Monday for the defending Northern Division champion Sikeston Bulldogs. Veteran coach Terry Smith welcomed 89 gridiron candidates on Monday, including seven returning lettermen.

The squad practiced without pads the first three days. Then, on Thursday, the Bulldogs got down to the nitty-gritty of getting ready for their September 2nd opener with always-tough Farmington.

The accompanying pictures were snapped during Friday evening's practice at the high school training camp. Saturday afternoon the team held press and picture day at the high school, followed by a picnic at the Sikeston Country Club. People had a chance to meet all the players, take pictures if they desired and join in the picnic afterward.

Coach Smith view the upcoming season as a "building" one. Citing lack of experience as a key factor, the usually pessimistic leader admitted that his Bulldogs would have adequate speed and size, but wouldn't be nearly as deep as a year ago.

"We'll play only 13-15 players," Smith pointed out. A year ago the team ran up a 10-0 record with 22 different starters, none going both ways.

"We plan to have a say in who wins conference," the Sikeston coach noted recently. The Bulldogs will close their season Nov. 4 with a road game against preseason conference favorite Poplar Bluff.

Set! Hit! Hit!

All Stars beaten in Charleston finals

by Mike Marsh
Daily Standard Sports Writer

Both Sikeston 11 and 12-year-old teams were playing in the final games of the Charleston Invitational Tournament. For the first time in post-season play, neither team won.

The All-Stars lost their bid for the championship to the Cape Americans by the score of 4-3. The score indicated just how close the game was. After four innings, the score was all tied up at three.

Marland Beaudean was looking good in the early innings but seemed to tire. With the score tied at three, Mike Moore was asked to stop another rally as he has done all year, but a sore arm held him back. Doug Chessor came in to fill the shoes and got them out of the fourth. However, he gave up a solo homer by MVP Darrell Pannier which was the game winning blow.

Sikeston had their shot in the sixth as Moore finally pitched and was effective despite the tender limb. He struck out the side and was the leadoff batter for the All-Stars. They sent up two of their best hitters in Moore and Doug Chessor, but came up empty.

Pannier was the winner in the championship rematch and Doug Chessor collected the final loss in a long season.

In the consolation game, the Aces of Sikeston were defeated by East Prairie 13-4. It would seem to be a laugher, but the game was very close until the fourth inning.

After three complete innings, the score was knotted at four. Damon Deal then gave way to Vince Howard who pitched the fourth. Vince allowed only a single, but three walks and his error gave East Prairie four runs. John Gilbow then pitched the fifth. Two hits and three walks sent five East Prairie across the plate for their eleven runs.

Vince Howard was the loser with Danny Marcum picking up the win. It would seem that neither team relied on their pitching as seven of the game's hit were for extra bases. Two were homers by Deal of the Aces and McIntire of the victors.

The Aces were recognized by the tournament officials for their manners and received the sportmanship trophy.

The All-Stars reached the finals by downing the Aces of Sikeston 6-4 in a game many felt should have been for the championship. The fans and players were excited about seeing the two teams play one another, and they were not disappointed.

The Aces broke on top with one run via an RBI double by Mike Burnett. The All-Stars came right back with a run of their own as Mike Moore singled to drive in David Braden. The second inning proved to be the undoing of the Aces as three All-Star runs scored. With men on first and second with two out, Brad Bloemer hit a grounder to third. Instead of simply touching third, he threw wildly to first which allowed two runs to score. Bloemer was then hung up between second and third and the throw from the Aces catcher went into left accounting for the only two Aces boo-boos and three All-Star tallies.

The only All-Star error allowed two runs to score in the sixth after Burnett, Howard, and Deal had loaded the bases with clean singles. Steve Coffey hit what looked like the third out to the secondbaseman who let it go through his legs, good for the final two tallies of the game.

Damon Deal allowed four of the All-Star runs and got the loss. Todd Baker won the game with relief help from Mike Moore who came to pitch in the sixth with the bases loaded and no outs. He struck out the side to end the game and give him the save.

In Friday action, the All-Stars from Sikeston used the big inning to put Benton out of the tournament by the score of 9-0. The All-Stars scored six runs on five hits, Bloemer, McPherson, and Steward doubled in the inning with Doug Chessor ramming out a triple to spark the explosion.

Todd Baker got the win with three innings pitched. In those three, he struck out five, walked two and gave up one hit. Doug Chessor threw the next three and had seven fans, one walk and give up one hit.

Second IN COMMAND

By DALE L. FORBIS
Daily Standard Sportswriter

The St. Louis football Cardinals were notified Saturday that center Tom Brahaney has a broken bone in his foot and will miss the next four to six weeks. All Big Red fans hope that the injury plague that may have cost their team a playoff berth a year ago isn't starting again. But, when you talk about injuries, you have to consideer the eerie situation in Anaheim, Calif., where the California Angels recently employed a real, live witch to try to rid them of a strange and disturbing "jinx."

When people in connection with the Angel situation first noticed the weird things happening to their players they probably joked about it. But, consider now the happenings and you, too, will begin to wonder.

Multi-millionaire Gene Autry thought he had purchased the 1977 A. L. West title by hiring expensive free agents Don Baylor, Bobby Grich and Joe Rudi. As of today the Angels aren't in first place -- or anywhere close. Grich and Rudi are out of action, injured, and Frank Tanana has a sore arm.

It all started back in 1962...

Ken McBride was an All Star pitcher for the American League back that year. Late in the year his car was hit in the rear and, pitching with a bad back, McBride lost his last 10 decisions. His career was over.

Another moundsman, Dick Wantz, died of a brain tumor in 1963.

Reserve infielder Chico Ruiz died in a car wreck just a mile from his home and, in the late 60's, Minnie Rojas had his spine severed in yet another auto mishap. We're not talking about a rash of bruised fingers here. This is death, and a lot of it, on one team in a short time!

Bobby Valentine seemed to have a brilliant career ahead when he crashed into an outfield wall at Anaheim Stadium and broke his leg in two places. Valentine was hitting over .300 at the time. Today he is a .158-hitting reserve for the New York Mets.

Lee Stanton was off to a brilliant start that same year when he broke his hand in a game that saw him rip three homeruns against the Orioles. He never was the same for the Angels, although he does finally seem to be coming back with the expansion Seattle Mariners this year.

Want more incidents?

Pitcher Bruce Heinbecher was killed in an accident, just minutes from the team hotel during the spring of 1974. Nolan Ryan lost eight straight games after hurting his arm in 1975. He never did pitch well last year, although he is a stronger pitcher this summer.

Bobby Bonds broke a hand in a preseason game and played in pain throughout 1976 and, this past winter, Mike Miley became the latest victim of the "Angel Curse" when he was killed in an auto accident at the age of 23.

Just the other day the Angels called in a witch to help them in their plight. She said the "jinx" on the Angels was the strongest she had ever opposed. Later that same day the previously sore-armed Tanana went out and blanked the Baltimore Orioles.

One can only hope that the "jinx" is now broken and this serious chain of events is stopped.

Can the Cardinals catch the Phillies?

Obviously, until it is mathematically impossible, the answer must be, "yes." But, what are the Redbirds' chances?

As of Saturday morning, St. Louis trailed the Phillies by eight games. The Phils had 43 games left and St. Louis 41. If Philadelphia played around .550 ball, which a penant contender should plan to do if they are to stay ahead, the Cards would be forced to run up a record of 32-9 to tie. If the Phils play break-even ball, St. Louis must go 29-12, which is over 70 percent winning.

However, if your memory stretches back to 1964 Cardinal fans, you know anything is possible.

Austin has Wheeling lead

WHEELING, W.Va. (AP) — Scrambling to an even-par 72 by overcoming some admittedly poor putting, Debbie Austin held a two-stroke lead over LPGA glamour girl Laura Baugh following Saturday's second round of the $50,000 Wheeling LPGA Classic.

Miss Baugh, perhaps the best-known player on the ladies' circuit despite the fact she's yet to win a tournament in five years on the tour, fired a two-under par 70 for a two-day total of 71-70-141.

A shot back of Baugh at two-under-par 142 is another tour non-winner, Kathy Farrer, one of two golfers to shoot three-under-par 69s on a bright sunshiny late summer day over Ogle-bay Park's rugged par 72, 6,-150-yard Speidel Course.

Jan Stephenson also fired a 69 to deadlock U.S. Women's Open champion Hollis Stacy and Joyce Kazmierski at one-under-par 143. Miss Stacy, shooting an up-and-down round that included five birdies and five bogies, is at 71-72-143, while Miss Kazmierski salvaged an eagle three on the par-five, 450 yard 18th hole to shoot a one-over-par 73 and a 70-73-143 total.

Tied at one-over 145 are Bonnie Lauer, Gloria Ehret, and Debbie Massey. Miss Ehret, who shot a 70 over the par 72, 6,150 Speidel layout, and Miss Massey, who fired a 71, both had under-par rounds Saturday.

Miss Baugh will be trying to avoid Sunday a finish similar to the one she endured here a year ago. In 1976 she was the co-leader entering the final day of play with the identical score she has this year (71-70-141), but then skied to a five-over 77 and wound up finishing tied for third.

Rasmussen throws 5-hitter

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Keith Hernandez slugged a three-run homer to highlight a five-run, sixth-inning and Eric Rasmussen pitched a five-hitter as the St. Louis Cardinals defeated the San Diego Padres 7-1 Saturday night.

Mike Anderson added a homer and two singles for the Cardinals and Rasmussen, 10-11, added a two-run double in the sixth-inning outburst.

Randy Jones, last year's National League Cy Young Award winner, took the loss to lower his record to 5-10.

Hernanadez' home run broke open the game as he belted a Jones' pitch into the right field seats after Garry Templeton had reached first on an infield hit and Ted Simmons drew an intentional walk.

Anderson and Ken Reitz followed the homer with singles, sending Jones to the showers. Rasmussen then delivered his two-out double off reliever Dave Freisleben.

San Diego scored in the fifth on a balk by Rasmussen.

St. Louis opened the scoring with an unearned run in the second inning as the result of a throwing error by Jones. Anderson singled with one out and Jones threw wildly to first baseman Dave Kingman in an attempt to keep the runner close to the base. Anderson went to third on the error and then scored on a groundout by Reitz.

Anderson smacked his two-out solo home run in the fourth inning.

After Rasmussen balked the run home in the fifth, the Padres wasted an opportunity to add more. Jerry Turner opened the inning with a walk and Bill Almon and Mike Champion followed with singles to load the bases with no outs. Second base umpire Doug Harvy then called a balk on the St. Louis pitcher, scoring Turner.

Rasmussen pitched out of further trouble. Jones flied out and after an intentional walk to Gene Richards, again loading the bases, Gene Tenace popped out and Mike Ivie flied out.

Bulldogs complete first week of practice

Hi there!

Football practice started last Monday for the defending Northern Division champion Sikeston Bulldogs. Veteran coach Terry Smith welcomed 89 gridiron candidates on Monday, including seven returning lettermen.

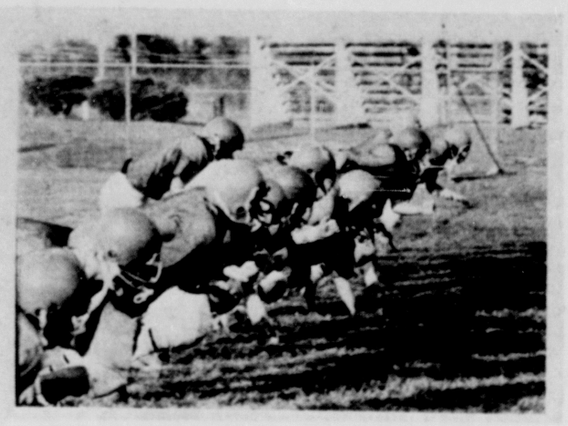
The squad practiced without pads the first three days. Then, on Thursday, the Bulldogs got down to the nitty-gritty of getting ready for their September 2nd opener with always-tough Farmington.

The accompanying pictures were snapped during Friday evening's practice at the high school training camp. Saturday afternoon the team held press and picture day at the high school, followed by a picnic at the Sikeston Country Club. People had a chance to meet all the players, take pictures if they desired and join in the picnic afterward.

Coach Smith view the upcoming season as a "building" one. Citing lack of experience as a key factor, the usually pessimistic leader admitted that his Bulldogs would have adequate speed and size, but wouldn't be nearly as deep as a year ago.

"We'll play only 13-15 players," Smith pointed out. A year ago the team ran up a 10-0 record with 22 different starters, none going both ways.

"We plan to have a say in who wins conference," the Sikeston coach noted recently. The Bulldogs will close their season Nov. 4 with a road game against preseason conference favorite Poplar Bluff.



Set! Hit! Hit!

Team members line up and attempt to explode together, on signal, as they gear up for the beginning of the season. Getting the timing down could be the hardest part for an inexperienced squad like the Dogs. (Daily Standard photo)

All Stars beaten in Charleston finals

by Mike Marsh
Daily Standard Sports Writer

Both Sikeston 11 and 12-year-old teams were playing in the final games of the Charleston Invitational Tournament. For the first time in post-season play, neither team won.

The All-Stars lost their bid for the championship to the Cape Americans by the score of 4-3. The score indicated just how close the game was. After four innings, the score was all tied up at three.

Marland Beaudean was looking good in the early innings but seemed to tire. With the score tied at three, Mike Moore was asked to stop another rally as he has done all year, but a sore arm held him back. Doug Chessor came in to fill the shoes and got them out of the fourth. However, he gave up a solo homer by MVP Darrell Pannier which was the game winning blow.

Sikeston had their shot in the sixth as Moore finally pitched and was effective despite the tender limb. He struck out the side and was the leadoff batter for the All-Stars. They sent up two of their best hitters in Moore and Doug Chessor, but came up empty.

Pannier was the winner in the championship rematch and Doug Chessor collected the final loss in a long season.

In the consolation game, the Aces of Sikeston were defeated by East Prairie 13-4. It would seem to be a laugher, but the game was very close until the fourth inning.

After three complete innings, the score was knotted at four. Damon Deal then gave way to Vince Howard who pitched the fourth. Vince allowed only a single, but three walks and his error gave East Prairie four runs. John Gilbow then pitched the fifth. Two hits and three walks sent five East Prairie across the plate for their eleven runs.

Vince Howard was the loser with Danny Marcum picking up the win. It would seem that neither team relied on their pitching as seven of the game's hit were for extra bases. Two were homers by Deal of the Aces and McIntire of the victors.

The Aces were recognized by the tournament officials for their manners and received the sportmanship trophy.

The All-Stars reached the finals by downing the Aces of Sikeston 6-4 in a game many felt should have been for the championship. The fans and players were excited about seeing the two teams play one another, and they were not disappointed.

The Aces broke on top with one run via an RBI double by Mike Burnett. The All-Stars came right back with a run of their own as Mike Moore singled to drive in David Braden. The second inning proved to be the undoing of the Aces as three All-Star runs scored. With men on first and second with two out, Brad Bloemer hit a grounder to third. Instead of simply touching third, he threw wildly to first which allowed two runs to score. Bloemer was then hung up between second and third and the throw from the Aces catcher went into left accounting for the only two Aces boo-boos and three All-Star tallies.

The only All-Star error allowed two runs to score in the sixth after Burnett, Howard, and Deal had loaded the bases with clean singles. Steve Coffey hit what looked like the third out to the secondbaseman who let it go through his legs, good for the final two tallies of the game.

Damon Deal allowed four of the All-Star runs and got the loss. Todd Baker won the game with relief help from Mike Moore who came to pitch in the sixth with the bases loaded and no outs. He struck out the side to end the game and give him the save.

In Friday action, the All-Stars from Sikeston used the big inning to put Benton out of the tournament by the score of 9-0. The All-Stars scored six runs on five hits, Bloemer, McPherson, and Steward doubled in the inning with Doug Chessor ramming out a triple to spark the explosion.

Todd Baker got the win with three innings pitched. In those three, he struck out five, walked two and gave up one hit. Doug Chessor threw the next three and had seven fans, one walk and give up one hit.

Second IN COMMAND

Daily Standard Sportswriter

The St. Louis football Cardinals were notified Saturday that center Tom Brahaney has a broken bone in his foot and will miss the next four to six weeks. All Big Red fans hope that the injury plague that may have cost their team a playoff berth a year ago isn't starting again. But, when you talk about injuries, you have to consideer the eerie situation in Anaheim, Calif., where the California Angels recently employed a real, live witch to try to rid them of a strange and disturbing "jinx."

When people in connection with the Angel situation first noticed the weird things happening to their players they probably joked about it. But, consider now the happenings and you, too, will begin to wonder.

Multi-millionaire Gene Autry thought he had purchased the 1977 A. L. West title by hiring expensive free agents Don Baylor, Bobby Grich and Joe Rudi. As of today the Angels aren't in first place -- or anywhere close. Grich and Rudi are out of action, injured, and Frank Tanana has a sore arm.

It all started back in 1962...

Ken McBride was an All Star pitcher for the American League back that year. Late in the year his car was hit in the rear and, pitching with a bad back, McBride lost his last 10 decisions. His career was over.

Another moundsman, Dick Wantz, died of a brain tumor in 1963.

Reserve infielder Chico Ruiz died in a car wreck just a mile from his home and, in the late 60's, Minnie Rojas had his spine severed in yet another auto mishap. We're not talking about a rash of bruised fingers here. This is death, and a lot of it, on one team in a short time!

Bobby Valentine seemed to have a brilliant career ahead when he crashed into an outfield wall at Anaheim Stadium and broke his leg in two places. Valentine was hitting over .300 at the time. Today he is a .158-hitting reserve for the New York Mets.

Lee Stanton was off to a brilliant start that same year when he broke his hand in a game that saw him rip three homeruns against the Orioles. He never was the same for the Angels, although he does finally seem to be coming back with the expansion Seattle Mariners this year.

Want more incidents?

Pitcher Bruce Heinbecher was killed in an accident, just minutes from the team hotel during the spring of 1974. Nolan Ryan lost eight straight games after hurting his arm in 1975. He never did pitch well last year, although he is a stronger pitcher this summer.

Bobby Bonds broke a hand in a preseason game and played in pain throughout 1976 and, this past winter, Mike Miley became the latest victim of the "Angel Curse" when he was killed in an auto accident at the age of 23.

Just the other day the Angels called in a witch to help them in their plight. She said the "jinx" on the Angels was the strongest she had ever opposed. Later that same day the previously sore-armed Tanana went out and blanked the Baltimore Orioles.

One can only hope that the "jinx" is now broken and this serious chain of events is stopped.

Can the Cardinals catch the Phillies?

Obviously, until it is mathematically impossible, the answer must be, "yes." But, what are the Redbirds' chances?

As of Saturday morning, St. Louis trailed the Phillies by eight games. The Phils had 43 games left and St. Louis 41. If Philadelphia played around .550 ball, which a penant contender should plan to do if they are to stay ahead, the Cards would be forced to run up a record of 32-9 to tie. If the Phils play break-even ball, St. Louis must go 29-12, which is over 70 percent winning.

However, if your memory stretches back to 1964 Cardinal fans, you know anything is possible.

Austin has Wheeling lead

WHEELING, W.Va. (AP) — Scrambling to an even-par 72 by overcoming some admittedly poor putting, Debbie Austin held a two-stroke lead over LPGA glamour girl Laura Baugh following Saturday's second round of the $50,000 Wheeling LPGA Classic.

Miss Baugh, perhaps the best-known player on the ladies' circuit despite the fact she's yet to win a tournament in five years on the tour, fired a two-under par 70 for a two-day total of 71-70-141.

A shot back of Baugh at two-under-par 142 is another tour non-winner, Kathy Farrer, one of two golfers to shoot three-under-par 69s on a bright sunshiny late summer day over Ogle-bay Park's rugged par 72, 6,-150-yard Speidel Course.

Jan Stephenson also fired a 69 to deadlock U.S. Women's Open champion Hollis Stacy and Joyce Kazmierski at one-under-par 143. Miss Stacy, shooting an up-and-down round that included five birdies and five bogies, is at 71-72-143, while Miss Kazmierski salvaged an eagle three on the par-five, 450 yard 18th hole to shoot a one-over-par 73 and a 70-73-143 total.

Tied at one-over 145 are Bonnie Lauer, Gloria Ehret, and Debbie Massey. Miss Ehret, who shot a 70 over the par 72, 6,150 Speidel layout, and Miss Massey, who fired a 71, both had under-par rounds Saturday.

Miss Baugh will be trying to avoid Sunday a finish similar to the one she endured here a year ago. In 1976 she was the co-leader entering the final day of play with the identical score she has this year (71-70-141), but then skied to a five-over 77 and wound up finishing tied for third.

Rasmussen throws 5-hitter

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Keith Hernandez slugged a three-run homer to highlight a five-run, sixth-inning and Eric Rasmussen pitched a five-hitter as the St. Louis Cardinals defeated the San Diego Padres 7-1 Saturday night.

Mike Anderson added a homer and two singles for the Cardinals and Rasmussen, 10-11, added a two-run double in the sixth-inning outburst.

Randy Jones, last year's National League Cy Young Award winner, took the loss to lower his record to 5-10.

Hernanadez' home run broke open the game as he belted a Jones' pitch into the right field seats after Garry Templeton had reached first on an infield hit and Ted Simmons drew an intentional walk.

Anderson and Ken Reitz followed the homer with singles, sending Jones to the showers. Rasmussen then delivered his two-out double off reliever Dave Freisleben.

San Diego scored in the fifth on a balk by Rasmussen.

St. Louis opened the scoring with an unearned run in the second inning as the result of a throwing error by Jones. Anderson singled with one out and Jones threw wildly to first baseman Dave Kingman in an attempt to keep the runner close to the base. Anderson went to third on the error and then scored on a groundout by Reitz.

Anderson smacked his two-out solo home run in the fourth inning.

After Rasmussen balked the run home in the fifth, the Padres wasted an opportunity to add more. Jerry Turner opened the inning with a walk and Bill Almon and Mike Champion followed with singles to load the bases with no outs. Second base umpire Doug Harvy then called a balk on the St. Louis pitcher, scoring Turner.

Rasmussen pitched out of further trouble. Jones flied out and after an intentional walk to Gene Richards, again loading the bases, Gene Tenace popped out and Mike Ivie flied out.

Lohr not keen on recent wet weather

It's been hot and dry in this part of the country much of the summer, but of late the skies have often been cloudy and the rains have fallen. Farmers may have a different view, but the rain couldn't have come at a worse time in the opinion of Jim Lohr, head coach of the Southeast Missouri State University football team.

Lohr's Indians began preseason drills on Aug. 11, but many of the planned practice sessions have been frustrated by the wet weather. "We've spent exactly as much time inside as have outside," Lohr said, "We've really been stymied by the weather."

The Tribe did get in some contact work Tuesday and little more on Wednesday, but a heavy scrimmage set for Wednesday was washed out and rescheduled for Saturday (Aug. 20).

That would seem to be about the right time for one of the traditional intrasquad games between the 20-yard lines, except that there won't be any of those for the Indians this fall. The coaching staff, according to Lohr, has instead decided to concentrate on controlled scrimmages.

"We're going to create situations in scrimmages which we know we will face, and concentrate on those," Lohr explained.

Lohr said his squad reported in good physical condition, but many players have already sustained injuries, despite the limited workouts. None of the ailments are major, according to the coach, but they are keeping some key players out of practice a day or two at a time.

The result of both the weather and the injuries, according to the coach, is that the team is "behind on unit-type stuff and techniques." Lohr said the team is not as far along as it was at this time a year ago and certainly not as advanced as he would like it to be.

There are 29 Southeast Missouri State lettermen in camp, but unfortunately they are not neatly distributed at every position.

"I won't say this is our biggest weakness, but the biggest thing we have to come up with is a good safety and two split receivers," said the Indian head coach. "These are our inherent weaknesses. We've got some good prospects, but we haven't settled on anyone yet."

North holds WGC lead

HARRISON, N.Y. (AP) — Lanky Andy North unlocked the biggest logjam of the '70s with a six-under-par 65 that staked him to a three-stroke lead Saturday in the third round of the $300,000 Westchester Golf Classic.

The 6-foot-4, 27-year-old North, who has yet to win in five years of tour activity, started the day one stroke behind a group of seven players who shared the lead—the largest number of men tied for the top since the first round of the 1969 PGA National Championship.

He swept by them all with a five-under-par 31 on the front side and an erratic back nine 34 over the hilly, windswept, 6,603-yard Westchester Country Club course. He finished with a 201 total, 12 under par.

He missed five of the last nine greens but one-putted to save par on four of them.

Tom Weiskopf and Howard Twitty put on closing rushes to tie for second at 204 with 18 holes to go in the chase for a $60,000 first prize. Each had a two-under-par 69.

Leonard Thompson shot a 70 in the mild, breezy weather and was next at 205, four shots back.

Next came a group of four at 207, six under par. They included Tom Watson, winner of both the Masters and British Opens this season, former Master title-holders Charles Coody and George Archer, and Mac McLendon. Watson and Archer had 68s, McLendon 70 and Coody 72.

Thompson, Twitty, Weiskopf and Coody all started the day in a tie for the lead with Rod Curl, Miller Barber and Jim Wiechers, all of whom drifted back in the pack. Wiechers and Barber had struggling 73s and three round totals of 208. Curl was 74-209.

Jack Nicklaus shot 68 but was an all-but-impossible 12 strokes back at 213. Johnny Miller had 69-208. Defending title-holder David Graham was out of it at 72-217.

Jatski wins on disqualification

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (AP) — William Murray's Jatski was awarded the victory in the $113,600 Travers Stakes at Saratoga Saturday when Run Dusty Run, who crossed the finish line first, was disqualified and placed second.

Run Dusty Run, owned by the Golden Chance Farm, apparently had shed his perennial runner-up tag when he outdueled Jatski in a stirring stretch duel and scored by a nose. A record crowd of 35,530 watched the 108th running of this oldest stakes race in the nation.

Run Dusty Run, who had finished second six times this year, including the Kentucky Derby and Belmont Stakes, was ridden by Darrel McHargue whose mount was charged by the stewards with bearing out and impeding Jatski in the stretch.

Silver Series, owned by Archie Donaldson, finished third in the field of 14 3-year-old colts, 4¾ lengths behind Jatski.

Royals move to 1st in West

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Al Cowens drove in two runs and Doug Bird pitched three strong innings in relief as the Kansas City Royals beat the Boston Red Sox 5-2 Saturday night and squeezed into first place in the crowded American League West.

The Royals, the fourth division team to occupy first place in a week, lead Texas by 4 percentage points, Chicago by 7 and Minnesota by 10.

The Red Sox saw their lead over Baltimore and New York in the AL East shrink to 1½ games.

Boston was held hitless by Mark Littell until the Kansas City starter was removed in the sixth with a sore back.

Bosox starter Luis Tiant, 8-8, gave up four runs in 3 1-3 innings. Cowens singled home a run in the first and the Royals added three in the third. George Brett singled home Tom Poquette, who had doubled, then Cowens tripled home Brett and made it 4-0 on John Mayberry's RBI single.

Steve Mingori, who came in for Littell, gave up two runs in the seventh inning on a RBI double by Dwight Evans and a run-scoring groundout by Rick Burleson.

Bird notched his sixth save while the hard-luck Littell, making only his second start of the year, now is 6-4.

Amos Otis doubled home Mayberry with the Royals' fifth run in the eighth.

Soccer fans erupt again

LONDON (AP) - Soccer fans launched the new football season Saturday in an orgy of violence at a half-dozen games and a big brawl on the A1 highway linking London to the north, police reported.

More than 150 fans were arrested around the country and carloads of police detained five busloads of feuding Leeds United and Sunderland supporters in the A1 battle.

Police were out in force at major league games to prevent the rampages that marred soccer matches last season. Gerry Martucci, secretary of the Police Federation, the British Bobbies' union, declared: "We're at war. It's hair-raising having to cope with these thugs and tearaways."

The worst clash was on the A1 where fighting broke out between opposing fans at a roadhouse. The rival groups threw bricks and bottles at each other and fighting spilled out onto the highway.

Earlier, 60 fans were arrested in Birmingham, and 34 were arrested at Ipswich where hundreds of Arsenal supporters from London invaded the home team's field.

More arrests and fighting were reported at several other games. Police reported one of the main trouble spots was Mansfield in northern England where rampaged through the town, smashing shop windows and fighting running battles with police.

Kuechenberg lost

MIAMI (AP) — All-Pro guard Bob Kuechenberg will be lost to the Miami Dolphins for six to eight weeks with a lower back injury, the National Football League club said Saturday.

Kuechenberg suffered the injury last week when a Washington Redskin lineman's knee caught him in the back. He has been hospitalized ever since.

Team physician Dr. Herbert Virgin said Kuechenberg would be put in a body cast for up to six weeks.

Kuechenberg was a stater in the 1976 Pro Bowl and was still regarded as one of the outstanding offensive linemen in the NFL. His vacant spot at left guard will be filled by fifth-year pro Ed Newman, who started eight games in 1976 when injuries hit the offensive line.

Blind team wins again

BERKELEY, Ill. (AP) — For a while the Chicago Beepers were off their game. Jet planes and bulldozers were drowning out the beep of the softball and the buzz of first base.

But in the end, the blind team of teen-agers won the sightless softball series championship 20-15 against the blindfolded Berkeley Little League All Stars, and remained undefeated in nine games.

"Nice going fellows. This was a tough one," said the Beepers' manager, Ed Soucek, who works for Illinois Bell. The beeping softball was developed by the Telephone Pioneers of America, a community service organization of longtime telephone employes.

The game is played entirely by ear and the rules are simple. The 16-inch ball is hit from an adjustable rubber batting tee. Fielders attempt to grab the ball by homing in on the battery-powered beep.

Meanwhile, the batter heads toward first base — a plastic safety cone that emits a buzz. If the batter reaches first before the ball is fielded, it's a hit. If the fielder wins the race, the batter is out. The successful batters don't stay on base, nor do they try for a second or third base. But three hits still load the bases, and a fourth drives in a run.

Sighted adults serve as umpires and monitor the action.

Saturday's game was disrupted often as jet planes started coming over McArthur Field from O'Hare International Airport a few miles away. Then, at a nearby construction site, a bulldozer roared.

John Novotny, 19, who has been with the Beepers since they were organized in 1971, said, "That jet noise was a drag, but the other guys also couldn't hear the beeps and ringing bell. I think it affected us more, though."

At one point in the game the All Stars managed to pull ahead 15-14. But the construction workers stopped for lunch, the wind shifted and sent the jets to another approach, and the Beepers rallied.

Afterward, as the blind players shook hands or embraced, some of the fans, many of them relatives, put handkerchiefs to their eyes.

A defeated Little Leaguer said, "We thought we had them, but we couldn't follow the sound as well and some of us were running away from the base instead of going directly to it like they did. That's why they're so good."

The Beepers usually win over their blindfolded opponents because they are experts at playing by ear. The blind youngsters whipped a team of Austin Little Leaguers 10-0 last week. One Austin player smacked a line drive up the middle, and promptly ran straight into centerfield. He followed the sound of the beeping ball he had just hit rather than the buzzer tone set off at first base..

Cards trade vet Kessinger

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago White Sox acquired shortstop Don Kessinger from the St. Louis Cardinals Saturday in exchange for two players to be named later.

The deal was announced immediately after the conclusion of the Brewers-White Sox game in Milwaukee.

Kessinger is expected to help fill some of the leaks in the Chicago defense. Starting shortstop Alan Bannister has hit well all season but has committed 30 errors.

Kessinger hit .239 for St. Louis with no homers, four doubles and seven runs batted in this season. Last year, he played mostly at second base when rookie Garry Templeton was breaking in at shortstop.

Kessinger hit .240, had one homer and knocked in 40 runs while playing regularly as the Cards' No. 2 hitter.

Kessinger originally went to the Cardinals from the Chicago Cubs for right-handed pitcher Mike Garman after the 1975 season. He broke in with the Cubs in 1965 and was on the National League All-Star team fivetimes.

At the same time the Cardinals brought up infielder Ken Oberkfell, 21, from their New Orleans farm club. Oberkfell will be making his major league debut.

He signed as a free agent with the Cardinals May 4, 1975. This season at New Orleans, his first in AAA ball, he hit .245 with four homers and 31 RBI's and 20 stolen bases.

Hickey tries to cash in on longshot chance

CHICAGO (AP) — It's a wisp of a dream for thousands of youngsters who have played ball. For Kevin Hickey, it came true.

Until April, the 19-year-old lefthander, who works the night shift in a steel plant, hadn't thrown a baseball for three years. Now, he is a member of the Chicago White Sox organization.

Hickey was among about 200 ballplayers, aged 18 to 29, invited earlier this week to a one-day tryout camp at Comiskey Park. Some had written asking for a look; others were asked to come based on their sandlot play.

Hickey was the only one signed and will report to Sarasota, Fla., in March for spring training and then be assigned to the White Sox Double A farm club in Appleton, Wis.

He grew up and still lives only about a mile and a half from the ballpark and, like a lot of city boys, first learned how to throw a baseball against a brick wall in a school yard.

"It's like a dream come true, let me tell ya," said Hickey, who played only one year of high school baseball. "I've been a White Sox fan all my life. That's what's so unreal about this. I always wanted to play for the White Sox but I never thought it would have happened."

In April, he was persuaded by Frannie Pell, a policeman who plays ball in the John Sullivan semi-pro league in the south suburbs, to try out for the Cardinals, a team Pell catches for. Hickey not only made the team bue Manager Joe Ippolito saw major league potential and made sure to give Hickey a chance to pitch whenever scouts were around.

They came more frequently after Hickey pitched two back-to-back no-hitters and he was invited to the White Sox' camp.

"More than half of the 200 or so guys there were pitchers. I took one look and figured my chances were two—slim and none," said Hickey. "I was told they never sign anyone from these tryouts."

Hickey knows, of course, that it's a long way from sandlots on the South Side of Chicago to the major leagues. But while unusual, it's not impossible.

The Reds' Woody Fryman, now in self-imposed retirement on his farm, the Texas Rangers' Claudell Washington and the Reds' Dan Driessen all were signed from tryout camps so according to Charlie Ervanian, administrative assistant to White Sox owner Bill Veeck.

"It's been done before but the chances are still slim. This is the fourth tryout camp I've been at and this is the first boy I saw signed," said Ervanian. "There were other kids we still want to follow but he's the only one we wanted to grab up quickly."

It has been said that only about 5 per cent of the ballplayers in the minor leagues make it to the big time.

"I don't like to be cocky or nothing but I feel like I got a good chance with a lot of work," said the 6-foot-1, 170-pounder. "I have a lot of wrinkles to work out, I know. My best pitch is the fastball. It moves around a lot, dips and rises. That's what I guess they were impressed with. They said I have a live arm. Funny, I got one of the skinniest arms around."

The White Sox were sufficiently impressed to give Hickey a bonus for signing, although he won't say how much.

"When I was young, I knew I always had the chance of making the big leagues. My father always told me so. I really thought I could if I just put my mind to it but I never did," said Hickey.

"I was playing softball and never would have even thought of playing hard ball again if it wasn't for my friends. Now, I got a second chance. I just have to put my mind to it and stay in shape.

The start of each America's Cup match race in Rhode Island Sound is marked by signals and cannon shots from aboard the Race Committee boat. This year, in addition to the traditional flags and guns, the boat is equipped with thousands of dollars worth of high precision Raytheon radar and other electronic equipment to set an exact race course each day and monitor the progress of the race.

Lohr not keen on recent wet weather

It's been hot and dry in this part of the country much of the summer, but of late the skies have often been cloudy and the rains have fallen. Farmers may have a different view, but the rain couldn't have come at a worse time in the opinion of Jim Lohr, head coach of the Southeast Missouri State University football team.

Lohr's Indians began preseason drills on Aug. 11, but many of the planned practice sessions have been frustrated by the wet weather. "We've spent exactly as much time inside as have outside," Lohr said, "We've really been stymied by the weather."

The Tribe did get in some contact work Tuesday and little more on Wednesday, but a heavy scrimmage set for Wednesday was washed out and rescheduled for Saturday (Aug. 20).

That would seem to be about the right time for one of the traditional intrasquad games between the 20-yard lines, except that there won't be any of those for the Indians this fall. The coaching staff, according to Lohr, has instead decided to concentrate on controlled scrimmages.

"We're going to create situations in scrimmages which we know we will face, and concentrate on those," Lohr explained.

Lohr said his squad reported in good physical condition, but many players have already sustained injuries, despite the limited workouts. None of the ailments are major, according to the coach, but they are keeping some key players out of practice a day or two at a time.

The result of both the weather and the injuries, according to the coach, is that the team is "behind on unit-type stuff and techniques." Lohr said the team is not as far along as it was at this time a year ago and certainly not as advanced as he would like it to be.

There are 29 Southeast Missouri State lettermen in camp, but unfortunately they are not neatly distributed at every position.

"I won't say this is our biggest weakness, but the biggest thing we have to come up with is a good safety and two split receivers," said the Indian head coach. "These are our inherent weaknesses. We've got some good prospects, but we haven't settled on anyone yet."

North holds WGC lead

HARRISON, N.Y. (AP) — Lanky Andy North unlocked the biggest logjam of the '70s with a six-under-par 65 that staked him to a three-stroke lead Saturday in the third round of the $300,000 Westchester Golf Classic.

The 6-foot-4, 27-year-old North, who has yet to win in five years of tour activity, started the day one stroke behind a group of seven players who shared the lead—the largest number of men tied for the top since the first round of the 1969 PGA National Championship.

He swept by them all with a five-under-par 31 on the front side and an erratic back nine 34 over the hilly, windswept, 6,603-yard Westchester Country Club course. He finished with a 201 total, 12 under par.

He missed five of the last nine greens but one-putted to save par on four of them.

Tom Weiskopf and Howard Twitty put on closing rushes to tie for second at 204 with 18 holes to go in the chase for a $60,000 first prize. Each had a two-under-par 69.

Leonard Thompson shot a 70 in the mild, breezy weather and was next at 205, four shots back.

Next came a group of four at 207, six under par. They included Tom Watson, winner of both the Masters and British Opens this season, former Master title-holders Charles Coody and George Archer, and Mac McLendon. Watson and Archer had 68s, McLendon 70 and Coody 72.

Thompson, Twitty, Weiskopf and Coody all started the day in a tie for the lead with Rod Curl, Miller Barber and Jim Wiechers, all of whom drifted back in the pack. Wiechers and Barber had struggling 73s and three round totals of 208. Curl was 74-209.

Jack Nicklaus shot 68 but was an all-but-impossible 12 strokes back at 213. Johnny Miller had 69-208. Defending title-holder David Graham was out of it at 72-217.

JEFFERSON CITY — The Missouri Legislature opened its special session Aug. 10 to consider a $125 million building construction bill left unpassed when the general assembly adjourned June 15.

The building construction bill was not passed during the regular session because House and Senate leaders could not agree on where and what type of prison to build. House leaders and Teasdale wanted to build a medium-security prison in an urban area. The Senate wanted a maximum-security prison built in central Missouri.

Teasdale called the session after legislative leaders agreed to a compromise which provides $25 million for a medium-security prison in St. Louis and $11.6 million for construction of 10 new buildings in existing prisons including an addition to the maximum-security facility in the state penitentiary in Jefferson City.

The Senate also will consider the governor's appointments of 11 persons to state boards and commissions including Alberta Slavin of St. Louis to the Public Service Commission and Robert Aylward and J. Ernest Dunn Jr. of Kansas City to the Missouri Conservation Commission.

There have been five special legislative sessions in the last six years. The last one, called in 1975, lasted almost two weeks and cost the state more than $400,000.

JEFFERSON CITY — A black state legislator has threatened to seek a federal inquiry into the hiring practices of the Missouri Highway Department if more minority group members are not hired by January.

Rep. Fred E. Williams, D-St. Louis, said in a letter to Gov. Joseph Teasdale that he may seek a federal investigation "which may lead to withholding of federal funds."

Williams said 181 of the highway department's 5,955 employes are minority race members, which is less than 4 per cent.

Highway Department Chief Engineer Robert N. Hunter said the department has "bent over backwards in many areas of the state" trying to give minorities opportunities for employment.

Hunter said a black recruiter on the staff has tried to recruit qualified black persons "for a long time," but recent attempts at recruiting in Kansas City "did not yield a single response."

Williams said the department should redefine its definition of "qualified" minorities to include persons who could be trained for jobs.

JEFFERSON CITY — Women may continue to pay for abortions with welfare money due to a recent restraining order issued in Kansas City.

U.S. District Court Judge Elmo B. Hunter issued a temporary restraining order halting enforcement of a new state regulation that forbids the use of welfare money for abortions unless the mother's life is endangered by the pregnancy.

The restraining order was requested by a St. Louis clinic and two physicians that perform abortions. Reproductive Health Services filed suit against the Missouri Social Services Department and director James F. Walsh asking that enforcement of the regulation be stopped permanently.

The regulation was issued by Walsh last month after a directive from Gov. Joseph Teasdale in response to a U.S. Supreme Court decision that upheld Pennsylvania and Connecticut laws prohibiting welfare payments for abortions unless the mother's life was in danger.

JEFFERSON CITY — The Missouri Legislature opened its special session Aug. 10 to consider a $125 million building construction bill left unpassed when the general assembly adjourned June 15.

The building construction bill was not passed during the regular session because House and Senate leaders could not agree on where and what type of prison to build. House leaders and Teasdale wanted to build a medium-security prison in an urban area. The Senate wanted a maximum-security prison built in central Missouri.

Teasdale called the session after legislative leaders agreed to a compromise which provides $25 million for a medium-security prison in St. Louis and $11.6 million for construction of 10 new buildings in existing prisons including an addition to the maximum-security facility in the state penitentiary in Jefferson City.

The Senate also will consider the governor's appointments of 11 persons to state boards and commissions including Alberta Slavin of St. Louis to the Public Service Commission and Robert Aylward and J. Ernest Dunn Jr. of Kansas City to the Missouri Conservation Commission.

There have been five special legislative sessions in the last six years. The last one, called in 1975, lasted almost two weeks and cost the state more than $400,000.

JEFFERSON CITY — A black state legislator has threatened to seek a federal inquiry into the hiring practices of the Missouri Highway Department if more minority group members are not hired by January.

Rep. Fred E. Williams, D-St. Louis, said in a letter to Gov. Joseph Teasdale that he may seek a federal investigation "which may lead to withholding of federal funds."

Williams said 181 of the highway department's 5,955 employes are minority race members, which is less than 4 per cent.

Highway Department Chief Engineer Robert N. Hunter said the department has "bent over backwards in many areas of the state" trying to give minorities opportunities for employment.

Hunter said a black recruiter on the staff has tried to recruit qualified black persons "for a long time" but recent attempts at recruiting in Kansas City "did not yield a single response."

Williams said the department should revise its definition of "qualified" minorities to include persons who could be trained for jobs.

JEFFERSON CITY — Women may continue to pay for abortions with welfare money due to a recent restraining order issued in Kansas City.

U.S. District Court Judge Elmo B. Hunter issued a temporary restraining order halting enforcement of a new state regulation that forbids the use of welfare money for abortions unless the mother's life is endangered by the pregnancy.

The restraining order was requested by a St. Louis clinic and two physicians that perform abortions. Reproductive Health Services filed suit against the Missouri Social Services Department and director James F. Walsh asking that enforcement of the regulation be stopped permanently.

The regulation was issued by Walsh last month after a directive from Gov. Joseph Teasdale in response to a U.S. Supreme Court decision that upheld Pennsylvania and Connecticut laws prohibiting welfare payments for abortions unless the mother's life was in danger.

Deaths

Lyman C. Hazlip

DEXTER— Lyman Cletis Hazlip, 63, of 225 S. Walnut St. died Saturday at Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston.

Born Aug. 14, 1914 in the Hunterville community to the late King and Julia Dalton Hazlip, he was reared in Dexter but spent 37 years in Michigan, where he was employed for 27 years by General Motors Inc., before returning to Dexter in 1974.

On Aug. 14, 1935 in Bloomfield, he married Nita Walker, who survives.

Goza attends Circle K convention

A member of the Central Bible College, Circle K Club, in Springfield, attended the 22nd Annual Convention of Circle K International Aug. 14-17, at Radisson Muehlebach Hotel in Kansas City.

More than 650 Circle K delegates, advisers, and sponsors attended the four-day convention. From the founding of the first Circle K club in 1947 at Carthage College, Carthage, Illinois, Circle K International, North America's largest collegiate service organization, has grown to its current membership of 12,000 men and women in 650 clubs in the United States and Canada. Circle K International is sponsored by the worldwide service organization, Kiwanis International, and maintains its offices in its sponsor's downtown Chicago headquarters.

Convention delegates elected a president, six vice presidents, and a secretary to guide the organization during the 1977-78 administrative year; acted on amendments to the Circle K Constitution and Bylaws; received various awards and honors, and competed for the best Circle K International single service projects, achievement reports, and scrapbooks. The 1977-79 Circle K International Theme, "Embrace Humanity," and objectives -- enriching human life through association with the lonely, sustaining human life through health projects, saving human life through public safety, assuring the continuity of human life through the protection of natural resources, and recognizing community leaders was presented during the Keynote Program on Aug. 14.

In 1976, Americans bought 25 million cans of soft drinks and beer.

Prior to the time Leestamper became president in 1975, there was at least one other HEW investigation. It, too, was prompted by a female faculty member.

Earlier this summer the Human Rights Commission said it had been contacted about alleged discrimination against women and minorities by both the university and the city of Cape Girardeau.

At that time the commission came here to talk over the complaint with the city, but has not been in contact with the university. The city presently is formulating an affirmative action plan as a result of the hearing.

It was a reversal of position for Hayakawa, who frequently quipped during his Senate campaign last year that the United States "stole the canal fair and square and we ought to keep it." Hayakawa said last week he would back the treaty if it was as acceptable in final form as in the outline version provided by Carter.

Among prominent senators in the undecided category were Sens. Frank Church, D+Idaho, the second-ranking Democrat on the Foreign Relations Committee; Dick Clark, D+Iowa, also a member of that panel; Henry Jackson, D+Wash., and John Stennis, D+Miss., chairman of the Armed Services Committee.

Church said he supports Carter's efforts for a newtreaty but would "weigh with an open mind" the testimony offered in hearings. Clark said he was leaning toward support of the treaty but also wanted to withhold a final judgment until after the hearings.

Jackson and Stennis did not indicate if they were leaning in either direction. An aide to Sen. Jacob Javits, R+N.Y., another key member of the Foreign Relations Committee, said he could best be described as undecided, but was leaning in favor of the treaty.

In addition to Church, Clark and Javits, others described as uncertain but tending to support it were Sens. Jackson and Stennis did not indicate if they were leaning in either direction. An aide to Sen. Jacob Javits, R+N.Y., another key member of the Foreign Relations Committee, said he could best be described as undecided, but was leaning in favor of the treaty.

In addition to Church, Clark and Javits, others described as uncertain but tending to support it were Sens. James Abourezk, D+S.D.; Joseph Biden, DDel.; Dale Bumpers, D+Ark.; John Culver, D+Iowa; John Danforth, R+Mo.; John Glenn, D+Ohio; Gary Hart, D+Colo.; Patrick Leahy, D+Vt.; Spark Matsunaga, D+Hawaii; Lowell Weicker, R+Conn., and Williams of New Jersey.

The list of those undecided with no announced leanings included, in addition to Baker and Robert Byrd, Jackson, Sparkman and Stennis, Sens. Henry Bellmon, R+Okla.; Lloyd Bentsen, D+Tex.; Edward Brooke, R+Mass,; Quentin Burdick, D+N.D.; Dennis DeConcini, D+Ariz.; Robert Dole, RKan.; John Durkin, D+N.H.; Thomas Eagleton, D+Mo.; Barry Goldwater, R+Ariz.; Clifford Hansen, R+Wyo.; William D. Hathaway, D+Maine; John Heinz, R+Pa.; Walter Huddleston, D+Ky.; Charles McC. Mathias, R+Md.; Thomas McIntyre, D+N.H.; Robert Morgan, DN.C.; Gaylord Nelson, D+Wis.; Sam Nunn, D+Ga.; Charles Percy, R+Ill.; Jennings Randolph, D+W.Va.; William Roth, R+Del.; James Sasser, D+Tenn.; Richard Schweiker, R+Pa.; Robert Stafford, R+Vt.; Richard Stone, D+Fla.; Herman Talmadge, DGa., and Malcolm Wallop, RWyo.

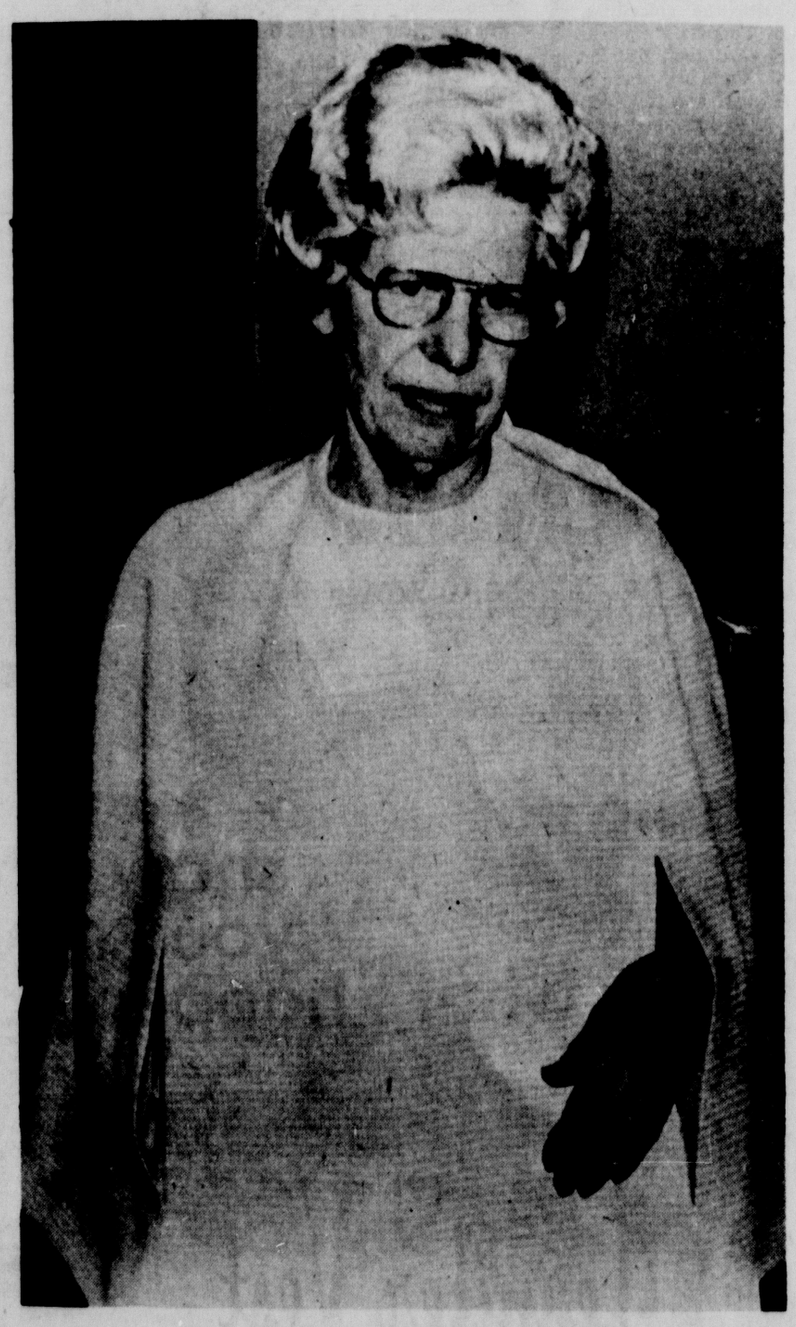
Fashions for the forgotten

Rebecca Nistendirk

Apron secures patient



Warm bed jacket

By Jill Corti

Some of us may never have had the opportunity to visit a nursing home or hospital and others, like myself may have seen plenty of them. The problem of clothing for the aging and handicapped has been an untouched problem in the past. Usually the plain hospital type gown or those on the market are too tight and too short to give the patient comfort and warmth.

A woman much aware of the problem is Rebecca Nistendirk, Clothing and Textiles Specialist for the University of Missouri of New Madrid.

Miss Nistendirk had her mother in a nursing home a number of years ago in Tallahasse, Fla. A nurse taking care of her suggested to Miss Nistendirk that she would make her mother a dress that opened down the back. At the time she refused but later she took it upon her self to design a dress that did not exactly open down the back but rather down the side.

Since that time, Miss Nistendirk has designed clothing especially for the handicapped and aging persons.

Many of our older citizens need help when dressing. They may also have to have help in selection and purchasing of clothes.

The factors Miss Nistendirk considers most important for choosing the right type of clothes are convenience, comfort, safety and psychological needs.

According to Miss Nistendirk, the convenience factor in clothin, is that being articles of clothing that are easy to take on and off and that the clothin provide pockets for the person to store a handkerchief, comb, mints or whatever. Comfort, she added is that again the garment has openings to get in and out of easy. And the most important thing is that the clothing is roomy for the person who sits or lies down almost of the time. Sometimes, however too loose a clothing item can be uncomfortable and dangerous because they bunch up and bind a person.

For safety sake clothing should be made of flame retardant fabrics. The psycological needs of color and design of fabric makes a person feel more gay and cheerful in the settings they are in. The most favorite color according to Miss Nistindirk is blue.

Miss Nistindirk has designed clothing to meet these needs, she has designed a one piece dress, lap robe, slips, gowns, mens caftans and slacks.

The dress was made from a commercial pattern and adapted to the needs of the person. Many times she commented, the older woman looses her waistline and the fat tends to move slowly downward making the body have a pear shape, to hide this problem, she has designed the dress with a long torso styles.

The dress opens at the center of the back collar and curves across the shoulder, underarm and side seam down to the long waistline. A split skirt is used with the opening in the back free of fasteners, this helps the dress not to become wrinkled and gives added ease in dressing and bathroom needs. Long sleeves are used for warmth which Miss Nistindirk stressed is needed for those patients with poor circulation. Pockets are optional and the neckline of the pattern can be changed to suit the person and to help camouflage rounded shoulders. It should be noted that a color will add warmth and fit.

Because of Miss Nistindirk and her sister's experience with institutional laundries she has designed the clothing to use snaps often used on slip covers or the pressure tape known as Velcro. Buttons are discouraged as they often pop off, are broken and hard on the tender skin of the body.

The lap gown was designed with the same material as the dress, gives added pleasing appearance, warmth and protection. The lap gown is rather wide and long and is lined with outing flannel. The gown is gathered across the width and a tie is sewn on.

Cotton slips or gowns with built up shoulders may be altered to fit the needs of a elderly or handicapped woman. Slips should be opened down one of the existing seams with some facing added and sew pressure tape or the slipcover snaps on the sides and one strap for easy on and off.

Presently the auxiliary of the Pemiscott Nursing Home is making these gowns and dresses for their patients and are also planning a September 20 show to display the fashions.

Miss Nistindirk has done a demonstration at the extension clubs of Pemiscot, Dunklin and New Madrid counties and has clearance to do such a demonstration in Mississippi, Stoddard and Scott Counties.

Miss Nistindirk is in hopes of spreading the word of this type of clothing for patients who are handicapped or elderly patients in nursing homes as it is a much needed necessity.

weddings

Mrs. Wilson Kevin Bales

SPRINGFIELD – Julia Ann Harrington became the bride of Wilson Kevin Bales at the St. Agnes Cathedral at Springfield.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Harrington and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Bales of Bronaugh. Grandmother of the bride is Mrs. J. F. Altom of Sikeston.

The bride wore a floor length gown of white silk organza, styled with a Victorian neckline, long fitted sleeves and a high rise waist all detailed with French imported Chantilly lace. The skirt featured tiers of organza edged with matching lace that gathered at the waist to form an apron effect and fell to an aisle wide chapel train. A wide brimmed hat with matching lace and silk illusion completed her attire.

A cascade of yellow and peach sweetheart roses, dogwood and stephanotis was carried by the bride. Her jewelry included a ruby necklace a gift from the groom and an Irish wedding ring from her aunt.

Mrs. Gerald Miller was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Susan Colburn and Mrs. Fred Marshall.

Ken Bales served his brother as best man. Groomsmen were Gerry Miller and Steve Stewart.

Guests were seated by Bob Harrington, brother of the bride, Ed Post and Bruce Keasler.

Michael Harrington, brother of the bride served as candlelighter.

A champagne reception for the couple and their guests was held at the Sheraton Inn.

The couple will be making their home in Springfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Lawrence

A garden wedding at the home of the bride was the setting for the wedding of Bonnie Marble and Bruce Lawrence. Manley Luscombe of Sikeston performed the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Marble and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Lawrence all of Sikeston.

The bride chose to wear the same organdy and eyelet dress that her mother had worn 25 years ago. The gown featured a sweetheart neckline short sleeves with long eyelet organza gloves coming to a point over the hands. The hooped skirt fell to the floor with a long flowing train. Tiny self covered buttons accented the back. The bride's head piece was a tiara of flowers matching the bridal bouquest. A string of pearls which was a wedding gift of the groom completed the ensemble.

A cascade of silk beige delphinium and stephanotis was carried on a lace covered Bible that the grooms parents had given her.

Mrs. Connie Lambert, sister of the bride was matron of honor Bridesmaids were Deena Dollar, Tammy Houchin both of Sikeston and Beverly Marble of Alexandria, La.

A candlelight reception followed at the home of the bride.

The bride is a 1976 graduate of Sikeston High School and attended Freed-Hardeman College at Henderson, Tenn. She is employed at the University of Mississippi at Oxford.

The groom is a 1975 graduate of Sikeston High School and is a senior at the University of Mississippi at Oxford.

The couple is making their home at Oxford.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Johnson

GORDONVILLE – The Zion United Methodist Church was the setting for the evening wedding of Pamela Ann Macke and Stanley C. Johnson. The Rev. M. O. Eisenhaver officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Weldon Macke of Gordonville and the groom is the son of Mrs. Marion C. Johnson of Sikeston.

The bride chose her gown in sheer organza and French imported Chantilly lace fashioned with a beaded and scalloped lace bib-effect overlay on the front bodice with a high neckline. The long fitted sleeves were cuffed in the scalloped lace. A deep organza ruffled flounce topped with scalloped lace bordered the hemline and the attached chapel train.

A jeweled lace tiara type cap secured the chapel length lace trimmed veil.

A crescent bouquet of white Japhet orchids, white mini-carnations and orange roses was carried by the bride.

Mrs. Brian Clark of Marion, Ill., served as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Rose Drury of Bloomsdale, Sharon Sudfeld of Independence and Rusalyn Andrews of Scott City.

John Sample of Annapolis served as the groom's best man. Groomsmen were Wayne Noe and James Baker both of Sikeston and Mike Brugnara of Rolla.

Barbara Macke, sister of the bride, served as flowergirl.

Candlelighters were Mrs. James Austin of Cape Girardeau and Linda Yeargain of Farmington.

Guests were seated by Mike Patterson and Rick Spears both of Sikeston.

A reception for the couple and their guests was held at the Educational building following the ceremony.

The bride is a 1973 graduate of Jackson High School and a 1977 graduate of Southeast Missouri State University at Cape Girardeau where she received a bachelor of science degree in chemistry. She will be a graduate teaching assistant at the University of Missouri at Rolla in the chemistry department.

Dear Ann Landers.....

Father's van leads to son beating

Dear Ann Landers: I'll get right to the point. I'm a guy who graduated from high school in June. My dad is considering buying a van from his brother. It's really neat, has all the extras including mag wheels. Dad borrowed it from his brother to try out for awhile.

He told me I could drive it, but only when he was along because he didn't want to take any chances. Dad had to go out of town for three days. On the second day the temptation was too much. I took the van to show off for some of my pals. I was only gone a couple of hours. When I got home Dad was there -- decided to shorten his trip.

The minute I walked into the house the yelling started. I never saw him so mad in my whole life. He gave me two choices, a whipping or losing the privilege of driving my own car for two months. I said, "Some choice. Why don't you just give me the electric chair?"

That got to him. He started slapping me on the backside. Then he took off his belt and hit me with that. It hurt plenty. I only had on my tennis shorts. He also took my car keys and said, "You'll see these again when you're 18." (That's three months off.)

Mom thinks the punishment is too harsh. I think it's miserable. What do you think? --Rick

Dear Rick: I agree with both you and your mother. By the time this letter appears, I'll bet your dad has realized he acted in haste and has already softened the "sentnece." After giving you a choice, he made his own and went further than he should have. Belts are for holding up pants -- not for hitting people.

Dear Ann Landers : I have a solution for the woman whose husband likes her side of the bed better, once he is asleep. I used to have the same problem.

When the snoring started, I grabbed my pillow, got out of bed and crawled in on his side. It took 60 seconds and no arguing.

Funny thing, after a week or so he stayed on his own side. -- Victorious

Dear Vic: How logical! I never would have thought of it.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm sick and tired of the way you come out for teenage privacy. The reason these kids insist on privacy is because they don't want their parents to find the pot or birth-control pills they have hidden in their bedrooms or other secret places.

They think nothing of invading our privacy -- 24 hours a day -- demanding the run of the house, doing as they darn well please. They are rude, sloppy and want to do their own thing. No one is supposed to question what they are up to -- or into.

Your children must be at least in their 30s so what do you know about teenagers? A kid's room is where his parents let him live, so knock it off. -- From Tennessee

Dear Ten: I don't know what kind of problems you are having with your teenagers but I'll bet they are considerable. Kids live up to or down to their parents' opinion of them. That's your problem.

It's not always easy to recognize love, especially the first time around. Acquaint yourself with the guidelines. Read Ann Landers's booklet, "Love or Sex and How to Tell the Difference." For a copy, mail 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Elgin, Ill. 60611.

The World Trade Center, dedicated April 4, 1973, on Manhattan's lower West Side, has two towers of 110 stories, each attaining a height of 1,350 feet. Eventually some 50,000 persons will work in these two edifices which briefly were the world's tallest buildings. The World Trade Center has been surpassed in height by Chicago's Sears Tower which has 110 stories and is 1,454 feet high, The World Almanac says.

GORDONVILLE – The Zion United Methodist Church was the setting for the evening wedding of Pamela Ann Macke and Stanley C. Johnson. The Rev. M. O. Eisenhaver officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Weldon Macke of Gordonville and the groom is the son of Mrs. Marion C. Johnson of Sikeston.

The bride chose her gown in sheer organza and French imported Chantilly lace fashioned with a beaded and scalloped lace bib-effect overlay on the front bodice with a high neckline. The long fitted sleeves were cuffed in the scalloped lace. A deep organza ruffled flounce topped with scalloped lace bordered the hemline and the attached chapel train.

A jeweled lace tiara type cap secured the chapel length lace trimmed veil.

A crescent bouquet of white Japhet orchids, white minicarnations and orange roses was carried by the bride.

Mrs. Brian Clark of Marion, Ill., served as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Rose Drury of Bloomsdale, Sharon Sudfeld of Independence and Rusalyn Andrews of Scott City.

John Sample of Annapolis served as the groom's best man. Groomsmen were Wayne Noe and James Baker both of Sikeston and Mike Brugnara of Rolla.

Barbara Macke, sister of the bride, served as flowergirl.

Candlelighters were Mrs. James Austin of Cape Girardeau and Linda Yeargain of Farmington.

Guests were seated by Mike Patterson and Rick Spears both of Sikeston.

A reception for the couple and their guests was held at the Educational building following the ceremony.

The bride is a 1973 graduate of Jackson High School and a 1977 graduate of Southeast Missouri State University at Cape Girardeau where she received a bachelor of science degree in chemistry. She will be a graduate teaching assistant at the University of Missouri at Rolla in the chemistry department.

The groom is a 1974 graduate of Sikeston High School and is a senior at the University of Missouri at Rolla.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnson are making their home at Rolla Route 5.

Mrs. Michael C. Frier

A midsummer wedding at the First Baptist Church provided the setting for the marriage of Cathy Lee Loper and Dr. Michael C. Frier. The Rev. George Cummins performed the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Charles E. Loper of Dexter and the groom is the son of Mrs. Ralph Clark of Okeechobee, Fla. and Charles Frier of Orlando, Fla.

The bride wore a bridal creation of white organza trimmed in Venise lace. A sweetheart neckline, capelet sleeves and a single full hemline flounce edged in Venise lace were special features of the gown. Matching lace motifs accented the bodice and were scattered across the front hem flounce.

A fingertip veil of sheer bridal illusion was secured to a Camelot cap covered in matching Venise trim.

A bouquet of white gardenias and stephanotis was carried by the bride.

Maid of honor was the brides sister Presley Ann Loper. Bridesmaids were Sherry Anderson of Springfield, Ill., Donna Loper, sister of the bride and Valerie Pierce of Dexter.

The bridegroom chose his father as his bestman. Groomsmen and ushers were Robert Frier, brother of the groom, Larry Russell of Greenfield, Dr. Fred Bodenhammer of Sedalia and Gary Trammell of Dexter cousin of the bride.

A reception for the couple and their guests were held at the home of the bride.

The bride and groom are both graduate of the Southern College of Optometry. Both are practicing optometrist in Greenfield area. They are making their home in Greenfield.

Dear Ann Landers.....

Father's van leads to son beating

Dear Ann Landers: I'll get right to the point. I'm a guy who graduated from high school in June. My dad is considering buying a van from his brother. It's really neat, has all the extras including mag wheels. Dad borrowed it from his brother to try out for awhile.

He told me I could drive it, but only when he was along because he didn't want to take any chances. Dad had to go out of town for three days. On the second day the temptation was too much. I took the van to show off for some of my pals. I was only gone a couple of hours. When I got home Dad was there -- decided to shorten his trip.

The minute I walked into the house the yelling started. I never saw him so mad in my whole life. He gave me two choices, a whipping or losing the privilege of driving my own car for two months. I said, "Some choice. Why don't you just give me the electric chair?"

That got to him. He started slapping me on the backside. Then he took off his belt and hit me with that. It hurt plenty. I only had on my tennis shorts. He also took my car keys and said, "You'll see these again when you're 18." (That's three months off.)

Mom thinks the punishment is too harsh. I think it's miserable. What do you think? –Rick

Dear Rick: I agree with both you and your mother. By the time this letter appears, I'll bet your dad has realized he acted in haste and has already softened the "sentnece." After giving you a choice, he made his own and went further than he should have. Belts are for holding up pants – not for hitting people.

Dear Ann Landers : I have a solution for the woman whose husband likes her side of the bed better, once he is asleep. I used to have the same problem.

When the snoring started, I grabbed my pillow, got out of bed and crawled in on his side. It took 60 seconds and no arguing.

Funny thing, after a week or so he stayed on his own side. -- Victorious

Dear Vic: How logical! I never would have thought of it.

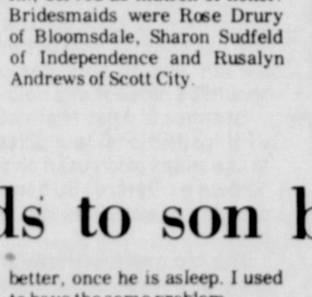
Dear Ann Landers: I'm sick and tired of the way you come out for teenage privacy. The reason these kids insist on privacy is because they don't want their parents to find the pot or birth-control pills they have hidden in their bedrooms or other secret places.

They think nothing of invading our privacy -- 24 hours a day -- demanding the run of the house, doing as they darn well please. They are rude, sloppy and want to do their own thing. No one is supposed to question what they are up to – or into.

Your children must be at least in their 30s so what do you know about teenagers? A kid's room is where his parents let him live, so knock it off. -- From Tennessee

Dear Ten: I don't know what kind of problems you are having with your teenagers but I'll bet they are considerable. Kids live up to or down to their parents' opinion of them. That's your problem.

It's not always easy to recognize love, especially the first time around. Acquaint yourself with the guidelines. Read Ann Landers's booklet, "Love or Sex and How to Tell the Difference." For a copy, mail 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Elgin, Ill. 60611.



The World Trade Center, dedicated April 4, 1973, on Manhattan's lower West Side, has two towers of 110 stories, each attaining a height of 1,350 feet. Eventually some 50,000 persons will work in these two edifices which briefly were the world's tallest buildings. The World Trade Center has been surpassed in height by Chicago's Sears Tower which has 110 stories and is 1,454 feet high, The World Almanac says.

Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Lynn Johnson

Jane Marie Shy became the bride of Nelson Lynn Johnson recently at the First Christian Church. The Rev. Paul Walker performed the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Shy and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Marion Johnson all of Sikeston.

The bride's gown was fashion of white dacron polyester organza, featuring empire waistline, with full bishop sleeves. Scalloped imported French Chantilly lace highlighted the pearled bodice, sleeves and hemline that swept to a chapel train.

The fingertip, two-tiered veil of imported English silk illusion was attached to a Camelot headpiece of Chantilly lace and seed pearls.

A bouquet of pink rose buds, surrounded by baby's breath and pink ribbons was carried by the bride.

Honor attendants for the couple were Claudia Shy of Claremore, Okla., and Harry Pratt of Sikeston.

Guests were seated by Lynn Shy of Eugene, Oregon.

A brunch was served following the ceremony at the Ramada Inn.

The bride is a 1975 graduate of Sikeston High School and attended University of Mississippi at Oxford. She is presently attending Southeast Missouri State University at Cape Girardeau and is employed by Shy's Drug Store at Sikeston.

The groom is a 1974 graduate of Sikeston High School and is employed at Ziegenhorn and Pratt Construction at Sikeston.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnson are making their home at 223 Edmondson.

Smoked uncooked Kielbasa (Polish sausage) may be stored in the refrigerator for about five days.

Mr. and Mrs. M. David Dealy III

FESTUS -- Miss Karen Sue Graham and M. David Dealy III were united in marriage during a candlelight ceremony recently at the First United Methodist Church of Festus. The double ring ceremony was performed by Rev. Herman Lehwald.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Graham of Crystal City, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. M. David Dealy III of Cahokia, Ill.

Miss Linda Graham, sister of the bride, served as maid of honor. Serving as bridesmaids were Mrs. Jan Bosaw, sister of the bride, Diane Rutherford of Ste. Genevieve, Karen Aufdenberg of Matthews, cousin of the groom.

The flower girls were the bride's sister, Bobbi Jo Graham and the groom's cousin, Alice Aufdenberg. Miss Jean Aufdenberg lit the candles.

The groom chose his brother, Brian Dealy, as his best man. Groomsmen were John Bosaw, brother-in-law of the bride, Ron Snow and Don Darnell of Cahokia.

Serving as ushers were Todd Graham, brother of the bride, Phil Tessereau of Crystal City and Rick Rhodes of Farmington.

Immediately following the ceremony a buffet reception was held in the Fellowship Hall of the church.

The bride, a graduate of Crystal City high school and Central Methodist College, will be teaching in a private elementary school in Algiers, La.

The groom, a graduate of Cahokia high school and Central Methodist College is an Assistant Trainmaster for Missouri-Pacific railroad in New Orleans, Louisiana. He is the grandson of R. L. Aufdenberg of Sikeston. Mr. and Mrs. Gene Aufdenberg are the parents of Alice, Jean and Karen.

Although for years and years cooks have been directed to grease just the bottom of cake pans, greasing the sides of the pan usually doesn't hurt and the sides of the cake will probably be less crumby. Greasing the sides of the cake pan is supposed to produce a cake with less volume but as a rule the difference in height is extremely small.

Mr. and Mrs. James Ray Hubbert

The First Baptist Church was the setting for the marriage of Tammey Lynn Alley and James Ray Hubbert. The Rev. Clyde Riddle officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Alley of Sikeston. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Hubbert of Oran.

The bride's gown was created by her grandmother and was bridal satan with a self ruffle going into a chapel train. The dress had a scooped neckline in front tapering to the waistline. The neckline was edged with a reembroidered lace flowing to the hemline in back and caught at the waist with a pink rose. The veil was a mantilla of silk illusion edged with Venise lace and had motifs of Venise lace scallops over the veil. The veil was of cathedral length.

A cascade of pink rosebuds centered with four white gardenias finished with baby's breath and grennery.

Sheila McKinney of Sikeston aunt of the bride served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Cheri Alley sister of the bride of Sikeston, Cindy Hubbert sister of the groom of Oran, Missie Corsere of Mt. Vernon Ill., and Eva Clayton of Fort Smith, Ark.

Danny Shackles of Vanduser served as best man. Groomsmen were Joe and Tom Hubbert brothers of the groom and Phil Hubbert of Benton and Kenny Cantrell of Sikeston.

Susan Hubbert cousin of the groom of Sikeston served as flowergirl. Ricky Alley brother of the bride and Donna Hubbert of Oran, sister of the groom were candlelighters.

Allen Heflin of Dudley was ringbearer. Guests were seated by Charles McKiney of Memphis uncle of the bride Ricky Alley of Sikeston brother of the bride, Dennis Curry of Sikeston Randy Hubbert cousin of the groom of Sikeston.

A reception followed at the church.

The bride is a 1977 graduate of Sikeston High School and is employed at IGA Foodliner.

The groom is a 1974 graduate of Scott Central High School and atttend Southeast Missouri State University at Cape Girardeau. He is employed at the J.C. Penney Auto Center at Sikeston.

The couple is making their home in Sikeston.

Keeping up with consumers — the trash compactor is one of the most popular and useful kitchen appliances to come along in recent years. Researchers at KitchenAid appliances attribute this to the fact that the compactor has proven its worth in kitchen cleanup.

These experts say because trash is reduced to as little as one-fourth its original size with a compactor, disposing of such items as cans, cartons, bottles and jars is now far less of a hassle than it used to be. (One trash bag instead of four.) . . . And, more new homes and remodeled kitchens are including the appliance as standard equipment.

Erma discovers her house is dead

By Erma Bombeck

Well, we just got home from vacation only to discover our house had died.

I knew something was fishy when we unlocked the door, walked into the kitchen, and the dog was at the kitchen table eating pizza out of an ashtray. No one in the house smokes.

"Something is wrong," I said to my husband.

"If you're referring to the brown lawn, we can reseed in the spring."

I shook my head.

"The buzzards over the garbage cans? The 84 gallons of milk in the garage? The jaundiced newspapers dotting the driveway?"

"No, I just can't put my finger on it."

"Where are you going in your stocking feet?"

"My shoes are laminated to the kitchen floor. I wonder where the kids are?"

"Why don't we follow the fruit flies?"

"They lead to the bathroom. Good Lord! Why would eat Jello in the bathroom out of a cocktail shaker?"

"I cannot believe that someone would not have watered this plant. It's brown as a bear and limp as a rag. Look at it!"

"And to think. It's plastic."

"I wonder where the mail is?"

"By the phone. They used it for scratch pads."

"I know what's missing. It's the sink. Where is the sink in this house?"

"We're too late," I sighed. "Maybe if we had come home two weeks sooner, we could have saved something."

My husband put his arm around my shoulders. "Look, this house died a month ago. There was nothing we could do. Look at this oven!"

"Don't be cruel. Surely my utility room is intact."

I was wrong. There was the smell of death everywhere. Beach towels, Stiff socks. Cutoffs. Tennis shirts, Sleeping bags. "The good times I used to have in here," I said wryly. "Listening to my laundry. Smelling my clothes for freshness. Singing out loud while I sorted socks--one black, one blue, two black, one red, one yellow, three black . . ."

"We can start over," said my husband. "They can make a park out of all this and we can build another new house and begn again."

I walked through the house one more time to absorb all the dead plants, the refrigerator with leftovers that moved, the stagnant hand-washables and the table filled with newspapers and their old horoscopes. I turned to the dog. "How can you eat at a time like this. You animal!"

POLLY'S POINTERS

DEAR POLLY — Since our area cut back in the use of water in parks and on lawns, it is no longer possible for dogs and cats to get a drink from dripping faucets or water in gutters. I have always kept a coffee can filled and changed it when I watered the lawn but I no longer do that. However I do still keep a filled can of water and have seen five cats come to it for a drink this week. Two of them were new to me and I watched to see where they went. They waited for traffic, crossed the highway to the next block. Evidently owners are forgetting that the animals outside need food as well as water. My can was empty this morning and a cat waited for my husband to fill the can. Please folks put out a can of water as a cat can go hungry but they do need water. — D.P.

The Pastor speaks

'I care'

By The Rev.
Dr. Arthur C. Fulbright

One of Sikeston's leading women of the notorious gossip group, said to me, "Pastor", I suppose you know about John Doe's divorce and remarriage," she said matter-of-factly.

My surprised look must have telegraphed a negative reply. I finally stuttered, "No. . . I . . . I didn't know."

She said, "Oh, yes, Pastor, John Doe divorced his first wife Nancy or maybe Nancy divorced him-after eight years of marriage and two children. And that's not the worst of it. Only six months later he married a divorcee named Jill. And for a month before they were married he practically lived at her house. Jill was my neighbor, and no matter what time of night I looked out my window, I saw his car."

With this gossip report, I though about John Doe. He is a leader in our community and in his church denomination. I had met John on a committee for community betterment. During our weeks of committee work I felt a deep rapport with him. He had never mentioned his marital status, and I knew nothing of the situation until this day when "the lady of gossip" informed me of the condition.

I said little to her at the time because shock overrode any other feeling. The person "the gossip" described seemed so unlike the person I had met a few months earlier. But for the rest of the day I thought a great deal about what I had heard. Perhaps John was guilty of everything "the gossip" implied. . . and even more. Perhaps he had committed many other sins. What troubled me was how I was to react.

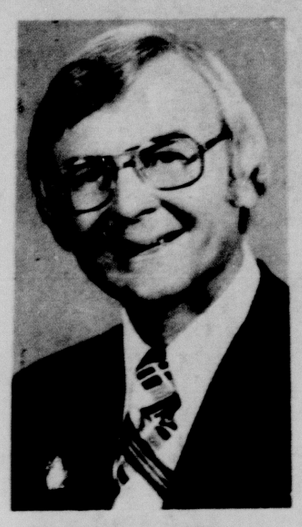
I am against divorce!!! God joined man and woman together and intended that only death break that sacred pond!!!! As a clergyman and a Christian I do whatever I can to prevent marital breakups. But divorce is certainly a fact of life in our society. I read recently that seventy (70) per cent of American homes are affected in some way by divorce.

As I lay in bed that night, after 'the gossip" informed me about John Doe, I found that I was unable to sleep, I couldn't stop thinking about John. I knew he was a leader in our city and his church. He works hard and long hours. His marital troubles must have made the day-to-day struggle even harder for him.

I thought of Jesus' parable of the good Samaritan. Did the stranger, coming upon the badly beaten Jew, inquire about the purity of his life or the depth of his religious faith? No!!! Without asking any questions, he bound up the wounds, then took the injured man to an inn where he himself paid for a bed for him. The Samaritan realized that the first need was for compassion and healing!!!

In the morning I telephoned John. After identifying myself, I said "the other day, John,.....I heard a little about your divorce and remarriage. It's none of my business, and please don't feel its necessary to explain it to me-I'm calling for only one reason: to tell you I care about you and your family!"

After a brief pause, a husky voice answered, "thanks...thanks for being concerned." John went on to say a little about his situation, but only in general terms. We both knew it wasn't necessary to say more.



Dr. Arthur C. Fulbright

One time during the conversation his voice broke and he stopped talking. He finally continued, "of all the Pastors in our city, you are the only one who has expressed any real concern for me and my family. Most of them avoid me--now. Some won't even acknowledge that they know me, either in meetings or on the streets of our city. One of my friends told me he couldn't be of any help to me. He is a good friend to both Nancy and me and said that befriending me would be a slight to Nancy."

My words of response to John seemed shallow and futile. All could answer in several different ways--was, "John,...I care!!!!"

John and I talked for ten to fifteen minutes. The heaviness still had not gone from my soul. However, I felt much better for having called John, but my gesture....really seemed inadequate.

I bowed my head and prayed: "Lord, I wish I could heal John's hurt and take away the pain. I wish I could really help him and his family."

Then that "Inner voice" of the Holy Spirit of God said, Arthur, "you did. You eased the pain--only I can totally erase it. You reached out to him in Christian love. Have I ever asked more than this from my disciples?"

Another portion of Holy Scripture flashed into my mind. A woman had been caught in the very act of adultery and was brought before Jesus for pronouncement of sentence. They expected the Lord to enforce the rule of having her stoned, but he refused to give sanction to those plans.

Our Lord and Saviour did not condon adultery. He knew facts about the situation that the condemning crowd did not know and his evidence could clear the woman and give her a chance to live anew.

Jesus, looking at the condemning crowd, uttered one sentence. "Let him who is without sin among you be the first to throw a stone at her: and they turned aside and left the area. Jesus...then ministered to the woman with a spirit of love and forgiveness. She had the privilege to start life anew--because someone cared!!!!

God the Holy Spirit gave me one great commandment in regard to human beings: love them as totally as I love myself. When I myself fail, I already have enough self judgment and guilt without having anyone else heap more guilt on me. When I fail, I need Christians to encourage me, not to make me feel worse!!!

Why can't we love people like John Doe in the midst of their trauma? Why does their sin, or the fact that they are church leaders, horrify us? They are only frail human beings. Why can't we, as a redemptive church fellowship, extend compassionate hands in the midst of their ordeal. O.....yes, I know the answers many give: we want to wait until they've repented, or straightened out, or conformed to our standards." But now is when they really need us!!!

Thank God, in this instance I was compassionate!!! I extended a hand to John Doe, showing him that I care!!!

But how many times have I been on the other side of indifference. How many times have I stood with an accusing finger when people like John Doe need a helping hand?!!! God Help me and all Christians to be compassionate and redemptive in nature!!!!

Amen!!!

DINNER FOR THREE

Chili Beef — Rice
Salad Bowl — Garlic Bread

CHILI BEEF

Flavorsome ripe tomatoes from the garden are perfect for this.

¼ cup finely chopped beef suet
2 medium-size onions, chopped medium-fine
1¼ pounds ½-inch thick beef round steak cut into 1-inch squares
3 medium-size ripe tomatoes — peeled and quartered
½ cup water
1 clove garlic, crushed
½ tablespoon dark brown sugar
½ tablespoon chili powder
½ tablespoon red wine vinegar
Salt and pepper to taste

In a heavy 10-inch skillet slowly melt the suet; add the onions and beef and brown. Stir in the remaining ingredients. Simmer, tightly covered, until meat is tender — about 1½ hours. Makes 3 servings.

Coffee prices also were low with a 1 pound can of coffee down 4 cents to $3.82 a pound.

The price for whole frying chickens remained unchanged at 52 cents a pound, while cut up fryers went up a penny to 62 a cents a pound.

Whole milk also was unchanged at $1.63 a gallon, but 2 per cent milk was up one cent to $1.56 a gallon.

Grade A Extra Large eggs were down a penny to 81 cents a dozen, while Grade A Large dropped 2 cents to 75 cents a dozen. Grade A Medium eggs were unchanged at 62 cents a dozen.

A 1½ pound loaf of white bread sold for 64 cents a loaf up a penny from last week.

DINNER FOR THREE

Chili Beef — Rice
Salad Bowl — Garlic Bread

CHILI BEEF

Flavorsome ripe tomatoes from the garden are perfect for this.

¼ cup finely chopped beef suet
2 medium-size onions, chopped medium-fine
1¼ pounds ½-inch thick beef round steak cut into 1-inch squares
3 medium-size ripe tomatoes — peeled and quartered
½ cup water
1 clove garlic, crushed
½ tablespoon dark brown sugar
½ tablespoon chili powder
½ tablespoon red wine vinegar
Salt and pepper to taste

In a heavy 10-inch skillet slowly melt the suet; add the onions and beef and brown. Stir in the remaining ingredients. Simmer, tightly covered, until meat is tender — about 1½ hours. Makes 3 servings.

Open Mind

Explain shock treatment

Dear Open Mind:

1. Can you tell me if there are other kinds of shock treatments besides electric shock treatments? I have had nine electric shock treatments for mental illness.

2. What kind of tests can a person be given to see if he has any kind of brain damage? If there is such a thing as a brain wave test, where can I have it done?

Shakey

Technique has improved in years

Dear Writer to Open Mind:

Shock treatment was first discovered in Italy in 1938 by Cerletti and Bini. The technique has been improved, as has the equipment, over the years. Two other methods of shock treatment, Metrazol and Inxulin, are considered obsolete and are seldom used. Inhalation therapy with Indoklon may be used with the same results as electroshock, but it has a disadvantage of producing nausea.

Electro-shock is needed in the treatment of mental illnesses, such as suicidal depression, because it takes a week or two for anti-depressant drugs to take effect. Electro-shock is also used in a catatonic schizophrenic who is not eating. Some psychiatrists use it in some cases of schizophrenia to shorten the hospital stay, but this is not a universal program as the cost is sometimes prohibitive.

Duration of treatment depends clinically on the improvement shown and the alleviation of symptoms of mental illness with the desired result that they do not reoccur. However, in most cases, the symptoms do reoccur after electro-shock because the success seems to be only temporary. In stopping the symptoms of a suicidal depressant and saving his life, it is a worthwhile treatment.

Dear Sir:

Among the tests that can detect brain damage are the computerized tomography test, the brain scan test, and the brain wave test (EEG or electroencephalogram). These tests are done at the recommendation of a physician, and are performed at a number of hospitals in Missouri and Illinois.

Joy of Stitching

by ELSA WILLIAMS

GLORIOUS NEW PALETTE

I thought my readers might be interested in the behind-the-scenes story of how I went about choosing the color palette for the new Persian yarn which carries my name. Made of five two-ply strands it can be used for knotted carpets on No. 13 linen canvas or for fine petit point embroidery.

What I've tried to do is narrow the gap between the needle artist restricted by manufacturers' yarn colors and the painter who can create whatever colors he wants.

With a palette of 204 colors my new Persian yarn gives the needle artist the same freedom.

I suggest to students at my school that they use two single strands of my Persian on No. 13 canvas. Since it comes in four-ounce hanks and small 40-yard skeins, it's feasible to introduce any of the colors into a project.

The most delightful feature of the new Persian yarn is that it permits the embroiderer to arrange-two color families so they flow from one to another. If you're working with a family of reds, rusts or browns, and need a very pale tint, you may be able to lengthen your color range by adding the palest value of another family.

Betty pointed out to me that by jumping from a family of yellows to a family of golds you can get a monochromatic run of nine values!

Dear Elsa,

I enjoy making needlepoint gifts but prefer projects for my home. I've made two framed pictures and a number of pillows for my living room. Can you suggest something I might do in my dining room?

B.H.I.

Dear B.H.I.,

In the dining room at my school, the chair seats are embroidered on canvas. The design is an enlarged version of the china pattern. Since the tables are glass-topped, the seats are easily visible. You could try copying the pattern of your china for chair seats. Or you might consider creating a table top design that would be permanently on display under glass. Other small projects you might consider are napkin rings, coasters, even a sheath for your carving knife.

E.W.

NEW! An illustrated leaflet showing the stitches in Pulled Work, a variation of counted thread embroidery that's very "in" today. For a FREE copy write to Elsa Williams, Box 3788, Grand Central Station, N.Y., N.Y. 10017.

Dear Sir:

Among the tests that can detect brain damage are the computerized tomography test, the brain scan test, and the brain wave test (EEG or electroencephalogram). These tests are done at the recommendation of a physician, and are performed at a number of hospitals in Missouri and Illinois.

Joy of Stitching

GLORIOUS NEW PALETTE

I thought my readers might be interested in the behind-the-scenes story of how I went about choosing the color palette for the new Persian yarn which carries my name. Made of five two-ply strands it can be used for knotted carpets on No. 13 linen canvas or for fine petit point embroidery.

What I've tried to do is narrow the gap between the needle artist restricted by manufacturers' yarn colors and the painter who can create whatever colors he wants.

With a palette of 204 colors my new Persian yarn gives the needle artist the same freedom.

I suggest to students at my school that they use two single strands of my Persian on No. 13 canvas. Since it comes in four-ounce hanks and small 40-yard skeins, it's feasible to introduce any of the colors into a project.

The most delightful feature of the new Persian yarn is that it permits the embroiderer to arrange-two color families so they flow from one to another. If you're working with a family of reds, rusts or browns, and need a very pale tint, you may be able to lengthen your color range by adding the palest value of another family.

Betty pointed out to me that by jumping from a family of yellows to a family of golds you can get a monochromatic run of nine values!

Dear Elsa,

I enjoy making needlepoint gifts but prefer projects for my home. I've made two framed pictures and a number of pillows for my living room. Can you suggest something I might do in my dining room?

B.H.I.

Dear B.H.I.,

In the dining room at my school, the chair seats are embroidered on canvas. The design is an enlarged version of the china pattern. Since the tables are glass-topped, the seats are easily visible. You could try copying the pattern of your china for chair seats. Or you might consider creating a table top design that would be permanently on display under glass. Other small projects you might consider are napkin rings, coasters, even a sheath for your carving knife.

After the heat's last wave

Looking ahead to cuddling-cold nights

LOOKING AHEAD TO next winter's energy crisis and lowered thermostats, Stan Herman designed quilted separates that can take a 65 degree home temperature comfortably. Left, a little quilted vest in brown or gray ($16) that zips over white Pierrot-collared pajamas ($28), made from brushed Caprolan nylon for Kentelle International.

Gray or brown quilted Caprolan tabard ($35) at right tops a long cowl-necked white gown ($23) in the same fabric. For Kentelle.

By Ellie Grossman

NEW YORK (NEA) — Outside Stan Herman's studio (near the New York Public Library), the city is dissolving and floating away under extra-natural heat.

Inside, Stan Herman — neatly bearded, neatly tanned — is talking about layering.

"First, we were just going to do warm sleepwear over warm sleepwear for Kentelle, which is a new sleep and loungewear firm, but the pieces stuck to each other, so we came up with quilted pieces lined with tricot that don't stick.

"By the way, I'm sorry the airconditioning isn't better, but the view is so marvelous I didn't want to put one in down here."

Quilted pieces — a breast-warmer (or vest), a short kimono sleeve jacket, a long wrap skirt, a tabard, and a three-quarter bubble robe — all in brown or gray with white piping, in sizes petite, small and medium, from $16 to $42 . . . .

Herman is saying there actually will come nights when women will wear these things over the white brushed nylon underclothes — pajamas, a variety of long gowns — he designed for the group in the same sizes, from $22 to $27.50.

Think of it, ice on the high-rise buildings, piercing winds in the subway, why it's enough to make your eyes fill with grateful tears.

"You know, I think people's sleep habits are going to change," he continues. "As fashion changes, motions change. In the '60s, women were so self-conscious in their short skirts that the first thing they did when they sat down was smooth their skirts so nothing would show. Now, with longer hemlines they immediately cross their legs at the knee and don't worry about it.

"Well, with the energy crisis" — it suddenly becomes warmer in the studio — "people will be a little more conscious of how the bed is made, for instance. They won't jump in, they'll slip in like we did in the army so as not to undo the bedclothes. And they'll stay in one position longer because they won't be able to move with all the clothes they'll be wearing," he jokes.

Of course, most women will remove the quilted accessory pieces before going to bed. "I do think the woman should take the bubble robe off, but if it were cold enough, she could wear the tabard to bed because the elastic isn't too close to the body, and she could wear the breast-warmer, certainly."

The long skirt, he says, was made to use like a blanket to throw over your legs in front of the fire, on a night when temperatures are recorded in single numbers. Icy clean, crisp, chilling single numbers, what a wonderful . . . .

"I must tell you," Herman interrupts, "this group is the hottest thing we have on the line."

Aaaaagh!

Ambrosia is traditionally made with sliced oranges and grated coconut. But to vary or stretch this delectable dessert, add pineapple (fresh or canned in its own juice) and sliced bananas. The three-fruit and coconut combination is also delicious served over vanilla ice cream.

Fall is best time for seeding

Seeding some new and better grass into that summer-worn lawn does not have to become a major project, according to lawn and garden researchers.

Fall, they say, is the very best time – the time when nature provides conditions that work with you instead of against you. The days are still warm, and though the nights may be cool, there is plenty of warmth left in the soil to help new seed germinate and take hold.

Here are five seeding tips these experts offer to help lawn owners get the best results from a pleasant afternoon's activity around the house:

1. Mow your grass closely – about an inch high -- before you put down new seed. Then rake up as much debris as you can. Mowing short will let more sunlight in to start the new seedlings off well.

2. In selecting seed, choose a blend of seeds rather than just one type. Researchers have found that the mixture of several grasses produces a better lawn. They recommend using a blend that contains a strong component of Kentucky bluegrasses. Since the seeds of many of the best varieties of grass are extremely small, size of box or weight are not the best indicators of value. Look instead for the number of square feet the contents will cover, and keep in mind that the quality of the seed you select will show in the appearance of your lawn for many years.

3. Before spreading your seed, make sure you scratch up the soil so it will provide little cracks and crevices to protect the tiny seedlings and help them to stay moist. Seed thrown on the bare ground does not stand nearly as good a chance. Fertilize the same day with a starter fertilizer specially designed for new seeding.

4. Good light watering of the top half inch of soil is important all during the next few weeks. The tiny plants, just starting into life, will perish without continuous moisture, so keep the soil moist -- which may require watering two or three times a day.

5. When the young grass is up, don't be afraid to mow the lawn as soon as it needs it. But if the leaves have started to fall, keep them raked off so they won't smother the new shoots. The "extra" season's growth they get by being started in the fall will get the lawn off to a better start next spring.

6. After the grass has been mowed three or four times, give it a second, late fall fertilizing with your regular long-lasting fertilizer. This will keep it green longer into the winter and let you enjoy it earlier next spring.

POLLY'S POINTERS

DEAR POLLY — I would like to share my coffee stretcher. With coffee well on its way to five dollars a pound, I have been doing a bit of experimenting. I think I have come up with a good idea. I have a 12 cup automatic coffee maker and in the morning I make the usual 12 cups of coffee using the regular amount of coffee. After this coffee is gone, I make another 12 cups leaving the used grounds in and adding enough instant coffee for five cups and run it through the cycle. I think this coffee is delicious and if one wishes it may be added to again and make enough for eight cups. Here is hoping to make those coffee beans stretch. Good luck. — JOSEPH.

DEAR POLLY — To clean those pleated lamp shades that are so popular now, use a pastry brush (a new one, of course). It is much easier to get into the folds to brush out the dust. — EMMA.

DEAR POLLY — I keep a small piece of sponge in my shortening can so I can grease pans without greasing my hands. — MARGUERITE.

DEAR POLLY — My husband's parents had the same problem Mrs. A. has with mold growing on their walls which is seemingly caused by the gas heater. After trying anything and everything they were told that the stovepipe was probably stopped up with soot and after cleaning it they had no more trouble. — MRS. B.

Mary Kay consultant to seminar

Joan Grant, 123 Linda Drive, an independent Mary Kay beauty consultant, attended the 14th annual seminar of Mary Kay Cosmetics, Inc., which was held in Convention Center in Dallas, Tex. Aug. 11-13.

During the three-day seminar Mrs. Grant attended classes that dealt with skin care, glamour techniques and fashion. She was also a guest at a Star Consultant luncheon which was hosted by Mary Kay Ash, founder of the company and chairman of the board.

It was announced that Mary Kay Cosmetics, Inc., is the fastest-growing cosmetic company in the United States. It was founded in 1963 with 10 beauty consultants and had annual sales of 200,000. Last year there were over 37,000 consultants and sales were in excess of $90 million.

Mrs. Grant has been affiliated with Mary Kay Cosmetics, Inc., for the past three years.

Welcome Wagon Club organized

A Welcome Wagon Club is being established for newcomers to Sikeston.

The three organizers are also newcomers to this area.

Mrs. Lucy Sower, of 207 Powers St.; Mrs. Joan Rose, of Sikeston and Mrs. Cathy Leslie of Bertrand, who have been members of newcomer clubs in the past, located the Welcome Wagon sponsor in Sikeston, Mrs. Dorothy Williams of 121 Winter Dr., and discussed plans for the club. The three acting officers organized the club as a system, "to get new people to know each other," Mrs. Rose said.

At each monthly meeting, the group will have a business discussion, introduce the new people and have an informative type program for the benefit of the audience. At the first meeting a new person becomes acquainted with others and then later may join the club.

Anyone who has not been recently contacted by the Welcome Wagon sponsor and wishes to join the club may telephone, Mrs. Lucy Sower at 471-3420, and in the Bertrand and Charleston, Mrs. Cathy Leslie, 688-4564.

Fisher cited for paper

SCOTT CITY - Dr. John W. Fisher, a former Scott City resident and professor of engineering at Lehigh University in Bethlehem, Pa., has been awarded the American Institute of Steel Construction's 1977 T. R. Higgins Lectureship Award for a paper he wrote on "Fatigue Strength of Steel Beams with Welded Stiffners and Attachments."

Dr. Fisher was awarded $2,000 and an engraved citation. The AISC called the paper the "most significant engineering paper on fabricated structural steel published in the last five years."

Co-authors of the paper were P. A. Albrecht, B. N. Yen, D. J. Clingerman and B. M. McNamee. It was published by the Transportation Research Board, and judged by six structural engineers.

Dr. Fisher will give six lectures, including an address to the AISC National Engineering Conference in Washington.

Dr. Fisher is the son of Mrs. Nevan A. Fischer of Scott City. He attended SEMO State University, and graduated from Washington University in St. Louis. He received his doctorate from Lehigh.

His wife is the former Miss Nelda Rae Adams of Scott City. The Fishers have four children, and reside in Bethlehem.

Wheat market looks better

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — The president of Great Plains Wheat, Inc., has good news for American farmers seeking a better world market to reduce their huge surplus of wheat.

"I think the outlook for U. S. farmers, not just on a seasonal basis, is very bright," Michael L. Hall, said in an interview Monday night after the first day of the foreign market development organization's summer meeting.

"There are many signals coming up that are suggesting we will not hit the fourth consecutive worldwide bumper harvest of wheat, coarse grains and rice," he said.

Hall, forecasting a long-term demand for American grain, noted that Argentina and Canada, two top foreign wheat competitors of the United States, both expect diminished crops in 1977-78.

Making posters

Organizers of the new Welcome Wagon Club make posters to announce the first meeting on Tuesday, Sept, 6, at 7:30 p.m. in the St. Francis Xavier Catholic School Basement. All newcomers to this area are invited to attend. Making posters are, from left: Mrs. Cathy Leslie of Bertrand, and Mrs. Lucy Sower and Mrs. Joan Rose of Sikeston. Observing the project is Mrs. Dorothy Williams, Welcome Wagon Hostess.

Investment community watches fuel shortages

FROM CROCKETT SCOTT

Better markets are not visible from current news dispatches, say stockbrokers.

And fundamentals are not good. The nation faces another cold winter in all likelihood, remind investment bankers, and there are indications of continuing fuel shortages for both home heating and transportation.

The nation is not solving its energy shortage, emphasize investment houses. Only conservation measures are being considered, when we should be "going all out" for new explorations, deeper explorations with "real" tax write-offs and a "completely free market" interstate, for the sale of gas, which in the long run would make for lower prices.

Such is the summary from the people who raise the money for business and industry through the sale of stocks and bonds.

And if we are not going to let the oil and gas industry "do things their own way," then we should encourage the development of substitute fuels, it emphasized by the investment community.

For example, we could raise more corn and sugar beets for alcohol to fuel our automobiles, trucks, planes and locomotive, it notes, and to power our tugs on the inland waterways.

Of course, long term investment bankers are bullish; once the utter felly of a controlled economy in the distribution of fuels is brought home to us by a stalled economy in a vicious winter, the nation will wake up.

Meanwhile, the search goes on for equity which can be bought later, if not now.

When the market descends still further, Transamerica Corp, will be high on the list of purchase possibilities of a group of Cincinnati-based SEC registered representatives.

And a number of them quote economist Dr. Ira U. Cobleigh, who is high on the stock and who analyzes the security in a recent issue of The Market Chronicle.

Dr. Cobleigh reports that Transamerica likely will record all time high earnings for fiscal 1977. He notes that the firm is a well managed conglomerate that has been ridding itself of unprofitable subsidiaries and improving its balance sheet.

Its affiliate company, Occidental Life, is the nation's ninth largest life insurance company, says Dr. Cobleigh.

Transamerica owns 12 property casualty insurance companies that have improved their earning power in recent years through rate increases, selectivity in writing new business and better management of investments.

Another of its properties, Transamerica Title, third largest title insurance in America, has 333 offices in nine states.

Its consumer lending organization, Transamerica Finance, makes highly profitable loans to more than 500,000 individuals.

Transamerica's United Artists Corporation is renowned for its movie, television and records production. Some of its mere recent movie successes were "Network," "A Bridge Too Far," "Rocky," and "The Spy Who Loved Me."

Transamerica's two airlines are Saturn Airway (air cargo) and Trans International.

In Kansas City numerous SEC registered security analysts still like Marion Laboratories, a stock mentioned here in the past.

Marion Labs were founded by the rich and colorful owner of the Kansas City Royals baseball club, Ewing Kaufman; and named for his wife, brilliant businesswoman, Marion Kaufman.

Together the two Kaufmans have moved the firm through a decade or so of explosive earnings growth. And, according to Kansas City analysts, the future is even brighter than the past.

Around its present 11-12 price range on the big board, they would buy for the long term now: though held off if a trader, as the current market could clip any stock for a few more points on the downside.

Polaroid is another stock to study now for future purchase, in the view of some Chicago SEC-registered analysts.

Bank stock purchased by Scott County group

SCOTT CITY – A group of Scott County businessmen Aug. 12 bought the controlling interest of the Scott County Bank and Trust Co. from a St. Louis family who owned the bank for 30 years, bank President Thomas A. Uelsmann announced Saturday.

The bank now is completely locally owned, as the group bought the 85 per cent the stock owned by the Dodd family of St. Louis, Uelsmann, who has been bank president since April, said.

Along with the Dodds, about 15 owners previously held the remaining stock, he said.

Negotiations for the sale were initiated about six months ago, he said.

Five men have been named to the bank's new board of directors, with a sixth member to be named soon, Uelsmann said.

The board members include Uelsmann; Dwight Crader, a Sikeston attorney; Herman Diebold of Diebold Orchards, Inc., of Kelso; John Bohannon, owner of a Scott City dry cleaning business; and Theon Schlosser, postmaster at Scott City and owner of Ace Hardware Co. here.

With the change in ownership, Uelsmann will remain as bank president. Crader has been named vice president and Larry D. Uelsmann, an assistant vice president since March 1976, has been named vice president. Mary B. Uelsmann will retain her office as cashier, which she has held for about 30 years, Uelsmann said.

Missouri Utitities offers home insulation program

Missouri Utilities Company has announced the initiation of a Residential Insulating Program. The program is designed to finance the addition of insulation to its customers' homes.

Francis R. Lengefeld, president of Missouri Utilities, said, "Energy is the lifeline of America and we must use it wisely. The single-most important element in reducing energy consumption in the home is adequate insulation. A person whose home has no attic insulation can save as much as 35 per cent in energy consumption for home heating just by increasing the attic insulation to R-30. Also, there are further energy savings in the air-conditioning season. Since we feel insulating your home is so important, we are offering our customers a simple way of paying for it."

Under the program, our customers can finance the cost on an approved insulaton installation on their service bill for a time period of 36 months. Missouri Utilities will supply a list of authorized contractors to install the insulation and agree to finance up to $750 of such installation. The program offer is good, regardless of type of heating or cooling used.

The customer must agree and meet certain minimum requirements:

First: The customer must agree to a minimum of R-30 in the attic.

Second: The customer must be using at least one of Missouri Utilities' services.

Third: The installing contractor must be from Missouri Utilities' authorized list.

Fourth: The customer must be an owner-occupant of the resident.

Fifth: The customer must have satisfactory credit.

In explaining the meaning of "R-30", Calvin Wells, customer service representative, said, "Every material has its own resistance to the flow of heat per square foot for a given thickness. For example,10 inches thick concrete has an R-value of .08 while 10 inches thick fiberglass has an R-value of 32. In other words, it takes 44 inches of concrete (above grade) to equal the insulation value of 1 inch of fiberglass. This is called the 'thermal resistance factor' or 'R-value' for short. The higher the R-value, the better the material will be as an insulator."

It should be noted that many homes were considered well-insulated when built, but the rising cost of energy has made the insulating standards of just a few years ago obsolete. A modest expenditure for additional insulation will be repaid many times over in the years ahead.

Missouri Utilities Company will supply interested customers with the names of contractors who have agreed to install insulation under the terms of the company's program. Call your local office for more information.

Jim Tricky, informational officer at Cape Girardeau, said contractors already approved for this area are Thomas Finley Electric in East Prairie and Howard P. Staples Construction Co. in Charleston.

Pebbles heads Arvin plant

DEXTER— Gordon Pebbles is the new plant manager at the Dexter Arvin Automotives plant here, replacing T.I. Sparks, who has been transferred to Monroeville, Ala., as Arvin plant manager there.

L.K. Evans, group vice president automotive for Arvin Industries, Inc., made the announcement.

Pebbles comes to Dexter from the Monroeville plant and has been with Arvin since 1965. He was promoted to plant manager at Monroeville in 1974.

Sparks joined Arvin in 1937 and held various positions before he became superintendent of the Seymour, Ind., plant in 1955. In 1961 he was named chief industrial engineer for Arvin Automotive and 1965 he returned to Seymour as plant manager. In 1972, Sparks was chosen to establish the Arvin plant at Dexter and became its first plant manager.

New Madrid woman wins Hawaiin trip

MALDEN – Rebecca Sharp is the winner of an all expense paid trip to Hawaii.

Mrs. Sharp of Institutional Foods of New Madrid won the trip in a drawing during the annual food show at Malden Wholesale Foods.

An inch of snow falling evenly on one acre of land is equivalent to about 2,715 gallons of water, say hydrologists of the U.S. Geological Survey.

Johnson joins Cantrell's

Mark Johnson has joined the staff at Cantrell's Crossroads Real Estate.

He is a native of California where he attended the College of Marin, receiving his associate in science degree in electronics. He attended Cal State Poly Technical College on the San Luis Obispo campus where he majored in architecture, electrical engineering and electronics engineering. He was also active in student government.

In April of 1975, he moved to Morehouse where he is on the board of aldermen and is a volunteer fireman. Johnson is financial chairman for the City of Morehouse and is on the planning commission for the city. In October, Johnson will become vice president of the Kiwanis Club.

He has been active contractor for the past seven years and is presently designing the new police station for Morehouse.

Portfolio managers like low-risk policy

NEW YORK (AP) — A current analysis of the shares of International Business Machines by Merrill Lynch foresees earnings rising from $15.94 in 1976 to $17.50 or more this year and to $20 in 1978.

Many other analysts also foresee rising earnings for the world's largest electronic computer maker, but that doesn't mean they see the price per share rising also, as you might expect.

IBM, in fact, is now selling about 20 points below its 1977 high of $286.12 and has fallen as low as $244.50, even though the company itself entered the market with an offer of $280 for its own shares.

The IBM case illustrates what could be a chronic problem with the stock market — or at least an explanation for its lack of sustained drive.

That problem is the interpretation of the prudent man principle — not the principle itself but the interpretation of the principle — which calls for fiduciaries to exercise the same diligence in managing other people's money as would a prudent person in managing his own.

The principle has long been a part of fundamental common law, but now it has been put into statutory form as part of ERISA, the Employe Retirement Income Security Act, and that seems to have scared portfolio managers.

Not just those who manage pension funds, either. By logical extension, the reasoning involved in ERISA easily could apply to mutual funds and others.

Underlying the situation is uncertainty. What does the law mean? That the manager of a fund should diversify for safety? Should eliminate risk, insofar as possible, even if it lowers income?

Portfolio managers seem to have chosen the course of least risk. Some are diversifying to the extent that they have a fair representation in all areas of the market.

"Nobody will accuse us of favoritism," they say.

Views new tractors

Herschell Hailey of C & S Ford Tractor, Inc. (Sikeston) joined more than 250 Ford Motor Company tractor dealers recently who attended a three-day tractor introduction program in Dearborn, Mich. Ford introduced new four-wheel drive farm tractors ranging from 210 to 335 horsepower during the meetings. The tractors, weighing up to 17 tons, were revealed to dealers representing big-farm areas of the U.S. and Canada. The area dealership will market the new tractors along with a full line of Ford tractors and equipment.

Higgins Lectureship Award for a paper he wrote on "Fatigue Strength of Steel Beams with Welded Stiffners and Attachments."

Dr. Fisher was awarded $2,000 and an engraved citation. The AISC called the paper the "most significant engineering paper on fabricated structural steel published in the last five years."

Co-authors of the paper were P. A. Albrecht, B. N. Yen, D. J. Clingerman and B. M. McNamee. It was published by the Transportation Research Board, and judged by six structural engineers.

Dr. Fisher will give six lectures, including an address to the AISC National Engineering Conference in Washington.

Dr. Fisher is the son of Mrs. Nevan A. Fischer of Scott City. He attended SEMO State University, and graduated from Washington University in St. Louis. He received his doctorate from Lehigh.

His wife is the former Miss Nelda Rae Adams of Scott City. The Fishers have four children, and reside in Bethlehem.

Wheat market looks better

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — The president of Great Plains Wheat, Inc., has good news for American farmers seeking a better world market to reduce their huge surplus of wheat.

"I think the outlook for U. S. farmers, not just on a seasonal basis, is very bright," Michael L. Hall, said in an interview Monday night after the first day of the foreign market development organization's summer meeting.

"There are many signals coming up that are suggesting we will not hit the fourth consecutive worldwide bumper harvest of wheat, coarse grains and rice," he said.

Hall, forecasting a long-term demand for American grain, noted that Argentina and Canada, two top foreign wheat competitors of the United States, both expect diminished crops in 1977-78.

Investment community watches fuel shortages

FROM CROCKETT SCOTT

Better markets are not visible from current news dispatches, say stockbrokers.

And fundamentals are not good. The nation faces another cold winter in all likelihood, remind investment bankers, and there are indications of continuing fuel shortages for both home heating and transportation.

The nation is not solving its energy shortage, emphasize investment houses. Only conservation measures are being considered, when we should be "going all out" for new explorations, deeper explorations with "real" tax write-offs and a "completely free market" interstate, for the sale of gas, which in the long run would make for lower prices.

Such is the summary from the people who raise the money for business and industry through the sale of stocks and bonds.

And if we are not going to let the oil and gas industry "do things their own way," then we should encourage the development of substitute fuels, it emphasized by the investment community.

For example, we could raise more corn and sugar beets for alcohol to fuel our automobiles, trucks, planes and locomotive, it notes, and to power our tugs on the inland waterways.

Of course, long term investment bankers are bullish; once the utter felly of a controlled economy in the distribution of fuels is brought home to us by a stalled economy in a vicious winter, the nation will wake up.

Meanwhile, the search goes on for equity which can be bought later, if not now.

When the market descends still further, Transamerica Corp, will be high on the list of purchase possibilities of a group of Cincinnati-based SEC registered representatives.

And a number of them quote economist Dr. Ira U. Cobleigh, who is high on the stock and who analyzes the security in a recent issue of The Market Chronicle.

Dr. Cobleigh reports that Transamerica likely will record all time high earnings for fiscal 1977. He notes that the firm is a well managed conglomerate that has been ridding itself of unprofitable subsidiaries and improving its balance sheet.

Its affiliate company, Occidental Life, is the nation's ninth largest life insurance company, says Dr. Cobleigh.

Transamerica owns 12 property casualty insurance companies that have improved their earning power in recent years through rate increases, selectivity in writing new business and better management of investments.

Another of its properties, Transamerica Title, third largest title insurance in America, has 333 offices in nine states.

Its consumer lending organization, Transamerica Finance, makes highly profitable loans to more than 500,000 individuals.

Transamerica's United Artists Corporation is renowned for its movie, television and records production. Some of its mere recent movie successes were "Network," "A Bridge Too Far," "Rocky," and "The Spy Who Loved Me."

Transamerica's two airlines are Saturn Airway (air cargo) and Trans International.

In Kansas City numerous SEC registered security analysts still like Marion Laboratories, a stock mentioned here in the past.

Marion Labs were founded by the rich and colorful owner of the Kansas City Royals baseball club, Ewing Kaufman; and named for his wife, brilliant businesswoman, Marion Kaufman.

Together the two Kaufmans have moved the firm through a decade or so of explosive earnings growth. And, according to Kansas City analysts, the future is even brighter than the past.

Around its present 11-12 price range on the big board, they would buy for the long term now: though held off if a trader, as the current market could clip any stock for a few more points on the downside.

Polaroid is another stock to study now for future purchase, in the view of some Chicago SEC-registered analysts.

Bank stock purchased by Scott County group

SCOTT CITY – A group of Scott County businessmen Aug. 12 bought the controlling interest of the Scott County Bank and Trust Co. from a St. Louis family who owned the bank for 30 years, bank President Thomas A. Uelsmann announced Saturday.

The bank now is completely locally owned, as the group bought the 85 per cent the stock owned by the Dodd family of St. Louis, Uelsmann, who has been bank president since April, said.

Along with the Dodds, about 15 owners previously held the remaining stock, he said.

Negotiations for the sale were initiated about six months ago, he said.

Five men have been named to the bank's new board of directors, with a sixth member to be named soon, Uelsmann said.

The board members include Uelsmann; Dwight Crader, a Sikeston attorney; Herman Diebold of Diebold Orchards, Inc., of Kelso; John Bohannon, owner of a Scott City dry cleaning business; and Theon Schlosser, postmaster at Scott City and owner of Ace Hardware Co. here.

With the change in ownership, Uelsmann will remain as bank president. Crader has been named vice president and Larry D. Uelsmann, an assistant vice president since March 1976, has been named vice president. Mary B. Uelsmann will retain her office as cashier, which she has held for about 30 years, Uelsmann said.

Missouri Utitities offers home insulation program

Missouri Utilities Company has announced the initiation of a Residential Insulating Program. The program is designed to finance the addition of insulation to its customers' homes.

Francis R. Lengefeld, president of Missouri Utilities, said, "Energy is the lifeline of America and we must use it wisely. The single-most important element in reducing energy consumption in the home is adequate insulation. A person whose home has no attic insulation can save as much as 35 per cent in energy consumption for home heating just by increasing the attic insulation to R-30. Also, there are further energy savings in the air-conditioning season. Since we feel insulating your home is so important, we are offering our customers a simple way of paying for it."

Under the program, our customers can finance the cost on an approved insulaton installation on their service bill for a time period of 36 months. Missouri Utilities will supply a list of authorized contractors to install the insulation and agree to finance up to $750 of such installation. The program offer is good, regardless of type of heating or cooling used.

The customer must agree and meet certain minimum requirements:

First: The customer must agree to a minimum of R-30 in the attic.

Second: The customer must be using at least one of Missouri Utilities' services.

Third: The installing contractor must be from Missouri Utilities' authorized list.

Fourth: The customer must be an owner-occupant of the resident.

Fifth: The customer must have satisfactory credit.

In explaining the meaning of "R-30", Calvin Wells, customer service representative, said, "Every material has its own resistance to the flow of heat per square foot for a given thickness. For example,10 inches thick concrete has an R-value of .08 while 10 inches thick fiberglass has an R-value of 32. In other words, it takes 44 inches of concrete (above grade) to equal the insulation value of 1 inch of fiberglass. This is called the 'thermal resistance factor' or 'R-value' for short. The higher the R-value, the better the material will be as an insulator."

It should be noted that many homes were considered well-insulated when built, but the rising cost of energy has made the insulating standards of just a few years ago obsolete. A modest expenditure for additional insulation will be repaid many times over in the years ahead.

Missouri Utilities Company will supply interested customers with the names of contractors who have agreed to install insulation under the terms of the company's program. Call your local office for more information.

Jim Tricky, informational officer at Cape Girardeau, said contractors already approved for this area are Thomas Finley Electric in East Prairie and Howard P. Staples Construction Co. in Charleston.

Pebbles heads Arvin plant

DEXTER— Gordon Pebbles is the new plant manager at the Dexter Arvin Automotives plant here, replacing T.I. Sparks, who has been transferred to Monroeville, Ala., as Arvin plant manager there.

L.K. Evans, group vice president automotive for Arvin Industries, Inc., made the announcement.

Pebbles comes to Dexter from the Monroeville plant and has been with Arvin since 1965. He was promoted to plant manager at Monroeville in 1974.

Sparks joined Arvin in 1937 and held various positions before he became superintendent of the Seymour, Ind., plant in 1955. In 1961 he was named chief industrial engineer for Arvin Automotive and 1965 he returned to Seymour as plant manager. In 1972, Sparks was chosen to establish the Arvin plant at Dexter and became its first plant manager.

Portfolio managers like low-risk policy

NEW YORK (AP) — A current analysis of the shares of International Business Machines by Merrill Lynch foresees earnings rising from $15.94 in 1976 to $17.50 or more this year and to $20 in 1978.

Many other analysts also foresee rising earnings for the world's largest electronic computer maker, but that doesn't mean they see the price per share rising also, as you might expect.

IBM, in fact, is now selling about 20 points below its 1977 high of $286.12 and has fallen as low as $244.50, even though the company itself entered the market with an offer of $280 for its own shares.

The IBM case illustrates what could be a chronic problem with the stock market — or at least an explanation for its lack of sustained drive.

That problem is the interpretation of the prudent man principle — not the principle itself but the interpretation of the principle — which calls for fiduciaries to exercise the same diligence in managing other people's money as would a prudent person in managing his own.

The principle has long been a part of fundamental common law, but now it has been put into statutory form as part of ERISA, the Employe Retirement Income Security Act, and that seems to have scared portfolio managers.

Not just those who manage pension funds, either. By logical extension, the reasoning involved in ERISA easily could apply to mutual funds and others.

Underlying the situation is uncertainty. What does the law mean? That the manager of a fund should diversify for safety? Should eliminate risk, insofar as possible, even if it lowers income?

Portfolio managers seem to have chosen the course of least risk. Some are diversifying to the extent that they have a fair representation in all areas of the market.

"Nobody will accuse us of favoritism," they say.

Views new tractors

Herschell Hailey of C & S Ford Tractor, Inc. (Sikeston) joined more than 250 Ford Motor Company tractor dealers recently who attended a three-day tractor introduction program in Dearborn, Mich. Ford introduced new four-wheel drive farm tractors ranging from 210 to 335 horsepower during the meetings. The tractors, weighing up to 17 tons, were revealed to dealers representing big-farm areas of the U.S. and Canada. The area dealership will market the new tractors along with a full line of Ford tractors and equipment.

Soil moisture capacity important yield factor

SOIL CONSERVATION SERVICE
LESLIE TOBIN

CHARLESTON -- Probably one of the most important characteristics of a soil that influences crop yield is the available moisture capacity. That is, the capacity of soil to hold water in a form that is available to plants. This is the amount of water held in soil between field capacity (when the soil is filled with water but not saturated) and the wilting point. The wilting point is that point where the plants wilt and can never recover even if supplied with water.

The ability of a soil to hold moisture through extended dry periods is influenced mostly by soil texture. Soil texture has to do with the size of a soil particle.

Most soils contain these three fractions in different proportions. Sandy soils contain a large percentage of sand and small quantities of silt and clay. On the other hand, clayey soils contain a high percentage of clay with smaller quantities of sand or silt.

Most farm crops will root to a depth of 5 feet. Thus to determine available moisture capacity of a soil, we calculate the inches of water available per inch of a soil in a 5 foot profile. Coarse textured soils have a low available water capacity while medium textured soils have the highest available water capacity. Fine textured soils may hold more water but apparently do no give it all up readily to the plant.

A sandy soil will hold about one inch of water per foot or a total of 5 inches that would be available to a crop. During the summer months, corn or soybeans require about ¼ inch of water per day. Thus all available water would be gone in less than 20 days and the plants would reachthe permanent wilting point.

On a medium textured soil as a silt loam or silty clay loam, the soil will hold about 2½ inches per foot or a total of about 12 inches in a 5 foot profile. Thus a crop would reach its permanent wilting point in about 50 days. Thus a crop growing in a medium textured soil can go over twice as long without rain or irrigation than one growing on a coarse textured soil. It is important to remember, however, that crop yields will start being reduced when about 50 per cent of the soils available moisture has been used from the root zone. Thus on sandy soils crop yields will start being reduced in 7 to 10 days iwthout water. In contrast, a crop growing on medium textured soils can withstand an extended dry period for up to 3 weeks before crop yields will be affected to any great textent.

When considering the need for irrigation it is good to know the available water capacity of your soil. This information is available from information collected during the soil survey, now being conducted in Mississippi County. If you know the soil texture you can readily calculate the available moisture capacity of your soil and then determine when to irrigate or determine the feasiability of investing in an irrigation unit.

Missouri may harvest record soybean crop

JEFFERSON CITY, mo. - Continuing rain for the rest of August could boost Missouri's soybean crop to a record yield, state argriculture officials say.

Harvest forecasts based on field conditions as of Aug. 1 projected a soybean crop of more than 129 million bushels or 27 bushels an acre, according to the estimates released Thursday by the U.S. Agriculture Department.

"With the rains we've had, that looks about right," state Agriculture Director Jack Runyan said of the estimates. "I wouldn't be surprised if it isn't more. We've had some good rains in the past week and you can make a bean crop with rain in August."

In 1971 and 1973 Missouri recorded per acre yields of 27 bushels with the record 27.5 bushels an acre set in 1972.

But the August harvest projection for corn dropped 5 per cent from the July estimate, falling from 216 million bushels to 205.2 million. The per acre yield fell from 80 bushels, primarily because of the hot, dry weeks last month.

While that yield would be the fifth highest in the state's history and above the 74-bushel-an-acre average for the past decade, "a corn crop of 76 bushels is not a good crop even if the prices are good considering what it costs to produce an acre of corn these days," according to William Murphy, field crop specialist for the University of Missouri Extension Division.

The projected Missouri yield for both corn and soybeans are below those forecast by the USDA nationally. Corn was set at 87.3 bushels an acre for a near-record harvest and soybeans at 27.5 bushels an acre.

But if the actual harvest meet the forecasts, the impact on consumer food prices is expected to be minimal.

"There'll be a little effect, the prices probably won't go up as much," Murphy said. "But it will be small."

With abundant harvests predicted for both corn and soybeans, the market prices for farmers are low-corn below $2 a bushel and soybeans at about $5 a bushel.

Runyah predicted that many farmers will store their grain until they need money, hoping that the price will rise.

"They just can't raise corn for $1.80 a bushel," he said. "They'll probably hold on to as much as they can until they really need the money. That's the problem. When prices are high we have a bad crop and when they're low we have a relatively good one."

Field conditions for corn on Monday placed more than half the crop in only fair to poor condition. But reports on soybeans placed 62 per cent of that crop in good or excellent conditions and since then more rain has fallen to improve bean orospects.

Drought in the past three years has cost farmers more than $1.5 billion and farm disaster loans since 1974 have exceeded loans made during the decade before. Officials indicated this year's crop will probably not help farmers recover much of those losses but it should not aggravate their economic problems.

Topdress pastures now for fall, winter grazing

BY THOMAS A. BROWN JR.
Area Agronomy Specialist

BLOOMFIELD -- Fescue pastures that will be used for fall and winter grazing should be topdressed as soon as possible if the job has not been done previously. Mid-August is a good time for topdressing these pastues for maximum fall production.

Fescue is the best-adapted grass available for "stockpiling" or accumulating growth for grazing later during the fall and winter. Most of this growth must be accumulated during August, September, and October, so fescue to be used for this purpose should be given a rest during this period.

In spite of the fact that fescue normally retains its green color, it produces very little dry matter after Oct. 24 in this area. This means that fertilizer should be applied sufficiently early for the fescue to use it to produce fall and winter grazing. In this connection, it is also important that the fertilizer be applied early enough to take advantage of late summer and early fall rainfall. Around Sept. 1 is a good time to get this job done.

It is from nitrogen that fescue gets its greatest benefit from a late-summer fertilizer topdressing. Unless the fescue received a heavy application of nitrogen in the spring, it needs more nitrogen now to make maximum fall growth.

Research results have indicated that 60 pounds of actual nitrogen will provide fescue the nitrogen needed for good fall production. Phosphate and potash are also important and should be included in the topdressing application especially if the pasture has not been topdressed this year.

A soil test is your best guide as to the kind and amount of fertilizer to apply in the topdressing application. If a soil test is not available, a mixed fertilizer containing 60 pounds of actual nitrogen, 20 pounds of actual phosphate, and 40 pounds of actual potash will do a good job of stimulating fescue for high fall and winter production.

"Stockpiling" and fertilizing pastures in this manner will not only increase the amount of fall and winter grazing produced, but, at the same time, it will also reduce the winter hay bill very significantly.

Better cotton varieties forecast

PORTAGEVILLE -- Growers can expect better cotton varieties with multiple disease resistance within three years, according to William Sappenfield, cotton breeder at the University of Missouri-Columbia's Delta Center.

"We're planning to release an improved version of Delcot for seed increase next year and should have a bacterial blight resistant Auburn-M shortly thereafter," he said.

"Besides, we have a host of new strains with MDR (multiple disease resistance) which are related to some of the popular commercial varieties. Our aim is to bolster these varieties by giving them more disease resistance."

Sappenfield, who will report on his research at the Delta Center Field Day here Friday, September 23, said the new variety of Delcot derivation "will carry resistance to bacterial blight approaching immunity." It will also have Delcot-type tolerance to Verticillium wilt and resistance to the Fusarium wilt-root knot nematode disease complex.

"The new variety will be earlier maturing than Delcot, smaller bolled and will have improved fiber characteristics," said Sappenfield.

"It's fiber should be slightly coarser than the fine-fibered Delcot.

"We not have a four-acre increase of this potential variety. Pending this year's field tests, we hope to release this cotton for commercial foundation seed production in 1978."

Sappenfield's new Auburn-M will carry bacterial blight resistance and Verticillium-wilt tolerance in addition to resistance to the Fusarium root knot disease. "That should greatly help the yield potential of this variety, since the original Auburn-M was quite susceptible to bacterial blight and Verticillium wilt," he said.

"Our ultimate aim with all these varieties is to develop some with early maturity, more insect tolerance, multiple disease resistance, higher yields and quality fibers."

Insects threatening grain, beans, cotton

BLOOMFIELD — Insects are threatening grain sorghum, soygeans, and cotton in Stoddard County and surrounding area, and some fields are being sprayed for their control, according to Tom Brown, Area Agronomy Specialist. Farmers should keep a close watch on these crops and be prepared to spray in case it should become necessary.

A number of grain sorghum fields are being sprayed for the control of the corn earworm, and some sorghum webworm are being reported. Sorghum fields should be sprayed for earworm control when an average of one-half to one worm per head that is half grown or smaller are found. At an average distance between sorghum heads of 4, 5, 8, 12, and 16 inches, fields should be sprayed for webworm control when an average of 2, 3, 4, 6, and 8 worms respectively are found. Toxaphene and carbaryl (Sevin) are recommended for the control of both of these worms.

The corn earworm is also feeding on soybean pods in some cases. Soybean fields should be sprayed when an average of one worm per foot can be found by shaking the stalks vigorously. Toxaphene and carbaryl are recommended for the control of this pest. Methyl parathion and methomyl (Lannate or Nudrin) are also recommended if applied by aircraft.

The cotton bollworm is being found in some cotton fields and considerable spraying is being done in the counties to the south of Stoddard. Cotton fields which have not been treated previously should be sprayed when eggs and 6 to 8 worms per 100 plants are found. Fields which have been sprayed should be resprayed when eggs and 4 to 6 worms per 100 plants are found.

It is important that these crops be sprayed when corn earworms and cotton bollworms are small as these worms are difficult to control after they get to be half grown. Farmers have failed to get control of the earworm in grain sorghum in a number of cases where worms were over half grown.

Brown warns farmers against spraying any field because their neighbors are spraying or because another field on the same farm needs to be sprayed. Each field needs to be sprayed on the basis of the insect infestation in that field. Beneficial insects should be given a chance to control these harmful insects, and the beneficial insects as well as the harmful insects are killed when fields are sprayed.

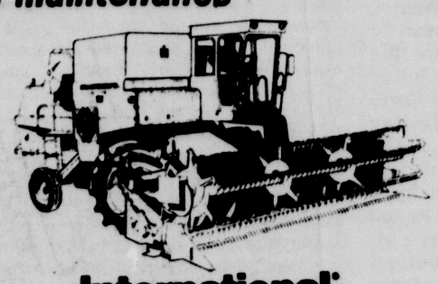
Balanced capacity— more productivity, less maintenance



International 815/915 Combines

A big International combine answers the need to cover more acres a day with fewer grain losses. From cutting to unloading, balanced capacity meets varying crop conditions. Great for those extra-heavy hanging heads of maize. Plenty of grain header size from 10 to 24 feet, and the power to harvest at a fast pace with 144 to 162 hp.

- Low profile design—go through a 12-ft. door. Easier storage and transport, too.
- Fast changeover to other crop headers with Quick-Attach universal feeders.
- Hydrostatic all-speed drive and comfort-control cabs are standard.
- Big-mouth cylinder/concave space—extra room for crop to enter; exclusive fin and wire straw walkers.
- Unload grain thru 12-in. auger tube, 146 bushels in 1½ minutes.

Let's arrange a demonstration. Finance plans available.

Harvest forecasts based on field conditions as of Aug. 1 projected a soybean crop of more than 129 million bushels or 27 bushels an acre, according to the estimates released Thursday by the U.S. Agriculture Department.

"With the rains we've had, that looks about right," state Agriculture Director Jack Runyan said of the estimates. "I wouldn't be surprised if it isn't more. We've had some good rains in the past week and you can make a bean crop with rain in August."

In 1971 and 1973 Missouri recorded per acre yields of 27 bushels with the record 27.5 bushels an acre set in 1972.

But the August harvest projection for corn dropped 5 per cent from the July estimate, falling from 216 million bushels to 205.2 million. The per acre yield fell from 80 bushels, primarily because of the hot, dry weeks last month.

While that yield would be the fifth highest in the state's history and above the 74-bushel-an-acre average for the past decade, "a corn crop of 76 bushels is not a good crop even if the prices are good considering what it costs to produce an acre of corn these days," according to William Murphy, field crop specialist for the University of Missouri Extension Division.

The projected Missouri yield for both corn and soybeans are below those forecast by the USDA nationally. Corn was set at 87.3 bushels an acre for a near-record harvest and soybeans at 27.5 bushels an acre.

But if the actual harvest meet the forecasts, the impact on consumer food prices is expected to be minimal.

"There'll be a little effect, the prices probably won't go up as much," Murphy said. "But it will be small."

With abundant harvests predicted for both corn and soybeans, the market prices for farmers are low-corn below $2 a bushel and soybeans at about $5 a bushel.

Runyah predicted that many farmers will store their grain until they need money, hoping that the price will rise.

"They just can't raise corn for $1.80 a bushel," he said. "They'll probably hold on to as much as they can until they really need the money. That's the problem. When prices are high we have a bad crop and when they're low we have a relatively good one."

Field conditions for corn on Monday placed more than half the crop in only fair to poor condition. But reports on soybeans placed 62 per cent of that crop in good or excellent conditions and since then more rain has fallen to improve bean prospects.

Drought in the past three years has cost farmers more than $1.5 billion and farm disaster loans since 1974 have exceeded loans made during the decade before. Officials indicated this year's crop will probably not help farmers recover much of those losses but it should not aggravate their economic problems.

Topdress pastures now for fall, winter grazing

BY THOMAS A. BROWN JR.
Area Agronomy Specialist

BLOOMFIELD -- Fescue pastures that will be used for fall and winter grazing should be topdressed as soon as possible if the job has not been done previously. Mid-August is a good time for topdressing these pastues for maximum fall production.

Fescue is the best-adapted grass available for "stockpiling" or accumulating growth for grazing later during the fall and winter. Most of this growth must be accumulated during August, September, and October, so fescue to be used for this purpose should be given a rest during this period.

In spite of the fact that fescue normally retains its green color, it produces very little dry matter after Oct. 24 in this area. This means that fertilizer should be applied sufficiently early for the fescue to use it to produce fall and winter grazing. In this connection, it is also important that the fertilizer be applied early enough to take advantage of late summer and early fall rainfall. Around Sept. 1 is a good time to get this job done.

It is from nitrogen that fescue gets its greatest benefit from a late-summer fertilizer topdressing. Unless the fescue received a heavy application of nitrogen in the spring, it needs more nitrogen now to make maximum fall growth.

Research results have indicated that 60 pounds of actual nitrogen will provide fescue the nitrogen needed for good fall production. Phosphate and potash are also important and should be included in the topdressing application especially if the pasture has not been topdressed this year.

A soil test is your best guide as to the kind and amount of fertilizer to apply in the topdressing application. If a soil test is not available, a mixed fertilizer containing 60 pounds of actual nitrogen, 20 pounds of actual phosphate, and 40 pounds of actual potash will do a good job of stimulating fescue for high fall and winter production.

"Stockpiling" and fertilizing pastures in this manner will not only increase the amount of fall and winter grazing produced, but, at the same time, it will also reduce the winter hay bill very significantly.

Better cotton varieties forecast

PORTAGEVILLE -- Growers can expect better cotton varieties with multiple disease resistance within three years, according to William Sappenfield, cotton breeder at the University of Missouri-Columbia's Delta Center.

"We're planning to release an improved version of Delcot for seed increase next year and should have a bacterial blight resistant Auburn-M shortly thereafter," he said.

"Besides, we have a host of new strains with MDR (multiple disease resistance) which are related to some of the popular commercial varieties. Our aim is to bolster these varieties by giving them more disease resistance."

Sappenfield, who will report on his research at the Delta Center Field Day here Friday, September 23, said the new variety of Delcot derivation "will carry resistance to bacterial blight approaching immunity." It will also have Delcot-type tolerance to Verticillium wilt and resistance to the Fusarium wilt-root knot nematode disease complex.

"The new variety will be earlier maturing than Delcot, smaller bolled and will have improved fiber characteristics," said Sappenfield.

"It's fiber should be slightly coarser than the fine-fibered Delcot.

"We not have a four-acre increase of this potential variety. Pending this year's field tests, we hope to release this cotton for commercial foundation seed production in 1978."

Sappenfield's new Auburn-M will carry bacterial blight resistance and Verticillium-wilt tolerance in addition to resistance to the Fusarium root knot disease. "That should greatly help the yield potential of this variety, since the original Auburn-M was quite susceptible to bacterial blight and Verticillium wilt," he said.

"Our ultimate aim with all these varieties is to develop some with early maturity, more insect tolerance, multiple disease resistance, higher yields and quality fibers."

Insects threatening grain, beans, cotton

BLOOMFIELD — Insects are threatening grain sorghum, soygeans, and cotton in Stoddard County and surrounding area, and some fields are being sprayed for their control, according to Tom Brown, Area Agronomy Specialist. Farmers should keep a close watch on these crops and be prepared to spray in case it should become necessary.

A number of grain sorghum fields are being sprayed for the control of the corn earworm, and some sorghum webworm are being reported. Sorghum fields should be sprayed for earworm control when an average of one-half to one worm per head that is half grown or smaller are found. At an average distance between sorghum heads of 4, 5, 8, 12, and 16 inches, fields should be sprayed for webworm control when an average of 2, 3, 4, 6, and 8 worms respectively are found. Toxaphene and carbaryl (Sevin) are recommended for the control of both of these worms.

The corn earworm is also feeding on soybean pods in some cases. Soybean fields should be sprayed when an average of one worm per foot can be found by shaking the stalks vigorously. Toxaphene and carbaryl are recommended for the control of this pest. Methyl parathion and methomyl (Lannate or Nudrin) are also recommended if applied by aircraft.

The cotton bollworm is being found in some cotton fields and considerable spraying is being done in the counties to the south of Stoddard. Cotton fields which have not been treated previously should be sprayed when eggs and 6 to 8 worms per 100 plants are found. Fields which have been sprayed should be resprayed when eggs and 4 to 6 worms per 100 plants are found.

It is important that these crops be sprayed when corn earworms and cotton bollworms are small as these worms are difficult to control after they get to be half grown. Farmers have failed to get control of the earworm in grain sorghum in a number of cases where worms were over half grown.

Brown warns farmers against spraying any field because their neighbors are spraying or because another field on the same farm needs to be sprayed. Each field needs to be sprayed on the basis of the insect infestation in that field. Beneficial insects should be given a chance to control these harmful insects, and the beneficial insects as well as the harmful insects are killed when fields are sprayed.

International 815/915 Combines

A big International combine answers the need to cover more acres a day with fewer grain losses. From cutting to unloading, balanced capacity meets varying crop conditions. Great for those extra-heavy hanging heads of maize. Plenty of grain header size from 10 to 24 feet, and the power to harvest at a fast pace with 144 to 162 hp.

- Low profile design—go through a 12-ft. door. Easier storage and transport, too.
- Fast changeover to other crop headers with Quick-Attach universal feeders.
- Hydrostatic all-speed drive and comfort-control cabs are standard.
- Big-mouth cylinder/concave space—extra room for crop to enter; exclusive fin and wire straw walkers.
- Unload grain thru 12-in. auger tube, 146 bushels in 1½ minutes.

Let's arrange a demonstration. Finance plans available.

IT HAPPENS EVERY AUGUST

Those odd, unearthly creatures you see slogging through the sports pages are not fugitives from "Star Wars." They're madmen who think it's time to play football again.

So it's too hot to play football. So it's only August, not October. So why are the Steelers and the Bengals and the Browns and the Broncos playing games already? So why aren't the Rams and the Dolphins water-sking instead of covering punt returns?

Because they're daft, that's why.

Never mind that the baseball season still has two months to run. Or that the temperature is 99 in the shade. Once the old adrenalin starts to flow, you can forget the humidity and start humming "Hail to the Redskins."

How do you know whether you have the disease?

Do you keep hearing snatches of your old college fight song? Are you tossing touchdown passes in your backyard? Are you wondering who's going to replace Charlie in the office football pool?

If so, you're hooked, good buddy. Might as well relax and enjoy it before basketball season begins.

WILL IL BE ILL. AGAIN

Ray Geiger, you may or may not remember, is the man who got the U.S. Post Office to restore some town names to its postmarks. Now the editor of the Farmers' Almanac has a new protest against the official two-letter abbreviations for state names. Since eight state names begin with M and another eight begin with N, the two-letter addresses like MD, MA, MI, MN, MO, MS, and so forth, are unnecessarily confusing, at least to humans.

Writes Mr. Geiger, "The Farmers' Almanac believes that the more easily identified abbreviations are essential to a pleasant way of life, and we submit that DE is hardly the equal of De., that CT is a poor substitute for Conn., and that MT fails completely when it tries to bring the state of Montana to the reader's mind."

Mr. Geiger realizes, of course, that he is bucking mass mailings and the computers, which find the two-letter combinations to be a handy check on zip codes. The post office shouldn't object if human correspondents use the old forms. But Mr. Geiger's campaign is a welcome symbolic protest, and it may even lead to more legible return addresses.

CLEAN UP BEFORE LINING UP
From The New York Times

A battle is raging in Washington, fierce as only conflicts over budgets, turf and power on the banks of the Potomac can be. This particular fight involves control of the intelligence apparatus of the United States. Is it to be consolidated under a superdirector of Central Intelligence as the director of the Central Intelligence Agency, Stansfield Turner, is proposing? Or should control continue to be dispersed, with the National Security Agency and the National Reconnaissance Office remaining under the Department of Defense, as the Defense Secretary, Harold Brown, is arguing?

The joining of this issue constitutes the first major debate concerning the intelligence agencies since the Senate established its Select Committee last year. Unfortunately, the questions first posed are not the right ones. The Select Committee was created because after the discovery of widespread and horrifying abuses of power—and of the rights of American citizens—in the conduct of both foreigh and domestic intelligence operations. A temporary committee of inquiry under the chairmanship of Senator Frank Church concluded in 1976 that a legislative program to bring intelligence operations firmly within the rule of law was urgently required.

But somehow that urgency seems to have gone the way of an alcoholic's New Year's resolve. Though the Senate did manage to establish a permanent intelligence oversight committee with real power, the test of the will of Congress remains legislation that would define areas of appropriate intelligence activity, limits of authority and curbs on lawlessness.

But the legislation emerging from the committee deals instead with structural reorganization. As experienced observers of Washington could have predicted, the bureaucracies rose immediately to contend over power and money, the stuff of life in the capital. That battle-obsessive and debilitating—will certainly delay, perhaps even undermine the effort to achieve legislative controls over intelligence activities.

But it is not too late to unhitch the horse and put it before the cart. In its first annual report, the Senate Intelligence Committee promised to produce charters for the intelligence agencies; it should immediately turn to that task. The Church committee left the blueprint for a charter that would limit the CIA to foreign operations, severely restrict and control covert activities, require written approval for operations in order to leave a paper trail to responsible officials, shut down the political intelligence work of the FBI and carefully circumscribe its preventive intelligence activites.

No doubt questions of structure and of the quality of America's intelligence apparatus require attention—as soon as the intelligence activities of the nation have been legislated into conformity with the Constitution and laws of the United States.

Presidential Hat in Hand?
Carter Attempting to paciby wrathful Blacks as they prepare for National Caucus

WASHINGTON— On Sept. 24 President Carter will "go to Canossa" -- meaning the Washington Hilton -- to bring his own "personal" greetings to the hundreds expected to dine and socialize during the Congressional Black Caucus's $100-a-plate banquet.

But this isn't a social report. It's intensely political. That Black Caucus, with members on many crucial House committees, just doesn't "trust Jimmy." It's as blunt as that.

And they've told him so privately as well as publicly.

The caucus's 16 members are solidly backing their angry lay brethren -- the sharply critical Vernon E. Jordan Jr., executive director of the National Urban League; the acrid new NAACP leader, Benjamin L. Hooks, and the mellifluous Bayard Rustin, head of the A. Philip Randolph Institute, the AFL-CIO's man in the field.

Like all major stories zooming into the headlines and then out into the morgues, Jimmy Carter's public confrontation with the nation's irate and united black leadership has faded out of the press and off the tube. But the black leaders, each in their own fashion, have continued to assail the President in the black communities, in the black press and in their intellectual and philosophical milieus where it hurts, though most of it has gone unreported.

Jordan has told the President to send signals to the blacks and poor -- like making "symbolic visits to ruban ghettos." Hooks, right after Jordan's needling of the President with charges that Jimmy Carter let down the "94 per cent" who voted for him, proclaimed that Jordan's "courageous" and "I stand four square and unqualifiedly behind him (Jordan)."

Rustin, who always reflects macro-critic Meany, said that "the administration hasn't grasped the fact that blacks are becoming increasingly disenchanted with the administration's performance . . . the issue isn't whether the President is concerned about the poor but whether he and his administration will translate their concern into policies."

Furthermore, on Aug. 29, practically all nationally influential black social action leaders will gather in New York to "tell Jimmy like it is." They'll tell him as bluntly as a home-plate umpire that they couldn't care less about balancing the budget in 1981.

They want Mr. Carter to keep the promises made to them publicly and privately during the pirmaries and the presidential campaign. Even if it takes billions of dollars. And they want it yesterday.

From where President Carter sits in his Oval Office looking out at the garden these days all this won't come up roses. A tidal wave of unified black protest would disarm the continent-hopping UN Ambassador Andrew Young and deprive him of his most valuable political and propaganda credentials.

A devastatingly united Anti-Carter black protest would dilute Mr. Carter's diplomatic discourses in Africa.

And, most vital to Hamilton Jordan's White House suite, an outraged black leadership could crack Jimmy Carter's spit, paste and piano wire political machine.

For months now Jimmy Carter has refused to see the Congressional Black Caucus en masse in his office though he's rapped with larger groups than 16 Congress people. Mr. Carter just didn't want to position himself into pledging tens of billions of dollars involved in the Humphrey-Hawkins full-employment bill as readily as he had promised before he got his presidential pass key.

Then came July 21 and Congressional Black Caucus chairman Parren Mitchell, in the privacy of the Oval Office, went face to face with President Carter. They understood each other. And Jimmy Carter said he would bring his own greetings to the Sept. 24 dinner. At the Washington Hilton banquet he may yet become a real life Professor Higgins, losing to his own political Pygmalion, Andrew Young, who'll be honored that night, or to that man of roots, Alex Haley, or even to master of ceremonies, Ossie Davis.

It's a gamble. That black political gathering may develop into his first big-time political disaster. If he's booed or coolly received it will take Muhammed Ali, Pele and Dr. J. to get the President back into the ball park.

One national black leader, reflecting the distrust of the White House and the disappointment inside the black community, put it bluntly the other day:

"At least Carter is making his peace. But we take a wait-and-see attitude. What's he going to do on jobs for our people? What about all the staffing he's promised? There just isn't any black in the White House decision-making area.

"And there's the new Department of Energy. What about that spot on the Federal Communications Commission now that its one black man, Ben Hooks, has left it? What about the Small Business Administration? And all that legislation promised, like same day registration and National Health Insurance and a real welfare reform?

"We got a lot of promises on all that. Now we want delivery. So we say we take a wait-and-see attitude."

Thus the black leadership's theme now is -- "performance, not promises." This swings through almost every black speech like lines in a spiritual. These national leaders are angry. They're a new breed playing new tough politics in a very sensitie field.

So Jimmy Carter is going to Canossa. Or maybe to a confrontation. That's his gamble.

Art Buchwald

"THE NEXT VIRGINIA SLIM"

WASHINGTON— Dr. Renee Richards, the transsexual tennis player, has won her suit against the U.S. Tennis Assn. and the Women's Tennis Assn. for banning her from the U.S. Tennis Open being held at Forest Hills at the end of this month. They had tried to ban her because she could not pass a sex chromosome test given to women athletes to make sure they are what they say they are.

Dr. Richards claimed that the sex chromosome test was unfair, and since she's allowed in professional women's tennis locker rooms, she should be allowed to play as a woman at Forest Hills.

The other side had maintained that if Dr. Richards was permitted to compete as a woman it would open the floodgates for a wave of transexuals playing in women's sports. Many men would have operations just so they could compete against women.

Now that is possible.

As a tennis player who rarely can beat a man on the courts, I've considered an operation similar to Dr. Richards' many times.

After a discouraging set the other day I even discussed it with my wife. "If I could only have a transsexual operation," I told her, "I know I could improve my forehand."

My wife was very sympathetic. "Do it if you think it will help your game."

"The problem is I'm not sure. If I had the operation and then women started beating me, instead of men, it would make me sick."

"Women beat you now," she said.

"I know," I replied "and it makes me sick. But with a transsexual operation I might be able to psych them out.

"If they knew I was once a man, and they now had to play me as a woman, it could make them so nervous they might double-fault and lose their serve, particularly if I didn't shave my legs."

"It's a gamble," my wife admitted. "The only problem as I see it is that if you had the operation and you still kept losing at tennis, there would be no way of going back, if you know what I mean."

"I've thought of that," I said. "But it did wonders for Dr. Richards' game."

"But she was a good player as a man. She's just become better as a woman. If you're a lousy player as a man there is no guarantee you'll play better as a woman. Wouldn't you feel more comfortable taking tennis lessons?"

"Do you know what they charge for tennis lessons these days? At least I could get the operation under Blue Shield and save some money."

"There is a compromise," my wife said. "Instead of going to all the trouble of an operation, why don't you play in women's tennis clothes? Then if it didn't work out you wouldn't have lost anything."

"That is a thought," I said excitedly. "If I wore your tennis dress when I played I might be able to beat a woman. It would certainly give me an edge when they looked across the net."

"I think you'd look nice in my tennis dress," my wife said.

"But suppose they make me take a sex chromosome test?"

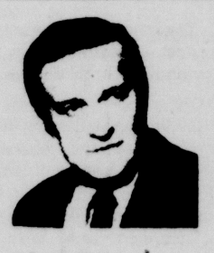
"Refuse to take it. I think if you're willing to wear a tennis dress, they have no right to ask you any questions."

"What a brainstorm," I said. "With a dress on I could even beat Ethel Kennedy."

"Would you believe Chrissie Evert?" my wife said as she zipped me up in the back.

I was about to rush out of the house with my racket when my wife called me back. "You forgot the pom-poms on your tennis socks."

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND



U.S. Aids Shah in Cracking Down on Iranian Dissidents

by Jack Anderson
and Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — American officials have been quietly helping the shah of Iran and his notorious secret police force crack down on Iranian dissidents.

The Americans have been almost fawning in their cooperation with SAVAK, Iran's dreaded secret police. They have helped the shah's agents spy on Iranian students in the United States, who oppose the shah's imperial rule. In past columns, we have quoted SAVAK's own documents which reveal how its agents routinely tap phones, forge documents and commit burglaries in pursuit of this goal.

Yet U.S. government agencies are still anxiously cooperating with the shah and his secret police. Here are some examples:

— Last October, we revealed that the top SAVAK agent in the United States is Mansur Rafizadeh, who claims to be an Iranian attache at the United Nations. Rafizadeh vehemently denied any connection with SAVAK.

Now we have obtained a telegram which was sent last November to FBI headquarters from its New York office. It describes an alleged threat against Nasser Afshar, a prominent Iranian dissident and publisher of a stridently anti-shah tabloid called the "Iran Free Press." The FBI document declares unequivocally that "Mansur Rafizadeh is the principal representative of SAVAK in the U.S. and is a foreign liaison source of (the New York FBI office)."

An FBI official acknowledged that Mansur Rafizadeh was a "foreign liaison source" of the FBI. "We have them in just about every friendly mission in New York," said the official. "They give us information, and if we get something on threats or demonstrations, we call them. They are not paid, and there is nothing covert about it."

SWEET TALK — The nation's broadcasters, who make a hefty profit from advertisements for diet soda, don't want to tell their viewers that products containing saccharin may be harmful.

Congress may soon require that all saccharin ads include a warning that the sugar substitute may cause cancer. The Food and Drug Administration wants to ban saccharin immediately, but angry calorie counters want Congress to delay any action for 18 months.

The National Association of Broadcasters, however, doesn't see any reason to warn the public in the interim. In a private letter to House Commerce Committee Chairman Harley Staggers, D.-W.Va., the NAB complains that any warnings "developed by a federal agency will be too cumbersome to be included in an advertisement and will result in a de facto ban on broadcast advertising."

The broadcasters grumbled that they are already being denied a chunk of the $400 million a year in cigarette advertisements which are banned from radio and television. A saccharin warning, they griped, would also "establish a precedent" for those "who find other products to be harmful to health."

Rep. Andrew Maguire, D.-N.J., has denounced the broadcasters for "misrepresentations of the public health threat from saccharin." The broadcasters, Maguire told us, are saying that they "ought to be able to hawk any product they want on TV, regardless of the consequences."

An NAB spokesman said a saccharin warning would "discriminate" against broadcasters. But he conceded, "Obviously it would not be great for our profit margin."

IT HAPPENS EVERY AUGUST

Those odd, unearthly creatures you see slogging through the sports pages are not fugitives from "Star Wars." They're madmen who think it's time to play football again.

So it's too hot to play football. So it's only August, not October. So why are the Steelers and the Bengals and the Browns and the Broncos playing games already? So why aren't the Rams and the Dolphins water-sking instead of covering punt returns?

Because they're daft, that's why.

Never mind that the baseball season still has two months to run. Or that the temperature is 99 in the shade. Once the old adrenalin starts to flow, you can forget the humidity and start humming "Hail to the Redskins."

How do you know whether you have the disease?

Do you keep hearing snatches of your old college fight song? Are you tossing touchdown passes in your backyard? Are you wondering who's going to replace Charlie in the office football pool?

If so, you're hooked, good buddy. Might as well relax and enjoy it before basketball season begins.

WILL IL BE ILL. AGAIN

Ray Geiger, you may or may not remember, is the man who got the U.S. Post Office to restore some town names to its postmarks. Now the editor of the Farmers' Almanac has a new protest against the official two-letter abbreviations for state names. Since eight state names begin with M and another eight begin with N, the two-letter addresses like MD, MA, MI, MN, MO, MS, and so forth, are unnecessarily confusing, at least to humans.

Writes Mr. Geiger, "The Farmers' Almanac believes that the more easily identified abbreviations are essential to a pleasant way of life, and we submit that DE is hardly the equal of De., that CT is a poor substitute for Conn., and that MT fails completely when it tries to bring the state of Montana to the reader's mind."

Mr. Geiger realizes, of course, that he is bucking mass mailings and the computers, which find the two-letter combinations to be a handy check on zip codes. The post office shouldn't object if human correspondents use the old forms. But Mr. Geiger's campaign is a welcome symbolic protest, and it may even lead to more legible return addresses.

CLEAN UP BEFORE LINING UP
From The New York Times

A battle is raging in Washington, fierce as only conflicts over budgets, turf and power on the banks of the Potomac can be. This particular fight involves control of the intelligence apparatus of the United States. Is it to be consolidated under a superdirector of Central Intelligence as the director of the Central Intelligence Agency, Stansfield Turner, is proposing? Or should control continue to be dispersed, with the National Security Agency and the National Reconnaissance Office remaining under the Department of Defense, as the Defense Secretary, Harold Brown, is arguing?

The joining of this issue constitutes the first major debate concerning the intelligence agencies since the Senate established its Select Committee last year. Unfortunately, the questions first posed are not the right ones. The Select Committee was created because after the discovery of widespread and horrifying abuses of power—and of the rights of American citizens—in the conduct of both foreigh and domestic intelligence operations. A temporary committee of inquiry under the chairmanship of Senator Frank Church concluded in 1976 that a legislative program to bring intelligence operations firmly within the rule of law was urgently required.

But somehow that urgency seems to have gone the way of an alcoholic's New Year's resolve. Though the Senate did manage to establish a permanent intelligence oversight committee with real power, the test of the will of Congress remains legislation that would define areas of appropriate intelligence activity, limits of authority and curbs on lawlessness.

But the legislation emerging from the committee deals instead with structural reorganization. As experienced observers of Washington could have predicted, the bureaucracies rose immediately to contend over power and money, the stuff of life in the capital. That battle-obsessive and debilitating—will certainly delay, perhaps even undermine the effort to achieve legislative controls over intelligence activities.

But it is not too late to unhitch the horse and put it before the cart. In its first annual report, the Senate Intelligence Committee promised to produce charters for the intelligence agencies; it should immediately turn to that task. The Church committee left the blueprint for a charter that would limit the CIA to foreign operations, severely restrict and control covert activities, require written approval for operations in order to leave a paper trail to responsible officials, shut down the political intelligence work of the FBI and carefully circumscribe its preventive intelligence activites.

No doubt questions of structure and of the quality of America's intelligence apparatus require attention—as soon as the intelligence activities of the nation have been legislated into conformity with the Constitution and laws of the United States.

Presidential Hat in Hand?
Carter Attempting to paciby wrathful Blacks as they prepare for National Caucus

WASHINGTON— On Sept. 24 President Carter will "go to Canossa" -- meaning the Washington Hilton -- to bring his own "personal" greetings to the hundreds expected to dine and socialize during the Congressional Black Caucus's $100-a-plate banquet.

But this isn't a social report. It's intensely political. That Black Caucus, with members on many crucial House committees, just doesn't "trust Jimmy." It's as blunt as that.

And they've told him so privately as well as publicly.

The caucus's 16 members are solidly backing their angry lay brethren -- the sharply critical Vernon E. Jordan Jr., executive director of the National Urban League; the acrid new NAACP leader, Benjamin L. Hooks, and the mellifluous Bayard Rustin, head of the A. Philip Randolph Institute, the AFL-CIO's man in the field.

Like all major stories zooming into the headlines and then out into the morgues, Jimmy Carter's public confrontation with the nation's irate and united black leadership has faded out of the press and off the tube. But the black leaders, each in their own fashion, have continued to assail the President in the black communities, in the black press and in their intellectual and philosophical milieus where it hurts, though most of it has gone unreported.

Jordan has told the President to send signals to the blacks and poor -- like making "symbolic visits to ruban ghettos." Hooks, right after Jordan's needling of the President with charges that Jimmy Carter let down the "94 per cent" who voted for him, proclaimed that Jordan's "courageous" and "I stand four square and unqualifiedly behind him (Jordan)."

Rustin, who always reflects macro-critic Meany, said that "the administration hasn't grasped the fact that blacks are becoming increasingly disenchanted with the administration's performance . . . the issue isn't whether the President is concerned about the poor but whether he and his administration will translate their concern into policies."

Furthermore, on Aug. 29, practically all nationally influential black social action leaders will gather in New York to "tell Jimmy like it is." They'll tell him as bluntly as a home-plate umpire that they couldn't care less about balancing the budget in 1981.

They want Mr. Carter to keep the promises made to them publicly and privately during the pirmaries and the presidential campaign. Even if it takes billions of dollars. And they want it yesterday.

From where President Carter sits in his Oval Office looking out at the garden these days all this won't come up roses. A tidal wave of unified black protest would disarm the continent-hopping UN Ambassador Andrew Young and deprive him of his most valuable political and propaganda credentials.

A devastatingly united Anti-Carter black protest would dilute Mr. Carter's diplomatic discourses in Africa.

And, most vital to Hamilton Jordan's White House suite, an outraged black leadership could crack Jimmy Carter's spit, paste and piano wire political machine.

For months now Jimmy Carter has refused to see the Congressional Black Caucus en masse in his office though he's rapped with larger groups than 16 Congress people. Mr. Carter just didn't want to position himself into pledging tens of billions of dollars involved in the Humphrey-Hawkins full-employment bill as readily as he had promised before he got his presidential pass key.

Then came July 21 and Congressional Black Caucus chairman Parren Mitchell, in the privacy of the Oval Office, went face to face with President Carter. They understood each other. And Jimmy Carter said he would bring his own greetings to the Sept. 24 dinner. At the Washington Hilton banquet he may yet become a real life Professor Higgins, losing to his own political Pygmalion, Andrew Young, who'll be honored that night, or to that man of roots, Alex Haley, or even to master of ceremonies, Ossie Davis.

It's a gamble. That black political gathering may develop into his first big-time political disaster. If he's booed or coolly received it will take Muhammed Ali, Pele and Dr. J. to get the President back into the ball park.

One national black leader, reflecting the distrust of the White House and the disappointment inside the black community, put it bluntly the other day:

"At least Carter is making his peace. But we take a wait-and-see attitude. What's he going to do on jobs for our people? What about all the staffing he's promised? There just isn't any black in the White House decision-making area.

"And there's the new Department of Energy. What about that spot on the Federal Communications Commission now that its one black man, Ben Hooks, has left it? What about the Small Business Administration? And all that legislation promised, like same day registration and National Health Insurance and a real welfare reform?

"We got a lot of promises on all that. Now we want delivery. So we say we take a wait-and-see attitude."

Thus the black leadership's theme now is -- "performance, not promises." This swings through almost every black speech like lines in a spiritual. These national leaders are angry. They're a new breed playing new tough politics in a very sensitie field.

So Jimmy Carter is going to Canossa. Or maybe to a confrontation. That's his gamble.

"THE NEXT VIRGINIA SLIM"

WASHINGTON— Dr. Renee Richards, the transsexual tennis player, has won her suit against the U.S. Tennis Assn. and the Women's Tennis Assn. for banning her from the U.S. Tennis Open being held at Forest Hills at the end of this month. They had tried to ban her because she could not pass a sex chromosome test given to women athletes to make sure they are what they say they are.

Dr. Richards claimed that the sex chromosome test was unfair, and since she's allowed in professional women's tennis locker rooms, she should be allowed to play as a woman at Forest Hills.

The other side had maintained that if Dr. Richards was permitted to compete as a woman it would open the floodgates for a wave of transexuals playing in women's sports. Many men would have operations just so they could compete against women.

Now that is possible.

As a tennis player who rarely can beat a man on the courts, I've considered an operation similar to Dr. Richards' many times.

After a discouraging set the other day I even discussed it with my wife. "If I could only have a transsexual operation," I told her, "I know I could improve my forehand."

My wife was very sympathetic. "Do it if you think it will help your game."

"The problem is I'm not sure. If I had the operation and then women started beating me, instead of men,it would make me sick."

"Women beat you now," she said.

"I know," I replied "and it makes me sick. But with a transsexual operation I might be able to psych them out.

"If they knew I was once a man, and they now had to play me as a woman, it could make them so nervous they might double-fault and lose their serve, particularly if I didn't shave my legs."

"It's a gamble," my wife admitted. "The only problem as I see it is that if you had the operation and you still kept losing at tennis, there would be no way of going back, if you know what I mean."

"I've thought of that," I said. "But it did wonders for Dr. Richards' game."

"But she was a good player as a man. She's just become better as a woman. If you're a lousy player as a man there is no guarantee you'll play better as a woman. Wouldn't you feel more comfortable taking tennis lessons?"

"Do you know what they charge for tennis lessons these days? At least I could get the operation under Blue Shield and save some money."

"There is a compromise," my wife said. "Instead of going to all the trouble of an operation, why don't you play in women's tennis clothes? Then if it didn't work out you wouldn't have lost anything."

"That is a thought," I said excitedly. "If I wore your tennis dress when I played I might be able to beat a woman. It would certainly give me an edge when they looked across the net."

"I think you'd look nice in my tennis dress," my wife said.

"But suppose they make me take a sex chromosome test?"

"Refuse to take it. I think if you're willing to wear a tennis dress, they have no right to ask you any questions."

"What a brainstorm," I said. "With a dress on I could even beat Ethel Kennedy."

"Would you believe Chrissie Evert?" my wife said as she zipped me up in the back.

I was about to rush out of the house with my racket when my wife called me back. "You forgot the pom-poms on your tennis socks."

U.S. Aids Shah in Cracking Down on Iranian Dissidents

by Jack Anderson
and Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — American officials have been quietly helping the shah of Iran and his notorious secret police force crack down on Iranian dissidents.

The Americans have been almost fawning in their cooperation with SAVAK, Iran's dreaded secret police. They have helped the shah's agents spy on Iranian students in the United States, who oppose the shah's imperial rule. In past columns, we have quoted SAVAK's own documents which reveal how its agents routinely tap phones, forge documents and commit burglaries in pursuit of this goal.

Yet U.S. government agencies are still anxiously cooperating with the shah and his secret police. Here are some examples:

— Last October, we revealed that the top SAVAK agent in the United States is Mansur Rafizadeh, who claims to be an Iranian attache at the United Nations. Rafizadeh vehemently denied any connection with SAVAK.

Now we have obtained a telegram which was sent last November to FBI headquarters from its New York office. It describes an alleged threat against Nasser Afshar, a prominent Iranian dissident and publisher of a stridently anti-shah tabloid called the "Iran Free Press." The FBI document declares unequivocally that "Mansur Rafizadeh is the principal representative of SAVAK in the U.S. and is a foreign liaison source of (the New York FBI office)."

An FBI official acknowledged that Mansur Rafizadeh was a "foreign liaison source" of the FBI. "We have them in just about every friendly mission in New York," said the official. "They give us information, and if we get something on threats or demonstrations, we call them. They are not paid, and there is nothing covert about it."

— Former CIA chief Richard Helms became ambassador to Iran in 1973. A few months later, the shah hinted to Helms that he wanted an orderly reception on a planned trip to the United States. Helms cabled the State Department that Iran "is putting us on notice and indirectly suggesting that we tidy up as much as possible anti-shah elements in the U.S. to reduce or avoid untoward incidents or anti-shah demonstrations during his forthcoming visit..."

— About the same time, the U.S. embassy asked the State Department whether anything could be done to shut down Afshar's anti-shah newspaper. Afshar is an American citizen and his publication is protected by the First Amendment. The shah might win a libel suit, the State Department lawyers advised in an internal memo, but "it would only be in the course of a long and open trial which would focus public attention on this publication."

Helms was later authorized to tell the Iranians that "the department agrees that the Iran Free Press is a scurrilous publication filled with libelous, irresponsible and inaccurate statements." But, warned the bureaucrats, "there are no legal steps the U.S. government can take against this paper..."

— Afshar's newspaper was being mailed to U.S. embassy employees and smuggled onto the streets of Tehran. At the State Department's suggestion, embassy employees refused to accept the tabloids, which were returned to Washington unopened. All were identically stamped: "Refused by addressee. Return to sender."

— Two years ago, Afshar filed a freedom of information request for the State Department's file on him. He later got word that papers relating to his case were being destroyed at the U.S. embassy in Tehran. Afshar's lawyer, Jack Novic of the American Civil Liberties Union, received assurances that the files were being kept intact. Today in U.S. history

By The Associated Press

Today is Sunday, Aug. 21, the 233rd day of 1977. There are 132 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1951, the United States ordered construction of the first atomic submarine.

On this date:

In 1680, Pueblo Indians took possession of Santa Fe, N.M., after driving out the Spanish.

In 1858, slavery was an issue as the famous debates began between political contenders Abraham Lincoln and Stephen Douglas.

In 1918, a World War One battle along the Somme River began in France.

In 1940, the Communist revolutionary, Leon Trotsky, died of wounds inflicted by an assassin in Mexico City.

In 1943, it was disclosed that Japan had evacuated its last North American foothold in the Pacific War — the Aleutian island of Kiska.

In 1974, President Gerald Ford served notice that he intended to run in 1976 for the office he had held less than two weeks.

Ten years ago: the U.S. Command in South Vietnam said that two American planes which had strayed over China after a raid in North Vietnam probably were shot down.

Five years ago: Nearly all of Britain's 42,000 dock workers returned to work after a month-long strike.

One year ago: The United States moved up troops, bombers and fighter planes as a show of force in the Korean area, as Allied forces chopped down a tree in the demilitarized zone where two American military officers had been killed.

Today's birthdays: Britain's Princess Margaret is 47 years old. Former basketball star Wilt Chamberlain is 41.

NAIVE 23-YEAR-OLD TRIES HIS LUCK IN HOLLYWOOD IN '30S

.."Riding High," a half-hour comedy about Hollywood in the 1930s, will be colorcast on the NBC Television Network Thursday, Aug. 25 (7 to 7:30 p.m. DST). Starring are Charlie Frank, Allan Miller, Allen Case, Lonny Chapman and Wendy Phillips.

The comedy, produced by MGM-TV in association with NBC, was written by Larry Gelbart and directed by Lee Phillips. Mark Merson is the producer.

"THE JACK BENNY SHOW," AUG. 23

Mel Blanc, "the man of a thousand voices," is featured in one of his most famous characterizations, that of Professor Le Blanc, the mercurial violin teacher giving Jack Benny music lessons, on "The Jack Benny Show," Tuesday, Aug. 23 (7:00-7:30 p.m. DST) on the CBS Television Network. The show is the third in the series of four television performances which recall the comic genius of the legendary late comedian.

In the episode, originally broadcast on "The Jack Benny Program" on the Network on Jan. 7, 1965, Professor Le Blanc, who gave Benny his first violin lesson on radio in 1945, returns to see the result of his earlier efforts.

The Emmy Award-winning team of Sam Perrin, George Blazer, Al Gordon and Hal Goldman wrote the show, which was produced and directed by Fred DeCordova. Irving A. Fein was executive producer.

NAIVE 23-YEAR-OLD TRIES HIS LUCK IN HOLLYWOOD IN '30S

..."Riding High," a half-hour comedy about Hollywood in the 1930s, will be colorcast on the NBC Television Network Thursday, Aug. 25 (7 to 7:30 p.m. DST). Starring are Charlie Frank, Allan Miller, Allen Case, Lonny Chapman and Wendy Phillips.

The comedy, produced by MGM-TV in association with NBC, was written by Larry Gelbart and directed by Lee Phillips. Mark Merson is the producer.

"THE JACK BENNY SHOW," AUG. 23

Mel Blanc, "the man of a thousand voices," is featured in one of his most famous characterizations, that of Professor Le Blanc, the mercurial violin teacher giving Jack Benny music lessons, on "The Jack Benny Show," Tuesday, Aug. 23 (7:00-7:30 p.m. DST) on the CBS Television Network. The show is the third in the series of four television performances which recall the comic genius of the legendary late comedian.

In the episode, originally broadcast on "The Jack Benny Program" on the Network on Jan. 7, 1965, Professor Le Blanc, who gave Benny his first violin lesson on radio in 1945, returns to see the result of his earlier efforts.

The Emmy Award-winning team of Sam Perrin, George Blazer, Al Gordon and Hal Goldman wrote the show, which was produced and directed by Fred DeCordova. Irving A. Fein was executive producer.

A TIRING JOB, one might think. But tossing tires was not only fun but profitable for Denver Boy Scouts. They collected more than 4,000 old tires, netting their troops some $1,300, in a drive sponsored by local retreaders.

WILL BRACES be a new "in" look? Possibly, if Amy Stryker of Greenville, N.C., becomes a big movie star. She accompanied an actress friend to auditions for a picture and ended up getting the key role herself — the bride — in Robert Altman's "A Wedding," filming in Illinois. Costars include Carol Burnett, Dina Merrill and Howard Duff.

THE ORIGINAL PLOW, OR "AS THE WORM TURNS"

There's a great deal to know about earthworms. People with a vested interest in worms can stand to make a profit if they cultivate a worm farm. A pound of worms (about 1,500 of the little wrigglers) can fetch $8.50 in the retail market place.

In the 90-minute "GE Theater" drama special "Just an Old Sweet Song," starring Cicely Tyson and co-starring Robert Hooks, to be rebroadcast Thursday, Aug. 25 (7:00 -8:30 p.m., DST) on the CBS Television Network, Hooks' character develops an interest in cultivating a worm farm on a visit to his mother-in-law's farm in Georgia.

Worms are hermaphroditic and lay eggs. They are afraid of light, cannot see or hear, and aid in breaking down humus, the decaying matter in the soil. Air necessary for plant growth enters the soil through burrows the earthworm digs.

A worm crawls by lengthening its front part and pushing through the soil, then pulling forward the hind part. It has no lungs or gills. It breathes through its thin skin, which is in contact with the air between the particles of soil. When it rains, these air spaces fill with water and worms then must come to the surface or drown. If the weather becomes too dry and warm, worms will die.

The biggest worm purchasers are fisherman, but large quantities also are used by organic farmers. One of the largest worm farms is in Tarzana, Calif. – population over 10 million.

YOUNG DOCTOR PLAGUED WITH HOSPITAL POLITICS IN HALF-HOUR COMEDY STARRING LARRY LINVILLE

..Larry Linville, Major Frank Burns in TV's "MASH," stars in "Calling Dr. Storm, M.D.," a half-hour comedy about the misadventures of a dedicated young doctor trying to cope with hospital politics, to be colorcast on NBC-TV Thursday, Aug. 25 (7:30-8p.m. DST). Sharon Spellman costars as Storm's wife, Patti.

Storm, chief surgical resident of All Fellows Hospital, is irritated with his arch rival, Ilko Stendak, chairman of the Board of Trustees, upon learning that he is responsible for trying to turn the top floor of the hospital into a country club-type restaurant called Top of the Hop.

Caruthersville -- Jack Taylor, fishing in the Mississippi River about three miles upstream from here, "landed" a long whip antenna, of a submerged '71 model car.

Further checks revealed the car had been stolen at Caruthersville in November, after Taylor had notified authorities of the car's whereabouts, and the auto was lifted from the water.

"Taylor's luck was better than ours," said an official. "We'd been looking for the car for a long time."

Taylor had tossed his line about 50 feet out from the bank, and was retrieving it when it snagged the antenna.

Elvis record did not play on day he died

FULTON, Mo. (AP) — A disc jockey and three employes of radio station KFAL have this story of their own to tell about Elvs Presley. It happened to them Tuesday.

Disc jockey Stu Brunner was handed a record by a station employe, along with a request it be played for the woman's sister-in-law. He tried to play one side of the record and the needle just slid across it. He tried to play the opposite side and the needle skipped and wouldn't play at all.

The first side he tried to play was Elvis Presley's "Bringing It Back." The flip side was "Pieces of My Life."

Brunner excused himself on the air and played another record.

Five minutes later he and three others at the station received the bulletin that Presley had died in Memphis.

Station personnel said today the record now plays perfectly.

Accurate Name

Texas Longhorns, the rugged survivors of the old cattle trail days, still more than live up to their names. A big steer checked as late as 1941 had the record horn spread: 8 feet, 7 and three-eighths inches, measured from tip to tip.

'Dumbo' not on V.I.P. code name accepted list

WASHINGTON (AP) — Listen, this isn't the type of information the government wants passed around.

But President Carter is the "Deacon." Former President Ford was "Pass Key." Richard Nixon was known as "Searchlight."

Lyndon Johnson went through life as president known as "Volunteer," and John F. Kennedy was tagged "Lancer."

It's all part of the Secret Service name game, used to identify the First Family and top administration officials as their comings and goings are noted in walkie-talkie jargon.

The people who make up these names, employes of the White House Communications Agency, are reticent to talk about them, since they are designed for security.

But one spokesman will go this far: Bert Lance, the big man who serves the President as budget director, is not known as "Dumbo," regardless of published reports to the contrary.

He was referring to a recent newspaper story citin..zg nbo $o exchange between agents as Lance and Carter prepared for a game of tennis at the White House that "Deacon and Dumbo are on the courts."

"Dumbo isn't even on the list," said the spokesman, not amused.

"The list," is actually a book of call signs put out by the Military Communications Electronics Board of the Department of Defense. It contains hundreds of words that are "easily understood and pronounceable and have no undesirable connotations" and form the pool of acceptable nicknames for V.I.P.'s whose movements must be noted discreetly for security reasons.

Who christened Carter "Deacon?" Do WHCA personnel agonize like nervous parents of a newborn child for a name that will fit the personality?

Code names are assigned by "sheer whim," said the WHCA spokesman, who declined to provide his own name.

"There is no method. When someone needs a name we go to the list and choose one that is easy to pronounce and decipherable and has not been used recently."

"Really, not too much thought goes into the naming," he said. "Words are chosen to keep transmissions short and sweet and be easily identified over the radio circuit."

But some aliases seem more apt than others. Kennedy's "Lancer" certainly fit the Camelot theme of his administration. "Deacon" for Carter, the Sunday school preacher, sounded too perfect to have evolved randomly.

"It was all a matter of chance," the spokesman insisted.

One thing is for sure, the WHCA spokesman said. When a call sign gets too publicized, it's time for a name change, especially where the president is concerned.

If not Deacon, what title will be selected next by sheer whim?

K.C. council spends heavy on entertainment

KANSAS CITY (AP) — City council members here have spent $140,000 in public funds the past 26 months for entertainment, travel and other expenses, with a chunk of that going to woo Missouri legislators.

Heading the list of spenders is councilman Leon Brownfield, who is also the city's lobbyist in Jefferson City.

The Kansas City Star, in a copyright story, said it is not unusual for Brownfield to run up a restaurant and bar tab of several thousand dollars in a week's time, and in at least a few instances, in just one evening.

For example, a dinner he threw for state legislators last December ran more than $4,000, including a bar bill that exceeded $700.

The tabs run from $37,990 for Brownfield to $1,968 for mayor pro tem Richard Berkley.

Other council members' expenses: Charles Hazley $18,552; Bruce Watkins $15,950; Vic Swyden $10,434; Robert Hernandez $9,649; Joanne Collins $9,155; Arthur Asel $7,819; Joe Pelofsky $6,188; Joe Servias $5,755; Edward Quick $5,507 and Harold Hamil $4,243.

The anaconda, the boa constrictor and the python all have vestigial hind legs. The worm lizard is legless.

Angler snags stolen car

Caruthersville -- Jack Taylor, fishing in the Mississippi River about three miles upstream from here, "landed" a long whip antenna, of a submerged '71 model car.

Further checks revealed the car had been stolen at Caruthersville in November, after Taylor had notified authorities of the car's whereabouts, and the auto was lifted from the water.

"Taylor's luck was better than ours," said an official. "We'd been looking for the car for a long time."

Taylor had tossed his line about 50 feet out from the bank, and was retrieving it when it snagged the antenna.

Elvis record did not play on day he died

FULTON, Mo. (AP) — A disc jockey and three employes of radio station KFAL have this story of their own to tell about Elvs Presley. It happened to them Tuesday.

Disc jockey Stu Brunner was handed a record by a station employe, along with a request it be played for the woman's sister-in-law. He tried to play one side of the record and the needle just slid across it. He tried to play the opposite side and the needle skipped and wouldn't play at all.

The first side he tried to play was Elvis Presley's "Bringing It Back." The flip side was "Pieces of My Life."

Brunner excused himself on the air and played another record.

Five minutes later he and three others at the station received the bulletin that Presley had died in Memphis.

Station personnel said today the record now plays perfectly.

Accurate Name

Texas Longhorns, the rugged survivors of the old cattle trail days, still more than live up to their names. A big steer checked as late as 1941 had the record horn spread: 8 feet, 7 and three-eighths inches, measured from tip to tip.

'Dumbo' not on V.I.P. code name accepted list

WASHINGTON (AP) — Listen, this isn't the type of information the government wants passed around.

But President Carter is the "Deacon." Former President Ford was "Pass Key." Richard Nixon was known as "Searchlight."

Lyndon Johnson went through life as president known as "Volunteer," and John F. Kennedy was tagged "Lancer."

It's all part of the Secret Service name game, used to identify the First Family and top administration officials as their comings and goings are noted in walkie-talkie jargon.

The people who make up these names, employes of the White House Communications Agency, are reticent to talk about them, since they are designed for security.

But one spokesman will go this far: Bert Lance, the big man who serves the President as budget director, is not known as "Dumbo," regardless of published reports to the contrary.

He was referring to a recent newspaper story citin..zg nbo $o exchange between agents as Lance and Carter prepared for a game of tennis at the White House that "Deacon and Dumbo are on the courts."

"Dumbo isn't even on the list," said the spokesman, not amused.

"The list," is actually a book of call signs put out by the Military Communications Electronics Board of the Department of Defense. It contains hundreds of words that are "easily understood and pronounceable and have no undesirable connotations" and form the pool of acceptable nicknames for V.I.P.'s whose movements must be noted discreetly for security reasons.

Who christened Carter "Deacon?" Do WHCA personnel agonize like nervous parents of a newborn child for a name that will fit the personality?

Code names are assigned by "sheer whim," said the WHCA spokesman, who declined to provide his own name.

"There is no method. When someone needs a name we go to the list and choose one that is easy to pronounce and decipherable and has not been used recently."

"Really, not too much thought goes into the naming," he said. "Words are chosen to keep transmissions short and sweet and be easily identified over the radio circuit."

But some aliases seem more apt than others. Kennedy's "Lancer" certainly fit the Camelot theme of his administration. "Deacon" for Carter, the Sunday school preacher, sounded too perfect to have evolved randomly.

"It was all a matter of chance," the spokesman insisted.

One thing is for sure, the WHCA spokesman said. When a call sign gets too publicized, it's time for a name change, especially where the president is concerned.

If not Deacon, what title will be selected next by sheer whim?

K.C. council spends heavy on entertainment

KANSAS CITY (AP) — City council members here have spent $140,000 in public funds the past 26 months for entertainment, travel and other expenses, with a chunk of that going to woo Missouri legislators.

Heading the list of spenders is councilman Leon Brownfield, who is also the city's lobbyist in Jefferson City.

The Kansas City Star, in a copyright story, said it is not unusual for Brownfield to run up a restaurant and bar tab of several thousand dollars in a week's time, and in at least a few instances, in just one evening.

For example, a dinner he threw for state legislators last December ran more than $4,000, including a bar bill that exceeded $700.

The tabs run from $37,990 for Brownfield to $1,968 for mayor pro tem Richard Berkley.

Other council members' expenses: Charles Hazley $18,552; Bruce Watkins $15,950; Vic Swyden $10,434; Robert Hernandez $9,649; Joanne Collins $9,155; Arthur Asel $7,819; Joe Pelofsky $6,188; Joe Serviss $5,755; Edward Quick $5,507 and Harold Hamil $4,243.

Civil rights backslide?

By Martha Angle and Robert Walters

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Americans for Democratic Action, the faithful torch-bearers of liberalism, have warned that the flame of civil rights is flickering on Capitol Hill this year.

Congress, according to ADA, is bowing spinelessly before an ill wind from the right and undermining 20 years of hard-won progress.

The evidence? Why, it's right there in the negative votes on busing, abortion, gay rights, "affirmative action" and veterans benefits for Vietnam holders of less-than-honorable discharges that may be upgraded in the future.

Well . . . maybe. Perhaps ADA is right. Yet its analysis may say as much about the changing nature of "civil rights" challenges as it does about the cooling of congressional ardor on such matters.

It was all so much simpler, a decade or so ago, to distinguish civil rights from wrongs.

Those on Capitol Hill and elsewhere who fought to guarantee all Americans the right to vote, access to places of public accommodation, equal employment opportunities and fair housing were blessed with an unshakeable faith that their cause was just.

The courts said so, and the churches. The college professors said so, and their students. Community leaders said so, and common folk. And in the White House, a towering Texan courageously confronted the shame of a century and told his countrymen that "we shall overcome."

But where, on issues like busing and abortion, is that glorious moral certitude of yesteryear? How can members of Congress be expected to discern the paths of righteousness, let alone follow them, when our society is so deeply and passionately divided on such questions?

Take busing, for example, since it falls within the racial context we commonly associate with "civil rights" issues.

Where is it written, in the laws of man or God, that busing is a "right," civil or otherwise? It is no more than a tool to remedy past wrongs and promote a goal of equal educational opportunity. Like any means to an end, its effectiveness is a legitimate subject for debate. Rejecting the means does not necessarily signify a disavowal of the end.

Abortion is an even stickier test of congressional commitment to civil rights. Both the House and Senate have voted to deny federal funding for abortions sought by women too poor to pay for them on their own.

Obviously, that is a discriminatory act since affluent women will still be able to obtain abortions with a doctor's approval under terms of the Supreme Court's original ruling that created such a furor earlier in this decade.

Yet who is to say that congressmen who refuse to vote for public financing of abortions are violating civil rights of the poor if they genuinely believe that the willful termination of a pregnancy constitutes a denial of the most fundamental right of all, the right to life?

The other votes cited by ADA as proof of congressional backsliding on civil rights involved Vietnam veterans benefits, gay rights and "affirmative action" procedures of HEW.

A HOME MOVIE of a special type is Henry Fonda's next starring vehicle. Called "Tentacles" and concerning an octopus which apparently takes some tips from "Jaws", the film uses Fonda's own pool and patio as a setting.

Your Just Desserts

Fresh From Your Oven

Outdoors, sunny colors help brighten your day. Indoors, your family's appetites perk up for a surprise treat fresh from your oven.

This moist old-fashioned Applesauce cake is dotted with DROMEDARY Chopped Dates which have the ability to make things taste better.

This easy recipe for Applesauce-Date Cake offers advantages to the busy cook. It can be prepared ahead, is ideal to serve at a buffet and is easily portable. It is also a great after-school treat with a glass of milk.

DROMEDARY Chopped Dates are versatile, nutritious and are delicious in combination with many foods.

OLD FASHIONED DATE-APPLESAUCE CAKE

1/2 cup butter or margarine
1 cup granulated sugar
1 cup applesauce
2 cups all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon ground cloves
1/2 teaspoon ground nutmeg
1 cup DROMEDARY Chopped Dates

Cream butter or margarine; add sugar gradually. Stir in applesauce. Blend together next five ingredients. Add to applesauce mixture, mix until blended. Add chopped dates. Turn into greased 8-inch square pan. Bake in preheated moderate oven (350°F.) 50 to 55 minutes. Makes 9 (about 3-inch) squares.

The Prayer

" 'Give to others, and God will give to you: you will receive a full measure, a generous helping, poured into your hands--all that you can hold.' " (Luke 6:38 TEV)

PRAYER: Lord God, may the measure of our giving make generosity smile. In the name of Christ who gave His all. Amen.

New ABC News chief seeks winning combination

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

OS ANGLES (AP) — Will Harry leave Barbara? Will ABC abolish the traditional anchor role on its evening news? Will ABC's evening news show end its long reign as third in network ratings this season?

Roone Arledge, the energetic ABC sports chief who took charge of ABC News on June 1, says no to questions One and Two. But he's hoping to say yes to the third question during the 1977-78 season.

Since July 11, he's been busy trying a new look for ABC's weeknight news, whose previous new look came Oct.4, 1976, when famed Barbara Walters joined disgruntled Harry Reasoner as a coanchor.

The Arledge look markedly reduces — but not always — the time Harry or Barbara spend reading "lead-ins" to correspondents' stories, and increases the time spent on the stories themselves.

Aiding the process is the "whip-around," wherein two or more correspondents report various aspects of a major story, one after another, without cutting back to New York after each report.

And, if several stories occur in a particular region, a subanchor, or "regional anchor," sets up a podium in that region to introduce and explain those stories, as Peter Jennings did from the Mideast recently.

"It's been interpreted as a move to downgrade the entire (New York-based) anchor role," Arledge said of ABC's new approach to an evening news show, "and that's not really true.

"I just don't think the way for us to attract viewers is to do the same thing everybody else does."

Arledge, who says he's trying for a "livelier, more interesting" show, added that "what in effect we're doing is cutting out some of the meaningless reading of introductions (to stories).

"And hopefully, that will open up time so that Harry or Barbara or whoever else can do more meaningful things," he said, referring to outside-the-studio interviews and reports.

"In the long run, that makes them more important, gives them more impact, than just sitting behind a desk reading into pieces."

As far as use of the "whip-around," he said, it's only being used when thought justified: "What we're really trying to do is let the content dictate the form, rather than the other way around."

He was asked about Reasoner, who joined ABC News in December 1970 after 14 years at CBS. Reasoner last fall made no bones he was unhappy about having to share his anchor podium with Miss Walters.

Since then, there've been constant rumors the silver-haired anchorman will soon leave ABC, perhaps to rejoin CBS. Is he in fact leaving?

"No," Arledge said. "He has a contract that goes two or three more years."

So he'll still be ABC's chief anchor with Miss Walters at night?"

Replied his boss: "Yes...I certainly have no intention of either taking Harry off the evening news or in any way making his importance less."

The ferris wheel was invented in 1892 by George Washington Gale Ferris during a prize contest at the 1893 Columbian Exposition in Chicago. It consisted of 36 cars, each capable of holding 60 passengers, and reached a height of 264 feet.

Mystery lady trekking across 620-mile desert

PERTH, Western Australia (AP) — A beautiful woman is crossing the forbidding central Australian desert with four camels and a dog, say rangers, missionaries and travellers who claim to have seen her. But no one knows who the mysterious "camel lady" is or why she's there.

The reports indicate the woman is nearing the end of a 620-mile, two-month trek across the sand dunes, salt marshes and scrublands of the Gibson desert from Ayers Rock in central Australia to Wiluna in Western Australia.

She has been reported twice by police and mission station staff. And a farmer, Dennis Barell, said he saw her after noticing a campfire while he was crossing central Australia.

"When I saw the fire, I jammed on the brakes and called out," he said later in Melbourne. "She was beautiful. The moon was out and the camel pack was standing on the edge of the Mulga (bush) with their bells tinkling."

But the woman did not respond to Barell's call.

Constable Mick Leverence of Wiluna said this week that the woman was only 155 miles northeast of the town on the edge of the desert. A cattle station had reported she arrived there about a week before.

"By now, the camel lady should be near Well No. 10 on the canning stock route and about to turn south toward Wiluna," he said. "The track, called the Gunbarrel Highway, is very rough."

Wiluna, is 400 miles from the coast line, in a barren and sparsely populated area about 400 miles northeast of Perth, Western Australia's main city.

A ranger at Ayers Rock, a huge granite outcrop in the center of Australia which is known locally as the world's biggest rock, said the camel lady left there more than two months ago.

"The last report I heard was that she had trouble with wild camels. she had to shoot two wild bulls who were attracted by her females," he said.

Flipcard device developes into poor man's CB

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Hi Sign flipcards are a poor man's CB radio.

With the printed gadgets you can flip your way to conversation with the next car on the freeway without uttering a single word.

The series of cards with written messages are mounted on a plastic handle that looks like a paddle for a game of verbal table tennis. In fact, creator Paul Steinbaum says the handles started as a real table tennis paddle before he began mass-producing them.

The bearded 32-year-old creator, who says he's sold about 60,000 of Hi Signs for $4.95 each, flips the cards and explains how to talk with the 21 printed messages:

"If you're driving along and see someone you'd like to meet, start out with 'YOU'RE CUTE.' Then ask, 'ARE YOU ATTACHED.' If she nods, 'yes,' then flip her this card — 'BYE.'

"But if she seems interested, you can hit her with 'PULL OVER' or go all the way with 'I LOVE YOU.'"

Law enforcement officers are casting a wary eye on the signs, and in California at least, there's no clear-cut policy. Highway patrol spokesman Michael Moses said, "I'm sure that the first incident that we have on this, we're going to end up with an attorney general's opinion ... I could see a problem if they weren't used properly. They could be a distraction."

Steinbaum said folks spend a lot of time flipping switches and dials on their CBs. What's so different about sticking up a sign?

He noted that some of the messages are safety related, like "LET ME PASS" printed backward to be visible in rearview mirrors and "HELP." One card says "DRIVE CAREFULLY."

Steinbaum said he started last November with simple cards he made himself. Today, it's a small-scale business run from an office in his west Los Angeles apartment and he has just hired a secretary to help process invoices. Wholesalers now handle the distribution which he had handled from his sports car.

Steinbaum slid into his merchandising career while working as a second assistant director on Hollywood films "and watching my friends pass me by." CANCER Answer line

American Cancer Society

A regular feature, prepared by the American Cancer Society, to help save your life from cancer.

An engineer writes: "Someone told me that the Hunza people, who live very long, never get cancer because apricot pits are part of their diet. Is it true?"

ANSWERline: No. The Hunza people, who live in a remote area of the Himalayas, suffer from many diseases including cancer. A Japanese medical team who visited the area found this to be true in the mid-1950's, and after a visit to Asia in 1971, Dr. Alexander Leaf, Chief of Medicine at the Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston, said, "the story that these people are immune from cancer is just rubbish." The story you heard may have originated with backers of Laetrile, a totally worthless cancer remedy that is extracted from apricot pits. Hence, an attempt to link Laetrile to the Hunza diet which uses the apricot as a fruit and its pit as a source of cooking oil.

A printer writes: "My wife will begin drug treatments soon as part of her cancer therapy, and this will go on for a period of time. I won't be able to drive her to the hospital after the first few times because of my job. We need help."

ANSWERline: Please check with your local American Cancer Society Unit. In many communities the ACS has volunteer drivers who will be glad to chauffer your wife in a neighborly way. In some areas, where there are no volunteer drivers, other helpful arrangements can be made.

A grandmother explains "Many years ago when my son was a teenager he had x-ray treatments because acne was making him miserable. The treatments helped. Now, though, I worry about cancer."

ANSWERline: Your son should have his throat and neck examined by a physician just as a precaution. Many years ago, physicians used radiation treatment for such conditions as acne, scalp problems, enlargement of the thymus gland, tonsils or adenoids, and even some problems of deafness. Sometimes the thyroid gland received radiation along with the area being treated. Some of these patients have developed thyroid tumors. These tumors are usually slow-growing and harmless. When they are cancerous (unlike other forms of cancer) the disease may stay confined to its area of origin, in this case the neck, for long periods of time. This means that they can be successfully removed. Your son is certainly a candidate for a checkup, and you both should keep in mind this fact: most thyroid tumors are not cancer.

Mystery lady trekking across 620-mile desert

PERTH, Western Australia (AP) — A beautiful woman is crossing the forbidding central Australian desert with four camels and a dog, say rangers, missionaries and travellers who claim to have seen her. But no one knows who the mysterious "camel lady" is or why she's there.

The reports indicate the woman is nearing the end of a 620-mile, two-month trek across the sand dunes, salt marshes and scrublands of the Gibson desert from Ayers Rock in central Australia to Wiluna in Western Australia.

She has been reported twice by police and mission station staff. And a farmer, Dennis Barell, said he saw her after noticing a campfire while he was crossing central Australia.

"When I saw the fire, I jammed on the brakes and called out," he said later in Melbourne. "She was beautiful. The moon was out and the camel pack was standing on the edge of the Mulga (bush) with their bells tinkling."

But the woman did not respond to Barell's call.

Constable Mick Leverence of Wiluna said this week that the woman was only 155 miles northeast of the town on the edge of the desert. A cattle station had reported she arrived there about a week before.

"By now, the camel lady should be near Well No. 10 on the canning stock route and about to turn south toward Wiluna," he said. "The track, called the Gunbarrel Highway, is very rough."

Wiluna, is 400 miles from the coast line, in a barren and sparsely populated area about 400 miles northeast of Perth, Western Australia's main city.

A ranger at Ayers Rock, a huge granite outcrop in the center of Australia which is known locally as the world's biggest rock, said the camel lady left there more than two months ago.

"The last report I heard was that she had trouble with wild camels. she had to shoot two wild bulls who were attracted by her females," he said.

Flipcard device developes into poor man's CB

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Hi Sign flipcards are a poor man's CB radio.

With the printed gadgets you can flip your way to conversation with the next car on the freeway without uttering a single word.

The series of cards with written messages are mounted on a plastic handle that looks like a paddle for a game of verbal table tennis. In fact, creator Paul Steinbaum says the handles started as a real table tennis paddle before he began mass-producing them.

The bearded 32-year-old creator, who says he's sold about 60,000 of Hi Signs for $4.95 each, flips the cards and explains how to talk with the 21 printed messages:

"If you're driving along and see someone you'd like to meet, start out with 'YOU'RE CUTE.' Then ask, 'ARE YOU ATTACHED.' If she nods, 'yes,' then flip her this card — 'BYE.'

"But if she seems interested, you can hit her with 'PULL OVER' or go all the way with 'I LOVE YOU.'"

Law enforcement officers are casting a wary eye on the signs, and in California at least, there's no clear-cut policy. Highway patrol spokesman Michael Moses said, "I'm sure that the first incident that we have on this, we're going to end up with an attorney general's opinion ... I could see a problem if they weren't used properly. They could be a distraction."

Steinbaum said folks spend a lot of time flipping switches and dials on their CBs. What's so different about sticking up a sign?

He noted that some of the messages are safety related, like "LET ME PASS" printed backward to be visible in rearview mirrors and "HELP." One card says "DRIVE CAREFULLY."

Steinbaum said he started last November with simple cards he made himself. Today, it's a small-scale business run from an office in his west Los Angeles apartment and he has just hired a secretary to help process invoices. Wholesalers now handle the distribution which he had handled from his sports car.

Steinbaum slid into his merchandising career while working as a second assistant director on Hollywood films "and watching my friends pass me by." The first Hi Sign, he says, came last year while he was driving down the freeway yearning to meet an attractive woman in a nearby car. He was unsuccessful.

THE RISE AND FALL OF LIN PIAO
by Jaap van Ginneken (Discus 32656. $2.50. Non-Fiction).

In THE RISE AND FALL OF LIN PIAO international scholar and journalist Jaap van Ginneken traces the spectacular rise of China's foremost modern military leader, Lin Piao, and chronicles his sudden downfall and mysterious death just before President Nixon's visit to Peking.

In the 1930's Lin Piao emerged as a brilliant guerilla leader in campaigns against both Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalists and the Japanese. He soon became one of Mao's closest and most trusted advisors, eventually rising to the post of Defense Minister and being named Mao's heir. His dep involvement with the Cultural Revolution brought him into opposition with Premier Chou En-lai and ultimately to an unprecedented attempt on the life of Chairman Mao.

A SEA CHANGE

by Lois Gould (Avon 33704. $1.95. Fiction).

A SEA CHANGE adds a new dimension to the definitions of "maleness" and "femaleness" and the not-so-delicate balance between the two. It is the story of a woman who escapes the terrors of ordinary life by means of an extraordinary transformation.

Jessie Waterman, a young, attractive, seemingly contented wife and mother, falls victim to a brutal and terrifying assault and flees in terror from the city to a remote island. Then, her marriage deteriorating, her sexual compass gone awry, she flees again to an even more remote island, this time after a climactic and devastating hurricane almost overwhelms her two daughters and herself. Violent as the storms are, they cannot compare to the furies that beset Jessie and cause her to undergo a "sea change".

Antarctic point has 1st reading above freezing

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Temperatures at an Australian scientific station in Antarctica early this month soared above the freezing point for first time in recorded history, scientists reported today.

T. J. Petry, an engineer with the Bureau of Meteorology's Antarctic division, said the heat wave peaked Aug. 2 when scientists at the Mawson station recorded a temperature of 42 degrees Fahrenheit.

The normal temperature at the base, located on the Antarctic Circle, is between 13 below and 22 below zero this time of year, he said.

Petry attributed the record heat wave to an unusual low pressure system in the southern Indian Ocean.

The Mawson station, with 28 scientists, was established in 1956. It is situated on the antarctic coast south of Australia.

Freed AP writer reports on African imprisonment

Editor's Note — Michael Goldsmith, veteran AP foreign correspondent, was imprisoned for 30 days recently in the Central African Empire. He was arrested July 14 and released Aug. 14. This is a first-person account of his ordeal.

By MICHAEL GOLDSMITH
Associated Press Writer

I recovered consciousness in a bare, windowless prison cell. I was handcuffed, dressed only in my underpanzs and covered with blood from open flesh wounds all over my body.

For a long time I lay motionless, trying to limit the pain and to recall how I, a foreign correspondent of The Associated Press, had fallen into this situation.

The memory returned only gradually. I remembered I was on assignment in the Central African Empire and had been arrested on what I assumed correctly was the previous day, accused of being a South African spy.

On the evening of July 14, Bastille Day, I had been taken 70 miles from the capital, Bangui, to Berengo, the birthplace and residence of Emperor Bokassa I, the former sergeant in the French colonial army who had proclaimed himself the hereditary ruler of his nation.

I recalled how Bokassa, in blind fury at the supposed spy, struck me without warning with a heavy stick, knocking me to the ground and opening a gaping wound on the left side of my forehead. I remembered being kicked by Bokassa and his aides until I lost consciousness, and someone deliberately crushing my spectacles underfoot.

I guessed I must have remained unconscious for at least 15 hours. I knew at once that it would be a long time before I could hope to regain my freedom. Bokassa could not easily allow the world to see the injuries he had inflicted on me. Bokassa and his police who arrested me somehow had to find a justification for the ill-treatment.

For six days, I remained handcuffed and often with chains on my legs in the small cell where a rough concrete slab was the only furniture. Once a day, guards opened the heavy steel door to bring me some boiled manioc, an African staple root, and a mess can filled with brackish water.

No one treated my injuries, which quickly became infected. My body was covered with the bites of malaria mosquitoes. The sequel of a particularly vicious kick in the small of my back made every movement an agony. I had nothing on which to rest my aching head. During the frequent tropical rainstorms, I was bitterly cold, without blanket or cover of any kind.

Apart from occasional jibes from an army major whom I later knew as Maj. Ngongo, the prison commander, no one spoke to me, interrogated me or gave me any kind of explanation. My requests to talk to someone in a responsible position or to a representative of the American Embassy drew only laughter from the guards. Every time the cell door was opened, half a dozen soldiers pointed cocked submachineguns at me.

I was sustained by the hope that international pressure on my behalf was building up. The Deputy Chief of Mission at the U.S. Embassy, Grant Smith, had witnessed my arrest so at least the outside world knew. I had not disappeared without trace.

Late on the sixth day, my situation abruptly improved. My handcuffs were removed for the first time, I was given two blankets and placed in a larger cell with a wooden plank for a bed. The following morning, a medical orderly cleaned my wounds and put six stitches in my head. And, astonishing luxury, I was brought a copious, European-style meal from a nearby hotel.

The medic came daily for ten days, gave me regular penicillin and anti-tetanus injections and may have saved my life. The good meals continued to come, once a day, until the end of my imprisonment.

But as my health improved and the pain receded, the agonizing doubts over my future increased. Day after day, I was confronted with endless hours of inactivity, almost no one to talk to and certainly no one to give me any information about the fate in store for me.

I soon made up my mind that I faced the likelihood of imprisonment until Bokassa's coronation, scheduled for Dec. 4, when a general amnesty was likely. That made a total of 143 days. I carved a calendar on my cell wall, leaving space for the four months yet to come.

Although never very strong in mathematics, I began filling in time with enormous calculations scratched on the walls. I divided telephone numbers by each other to 50 decimal points, then re-multiplied the fractions to test my accuracy. The guards decided my long rows of figures were some kind of magic and took away the small piece of plastic I used to scratch on the walls.

I never realized before how slowly empty time moves.

Thoughts of my family often led to increasingly panicky, self-pitying onslaughts of fear. What would I do if Coronation Day came and went and I was not released?

A previous prisoner had carved a crucifix on one of the courtyard walls. On Aug. 11, to occupy time, I colored it with brick dust mixed with water. Maj. Ngongo saw my effort and ordered me returned to the punishment cell for "defacing" the prison.

"That will teach you to harass us with your white man's symbols," he said to me.

Unknown to me, though, my ordeal was at an end. Before Ngongo could carry out his threat, I was taken out of the cell and returned to Berengo. There I was informed that a pathetic message from my wife had softened Bokassa's heart and I would be put on the next plane two days later. It was exactly four weeks since my arrest.

Bokassa himself appeared and lectured me without interruption for two hours. He told me over and over again that it was only the loving message he had received from my wife — and not the multiple diplomatic efforts on my behalf — that had led to my freedom.

On the final day, Sunday Aug. 14, I was again driven to Berengo and interrogated for six hours by policemen using every trick in the book to get me to incriminate my news sources in Bangui. Under threat of renewed imprisonment, I was forced to confess to "espionage, plotting to undermine the security of the state and insulting the personality of the Emperor."

Bluff deejay claims 211- hour world record

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo. (AP) — Disc jockey Rick Tyler of radio station KLID claimed a world record after broadcasting continously for 211 hours and 29 minutes.

News director Bob Holiday said the station would file a record claim with the Guinness Book of World Records, which lists the previous continuous broadcasting record at 208 hours and 32 minutes by Jim Humphries of WETE in Knoxville, Tenn., in April 1974.

Holiday said Tyler, 33, began his stint at the microphone Aug. 8 and finished at 5:59 a.m.

Tyler could nap only during the playing of a record or during a newscast and had to handle all the normal duties of a disc jockey. A doctor checked him each day.

Holiday said Tyler ate steak and lobster and drank orange juice heavily laced with sugar during the record attempt.

Land of Fire

Tierra del Fuego is the largest island in the archipelago at the southern tip of South America, covering 18,800 square miles. It was discovered by Magellan in 1520 and received its Spanish name, meaning Land of Fire, because of the many Indian bonfires sighted along its coasts. Today the island is owned partly by Argentina and partly by Chile.

Prince Valiant

by Hal Foster

Our Story: DAY AFTER DAY, PRINCE VALIANT RIDES THE DESERT SEARCHING FOR WORD OF THE MISSING ALETA AND THE CHILDREN. THEN ONE DAY HE MEETS A WOUNDED WARRIOR LIMPING HOMEWARD.

"YES, I WAS WITH THE QUEEN'S GUARDS," HE RECALLS, "BUT KHAZAN'S RUTHLESS OUTRIDERS CAUGHT US IN A MOUNTAIN PASS. ALL OUR MEN WERE SLAIN BUT NAUGHT WAS HEARD NOR SEEN OF THE QUEEN AND HER CHILDREN AFTER THE BATTLE."

VAL TAKES THE WARRIOR BACK TO CAMP TO HAVE HIS WOUNDS TREATED AND TO LEARN THE DETAILS OF THE BATTLE SCENE.

"BUT THERE IS A MYSTERY TO QUEEN ALETA'S DISAPPEARANCE. I STOOD IN FRONT OF HER DURING THE FIGHTING AND, THEN WHEN ALL HOPE WAS LOST, I TURNED TO TELL HER TO FLEE BUT SHE WAS NOWHERE IN SIGHT."

IT HAS NOT TAKEN YOUNG GALAN LONG TO FIND A BOAT AND GO EXPLORING THIS NEW LAND.

HE COMES TO THE CAVE IN THE CLIFF THROUGH WHICH THE FAMILY HAD ESCAPED FROM KHAZAN'S KILLERS AND DECIDES TO EXPLORE IT FURTHER.

AND ABOUT THIS TIME KHAZAN BREAKS CAMP AND BEGINS HIS MARCH OF CONQUEST. TO FIND AND PILLAGE THE CITY OF PETROPOLIS IS HIS FIRST OBJECTIVE.

PRINCE VALIANT AND HIS COMPANY CLIMB THE NARROW MOUNTAIN CLEFT TO THE ENTRANCE OF THE PASSAGE.

AFTER A LONG JOURNEY IN THE DIM LIGHT OF THE CAVE, GALAN COMES OUT INTO THE SUNLIGHT.

NEXT WEEK – Galan Leads the Way...

DEAR, I'M WORRIED ABOUT DAISY.. SHE HASN'T BEEN AROUND ALL DAY!

I'LL GO SEE IF I CAN FIND HER

HERE, DAISY

HERE, DAISY.. HERE, GIRL

I WONDER WHERE SHE IS?!

HERE, DAISY.. HERE, DAISY

I'VE SEARCHED THE WHOLE NEIGHBORHOOD! WHERE COULD SHE BE?

HONEY, I COULDN'T FIND HER ANYWHERE!

DAGWOOD, SHE'S RIGHT THERE!

LISTEN, YOU SILLY MUTT... IF THAT'S YOUR IDEA OF A JOKE, I DON'T THINK IT'S VERY FUNNY!! AND FURTHERMORE...

DAGWOOD, STOP IT RIGHT NOW!! HOW CAN YOU SCOLD OUR SWEET LITTLE DOG LIKE THAT?!

AND THEY SAY THAT'S MAN'S BEST FRIEND!

PONYTAIL ◇◇ BY LEE HOLLEY

DEAR HELOISE:

My son needed a colander to wash the charcoal from his aquarium. I took one of the pint-sized whipped-topping bowls, and put it over the drain in the sink (inside up).

With the ice pick, I punched a generous amount of holes. I punched two holes about one-half inch apart in the rim.

Threaded a twistem through it for a loop to hang it up.

I found it such a good idea, I made myself a couple. So handy to drain vegetables, tuna fish and such.

Then I turned it over. Eureka! The handiest little grater you ever saw! I keep one with our camping pots and pans. If you wash fish you can throw it away. Make another for the next time.

This sounds like a real handy utensil. Could keep several hanging around in house or camper for all kinds of draining jobs.

HANDLE WITH CARE

DEAR HELOISE:

To make low kitchen cupboards toddler-proof, I use one (or two together) of those plastic baby-blanket holders and fasten it through both handles. I can quickly open it, but little ones can't, and that's a relief!

Sharla E. Luker

TO TOP IT ALL!

DEAR HELOISE:

I have a frying pan (my favorite) which had no cover that would fit. So I put my thinking cap on and came up with this idea.

I took some heavy cardboard, cut a circle one-fourth inch larger than pan, and covered it with heavy aluminum foil.

Then I punched two holes in center and took two wire twistems (that come around vegetable bags), twisted them together, and fashioned a lifting ring. Works perfect!

Mrs. Robert Porter

THE OLD BRUSH-OFF

DEAR HELOISE:

The brush end of an old pencil-type typewriter eraser is ideal for cleaning sawdust and plaster out of drill bits.

This type eraser is small enough to tuck in with the bits in their case and is always handy when needed.

Mrs. J. F.

THAT'S MY GLASS

DEAR HELOISE:

Do you know how many glasses six children and two adults can get dirty between dish washings? It seems to be every glass that starts out clean!

I picked out eight different glasses (which is easy to do when so many get broken out of so many different sets) and everyone selected their own glass. Then we laid a dishtowel on the counter by the sink.

Now each one uses his own glass and rinses it after drinking, and then places it back on the towel. Each time dishes are washed, the glasses are washed and put back on the towel. The towel is replaced each day.

Mrs. Paul R. Mitchell

IT'S A RECORD!

DEAR HELOISE:

My daughter Sharri has come up with a nifty idea for a record holder — recycling too!

She took an empty solid deodorizer plastic cartridge, pulled up and off at the top and inserted several 45 RPM records.

Mrs. Sandra James

PICK OF THE WEEK!

DEAR HELOISE:

If you play on a guitar for a long time, you may notice that your fingertips get sore from the guitar strings.

You can put little pieces of moleskin on your finger tips to solve that problem. It worked great for me!

LETTER OF THOUGHT

DEAR HELOISE:

When I baby-sit and the kids start calling each other names, I recite this poem I learned when I had baby sitters.

Make sure the words you say are soft and kind and sweet. 'Cuz you will never know which ones you'll have to eat. — Author Unknown

DON'T DIS-CARD

DEAR HELOISE:

I collect postcards and have been trying to figure out how to display them. I finally found a good way.

First, tape or glue two postcards together (picture side out). Do this several times. Then take some colored yarn (matched to the decor of the room) and string the postcards.

These are very attractive and you can do as many as you want at any length.

SCRAMBLED TIPS

DEAR HELOISE:

When I fix scrambled eggs, I add one teaspoon milk for each egg.

I find I get a smoother mixture of the scrambled egg.

Virginia A.

Ever tried canned evaporated milk? It's even richer.

PLENTY OF PEPPER

DEAR HELOISE:

Just the other day I found myself cooking, and had run out of pepper.

Then I remembered the packets of pepper, salt and sugar I had saved from the hospital and different food-to-go places.

So many times I had been tempted to throw them away. It "pays to save".

Mrs. Carolyn Wittmer

NIGHTY NIGHT!

DEAR HELOISE:

I'd like to share an idea with you and your readers. A good way to use discarded slips or nighties is to make pillowslips of the best part.

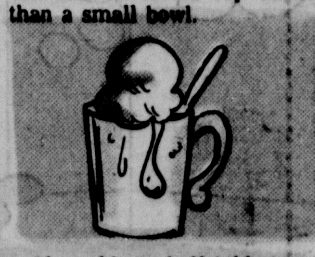
Those silk or nylon ones are the best, and are great to sleep on. Good for your hairdo, too.

C. Ruscoe

JUST A CUP!

DEAR HELOISE:

Let small children eat ice cream out of coffee cups. They can hold on to the cup better than a small bowl.



Also add one-half tablespoon of milk to soften the ice cream quickly for the little ones.

CAN YOU TRUST YOUR EYES? There are at least six differences in drawing details between top and bottom panels. How quickly can you find them? Check answers with those below.

Differences: 1. Judge's stand is lower. 2. Chairback is different. 3. Hand is missing. 4. Harido is different. 5. Glasses are missing. 6. Head is repositioned.

Hal Kaufman's JUMOR WHIRL®

	E	A	C	O N

P	A		T	R Y
H	A	L		E D
C	E	N	S	R
B	R	O	K	E

OBSERVE that in each horizontal row of the diagram above a letter is missing, thereby forming a diagonal of blanks. Now, put on your thinking cap. What U.S. state capital's name can be inserted in this diagonal, from top down, to complete six good English words in the horizontal rows?

Think you know? OK, after you've found one, see if you can find another. There's at least one in the eastern and western portions of the country.

Remember, names inserted must also form six common six-letter words reading across.

BULLETIN BOARD

•SUM FUN! Take any two numbers from 1-9. Multiply either by 5, add 7, double the sum, add the other number, subtract 14. What have you got?

The two original numbers.

•Riddle-Me-This! How is one's health affected by a good sense of touch? Give up? It's good to feel well, of course.

1. Steve. 2. Arnold.

SEA HERE! What's keeping our fetching young friend above from getting wet? To find out, draw 1 to 2, 3, etc.

SPELLBINDER!

SCORE 10 points for using all the letters in the word below to form two complete words:

THEN score 2 points each for all words of four letters or more found among the letters.

Possible answers: pane, trap.
